Series 641 was the first issue to be issued in a single country - Vietnam. It is also the only issue to be issued in a single country without a $20 denomination note. Also, Series 641 was an issue with large production numbers, therefore making it an easier series to collect in Uncirculated. Replacements for the Fractional Denominations are readily available, yet the Replacements for the Whole Dollar Denominations are slightly more difficult, but known. In recent months, a group of previously unreported Series 641 $5 and $10 notes recently surfaced and have made themselves available for reasonable prices.

Series 641 also is the first series that has (in my opinion) a disproportionately high amount of fancy and specialty notes over other previous series. Known and confirmed in existence are the following:

Ladder Note,
 Radar Note,
 Repeater Note,
 Solid Note,
 SWIMS Note,
 Flipper Notes,
 Complete Packs,
 Progressive Proof Sets,
 Specimen Notes (both loose and in bound booklet form)
 Extremely Low Serial Numbers for both Regular and Replacement Notes, Counterfeits,
 and other variations of collectable notes...

I hope to assemble most of the above from various collections and display them together at Fest IV.

It is also the authors pleasure to announce that the Series 641 Specimen Set recently sold in the May 17th 2002 CAA auction we be joining the Series 641 .10 cent Progressive Proof Set in the same collection.

Details about the purchase and the Series 641 .10 Progressive Proof Set will be made available shortly on my website at:

Hello David,

Yes, I look forward to seeing you at ANA. Be sure to take your pay book!!!!!! On your ancient MPC article. I can only guess that Phil and I in combination screwed it up. It WAS NOT rejected. We HAVE rejected a few items that were too political and a few that had NO relevance, but the ancient article should have been published. Like I said, I probably goofed it up! Do you have another copy that you can send? I/we might be able to find it, but receiving another copy might be the easiest and best way. Phil is MUCH more organized than I am and doing a good/great job at all of this, but every now and then I get involved and mess things up!

Fred

Hi Guys -

Just a note to you Gramsters about a show on the History Channel tonight (6/6/02). Its about WW2 camps in the USA and how the POWs were treated. It might be interesting and since they will be talking about how we treated them there should be some mention of the money they could earn, their canteens and how they paid for what they wanted to buy. I think it is at 8 or 9 o'clock but you will have to check your local listings for the time in your area. My best to you all and I hope to see many of you in Memphis next week.

Leo May

(editors note: This episode airs at 8:00 pm EST / &:00 Central on the History Channel. Also I do believe all History Channel episodes are available on VHS tape. )

Last night the episode of M*A*S*H concerning Hawkeye (Alan Alda) as paymaster aired. Naturally, as any self respecting MPC Collector would do, I leaned closer to pay attention and to pick apart the episode.

First: As he pays to a soldier, he counts off to the soldier an X amount of dollars and 63 cents, handing the soldier individual notes for the 3 cents...

Problem: There were no 1 cent MPC notes.

Second: After pay was disbursed, he was left with "$10" extra which he hands to Radar (Gary Burghoff).

Problem: The size of the note is too small to be a $10 MPC Note. It is a $1 note.

Third: Look closely at the note: The note has a large vignette in an oval, offset to one side on the front of the note.

Problem: Neither Series 472 or 481, which was used in Korea at the time of the Korean Conflict, did not have a large vignette on the front of the note. As far as I can see, it more closely resembles Series 521, 591 or 611 $1 notes

Fourth: Later in the episode, after Hawkeye mentions to Radar about he lost $3000 in fees from his private practice by being drafted, Radar "requisitions" the $3000 by "filling out the proper forms." Afterwards, a Finance Officer comes to reclaim the $3000.

Detail: He is wearing the correct Finance Corps insignia on his uniform lapel.

But as I said in the last letter concerning episodes of M*A*S*H and their details, IT'S ONLY TV! I guess when you are a TV producer, you can take certain liberties concerning authenticity.

Phil

EDITORIAL

Today's Gram is a doozy! Not only is it 06 JUNE, but it fell on Thursday - Ski's appointed column day, so as you would expect there is a great article. Then to top that: It's Gram 641 and you have my article on Series 641 - So you readers out there get - A Double Feature!

I had hoped to have images of the Series 641 Specimen notes, but they have not been delivered yet.

After discussing it with our beloved and esteemed publisher, we will shortly remove the MPC Catalog Corrections section, store it on PaperMoneyWorld.net and make it available as a link on the Gram, so as to save space. However, NEW correction will be listed in the Gram, as they are discovered.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Oral History Interview with BERNARD BERNSTEIN - part VIII

July 23, 1975

by Richard D. McKinzie

Submitted by Fred Schwan, [comments in brackets]

Toward the end of 1940, or perhaps the middle of 1941, a man by the name of Leo Istorik came to see the Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Istorik was a member of the Board of Directors of the Anglo-Palestine Bank, which was the Jewish owned bank in Palestine. The bank was having some financial problems and was seeking loans or financial assistance in the United States. Secretary Morgenthau delegated me to work with Mr. Istorik on the matter. I made a careful study of our statutes and authorities and reached the conclusion that the U.S. Treasury and the U.S. Government could not give any financial help to the Anglo-Palestine Bank. The Secretary agreed with that conclusion. The Secretary also agreed with my recommendation that he write a letter (which I had prepared) to the governor of the Bank of England, talking about the situation and in a sympathetic manner suggesting that the Bank of England might want to consider giving some financial help to the Anglo-Palestine Bank.

While Mr. Istorik was in this country he had a number of meetings with Justice Louis Brandeis, who was at the time retired from the U.S. Supreme Court and who had been prior to his appointment to the bench, the head of the Zionist movement in the U.S. Mr. Istorik had told Justice Brandeis about me and about what I was doing at the Treasury. Justice Brandeis told Mr. Istorik that he would like to see me at his apartment. I had on a number of occasions previously attended Sunday afternoon teas at Justice Brandeis' apartment. I was among those who sat with the Justice from time to time on his couch and talked. Within a five or ten-minute period, Justice Brandeis could pick your mind clean of all ideas you had about the work you were doing. But on this occasion, which happened to be about a month before he died, I was alone with Justice Brandeis at his apartment. We talked for about three quarters of an hour, and the Justice did most of the talking. He was telling me about economic developments in Palestine and the potential economic development in Palestine if help was given, and also the great importance of Palestine as a place of refuge and as a home for great numbers of Jews who were being so badly persecuted in Europe and elsewhere. I had the feeling that Justice Brandeis was seeking deliberately to inspire in me the desire to be of help to this cause. And I always have tried to help, having been profoundly aroused by what had been done to the Jewish communities of Europe, in the Nazi controlled areas.

MCKINZIE:

"You indeed had. I wonder if I could ask you to talk about the--you had already explained something about the planning for movement into Germany that took place in London, and then your own movements crossed channels in this would be 1944, would it not?"

BERNSTEIN:

"Well, as I think I mentioned earlier, when Secretary Morgenthau came to London in August, 1944, both for discussions with the British on financial matters and the World Bank and International Monetary Fund matters, and also to talk with the Army about matters of interest to the Treasury and to the President, Secretary Morgenthau became greatly interested in the military government program with respect to Germany."

I had had discussions with Secretary Morgenthau, beginning with breakfast on the train when I met him in Scotland on his arrival. I outlined to him the trend of the thinking of SHAEF on military government planning, and I discussed with him the handbook that had been prepared. I also pointed out to him what I felt ought be the financial policy vis-a-vis Germany. Secretary Morgenthau told me that he had discussed the problem with General Eisenhower at General Eisenhower's headquarters when they had lunch together, together with some staff of Secretary Morgenthau and General Eisenhower. From that time on, Secretary Morgenthau personally, as Treasury staff, and myself as the American financial man on General Eisenhower's staff, played an increasing role in trying to develop a program, an American program, for dealing with military government in Germany. Great divisions took place between the departments of the Government on the matter, particularly between State, Treasury and the War Department. President Roosevelt himself had views, which seemed at some time to reflect support of Secretary Stimson's position and at some time support of Secretary Morgenthau's position. I think it's probably fair to say that in the end, the point of view of Secretary Stimson was adopted as American policy and basically determined the policy followed by Generals Eisenhower and Clay, and later by John McCloy when he became High Commissioner in Germany.

I do want to make one point, which arose in these discussions. I was of the view that Germany, and Germans, had the capacity to create a strong heavy industrial economy despite the destructions of the war. I remember one afternoon in mid-1945 I was in a small plane with General Lucius Clay and another American general, and we were flying over the Ruhr. The scene below us was of devastating destruction of Germany's Ruhr industrial machine. General Clay, looking at the scene, said to me that I didn't have to worry about Germany ever reviving its industrial power.

I said to General Clay that I feared that Germany would not only revive its industrial power but it would do it with new plants and new equipment and be far greater industrially than before. I think the history since then bears out the validity of my point. I think further one has to remember that in 1945 the planning, at least on the side of the United States and Great Britain, with respect to Germany, was on a basis of a unified Germany, apart from those parts of Germany that were going to be ceded to the Russians and the Poles and the French. I think we can see now that if what we now call West Germany and East Germany were a single unified Germany, that country would clearly be the dominant industrial power of Europe.

Phil,
Good job with the Gram! I have a couple of comments. First, regarding your article on the 641 series, the tabular format for the technical data does not carry over to all email programs (such as mine). The data is all over the page. I think I can sort it out, but it is a nontrivial exercise. I suggest using simpler formats in the future. Second, in your analysis of the MASH episode, did you mean to say that the Finance Officer was NOT wearing the proper insignia? Keep up the good work. Regards,
Warner

Hi Warner!
I figured the way I stated it was going to be confusing... What I wanted to convey, is that with the other errors in the episode, the officer from the Finance Corps was wearing the correct insignia. That much they got right. As for the formatting, I had copied the tables direct from my website... guess next time I'll provide a link.
Phil

Dear Gram:
A few weeks ago I submitted an article from Pravda giving the Soviet view of the currency reform in western Germany in 1948. In an effort to give equal time, the following website has a terrific history of the currency reform and its role in precipitating the Berlin Blockade. Unfortunately it is copyrighted so it cannot be reproduced but it is a worthwhile read for anyone interested in these events and military currency. The website is hosted by the Truman Library which has a number of documents from this period available online including the oral interview with Bernard Bernstein that Fred excerpted in previous Grams.

We also want to have extend a big thank you to three donors who have outdone themselves over the past two years both in terms of financial and promotional support. It is for this reason that we are awarding this year's scholarships in the names of:

Mr. 691, Mr. David Seelye and Mr. Guido Crapanzano

We are very fortunate to have such generous persons involved in our community. This years recipients are:

Robert Kutcher
Lincoln, Nebraska

Robert is currently a Governor of the Central States Numismatic Society and actively writes for the Lincoln Coin Club Newsletter, Nebraska Numismatic Association Newsletter and Armenian Numismatic Journal. He has won several awards for numismatic literature and is an active exhibit judge.

David Seelye
North Chili, New York

David is well known (sometimes notoriously) within the military numismatics community over the past few years. His expertise is varied across the different permutations of military numismatics. He collects MPC Fest Money, military training money and perhaps best known for his obsession with SOS notes. Dave will certainly be a contributor to the content of the course.

Frank Clark
Carrollton, Texas

Frank is the existing President of the Society of Paper Money Collectors and has been involved in too many numismatic organizations to mention. It will be exciting to have the leadership of SPMC involved in the course. At last count there were 10 persons enrolled in the course. It should be a GREAT event. Overall it has been a very successful year for the scholarship thanks to the contributions of everyone. Please take a look at the donor list and take time to recognize/patronize/support those who support our community.

EDITORIAL

Apparently in the first letter sent to me containing the Scholarship News, part of the text was lost. The letter in full appears above.

Also there was a small misunderstanding with my fourth point in my M*A*S*H letter in Gram 641. What I wished to convey, was with all the faults in the episode, the insignia on the Finance Officers lapels are correct. At least they got that right.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Memphis Wish Book

By Fred Schwan

The Lyn Knight Memphis auction catalog is a virtual wish book (as these catalogs so often are). The catalog came a few weeks ago and I looked through it, but I did not study it until today. Now, I can hardly wait to get to Memphis to study the notes themselves. Not only does the catalog excite my acquisitive nature, but it is full of research information as well.

Before we discuss some of the great items in the sale, there is a funny item in the catalog. The extensive bibliography includes some interesting entries and is worthy of a little study in itself. The item in question is the listing for A Guide Book of Philippine Paper Money. This great book was way ahead of its time in the 1960s and is still an essential reference. The book is by Joel Shafer's father Neil. Now for the good part. A typo in the catalog has the book by Neil Shafe (no R)!

This time the MPC is integrated with the United States paper money which is where I think that it belongs. Quantity wise there is not much MPC in this sale, but it is still an interesting group. To me the most interesting item is a fourth printing Series 481 $1. Since the beginning of the multiple printing studies, this has been the most desirable note. It is not the rarest of the multis, but it is still the most interesting because of the migration of the position number. This is the first time that the multiple printing aspect has been featured in a catalog. I look forward to seeing what happens with this lot.

Elsewhere in the US section are some other interesting items that are often overlooked by military collectors—Hawaii and North Africa notes. There is a nice selection of star notes, but the real star is a Series 1934 $10 North Africa. This is a circulated example which might make it somewhat affordable for some collectors who do not want to spend a fortune for an unc. By any standards, in any grade, this is a rare note. I look forward to seeing the activity on this piece. Of course the bulk of the interesting material for me is in the world note section. I will only be able to pick out a few pieces here for discussion. Probably I will mention these same items again after the auction and possibly pick up a few more at the same time. There is plenty to study in this section for research purposes alone. I expect to make lots of annotations in my master copy of WWII Remembered while studying these notes.

I really like Foreign Trade Payment Certificates. What they lack in beautiful vignettes they more than make up for with (a string of THREE propositions!) rarity, mystery, and even intrigue. There has never been an auction like this for FTPC! Eight lots present twelve different pieces! There it is in glorious color, a $5 FTPC! What an amazing piece! This is the only reported example of this denomination. A poor example was known, but about 15 years ago it was lost in the mails and is unlikely to ever be found. To make it even better, another lot includes the 5c through $1 of the same issue so some lucky collector could have a complete set of a type that is not currently listed. If that were not enough there is a 5c FTPC with a letter prefix to the serial number. No other examples of this type of serial number have been observed and the purpose is unknown.

It does not take a brain surgeon (sorry CT) to realize that the highlight of the auction is the set of notes for the Italian occupation of Egypt:

Cassa Mediterranea di Credito per L'Egitto.

Heck, if you do not know anything about WWII notes, when you see an estimated price of $180,000 – 250,000, you know that it must be something special. This is a legendary set! Mystery, intrigue, it has it all. According to the legend, Loeb and Sten split a specimen sets of the Egypt and Sudan notes. Even the whereabouts of the divided sets has slipped from the radar screen. There is more.

First of all, the set includes a 1 piastre denomination! This value was not previously reported. Whether it was in the Loeb-Sten set is not known, but my guess is that it was not. This is a specimen set. It is marked CAMPIONE on the face and back. Each note in the catalog appears to have also been "cancelled" by a rectangular cut. Interestingly enough these are not cuts at all but sort of security devices electronically applied to the catalog only. The notes are in tact! Two other lots have the same CAMPIONE printing and glue residue. Lot 618 is a set of the Cassa Mediterranea for Greece. This is the only issue of the three (for Sudan, Egypt, and Greece) that is collectable. Finally, there is also a specimen set of the Biglietto a Corso Legale per le Isole Jonie (for the occupation of the Ionian Islands). This set has the CAMPIONE same markings.

All of this is rather conclusive evidence that these three sets were together and probably consigned by the same person. However, it is not conclusive that the three sets left the manufacturer together. Since Sten and Loeb shared a set of the specimens, it occurred to me that Sten’s catalog from the 1960s might have some research information that we have missed over all of these years. I could not find my Sten catalog, but I did find his 1965 Encyclopedia of World Paper Money and it included a surprising bit of info.

Sten describes the notes this way “prepared for Italian occupation of Egypt, captured by British at Sidi Barrani. (Reported by [The] Numismatist, Feb, 1941).” Wow, this was far more than I had hope of finding—a contemporary account! A quick call to the American Numismatic Association library netted me a faxed copy of the short notice from The Numismatist (page 119). The item consists of only two paragraphs. The first gives the critical information: “A news report from Cairo is of the greatest numismatic interest since the report contained the sorry of the capture by the British of large quantities of bank notes, printed for use in Egypt conquered by Italy. The notes were seized by the troops upon the evacuation of Sidi Barrani. Instructions were found with the bank notes that they were to be placed in circulation with the Italians had occupied Alexandria.

Sidi Barrani is one of those wonderful names from World War II that is simultaneously wonderfully obscure and critically important. According to the Webster’s Geographical Dictionary, Sidi Barrani is a coastal village in northwest Egypt. In World War II it was the scene of much fighting in North Africa campaign; captured by Italians September 1940, by British Dec. 11, 1940; taken by Rommel’s army 1941 but recaptured Nov. 10 – 11, 1942 in Rommel’s retreat. As you can tell I am excited about these Italian (and other) issues. It will be fun and interesting just to be able to see and study the notes.

I will make a report from Memphis on Thursday night or during the day on Friday. Gramsters will get the first reports from Memphis.

MAIL CALL

Speaking of "what do you collect?", I am interested in British and English blood chits. I have many WWII examples, but there are lots of Korean War ones I don't have, and I don't have a Desert Storm blood chit either. So, who out there has some for sale???

ANA Library Receives BAFSV Book

You can now check out T.F.A. van Elmp't's book titled "British Armed Forces Special Vouchers," as I've donated a copy to the library. It won't be in the online catalog until October, but the call number is UA60.V3. I was rather surprised to find out that neither the ANA Library or the IBNS library, colocated with the ANA library had a copy. After reading about it in the gram, I checked the web, and was able to purchase a couple of copies from Mr. Alistair Gibb. I still have a copy for myself, but look for one in the ANA YN Auction during the first week of the Summer Seminar as I gave Gail Baker a copy at the Long Beach show. Cheers,

Mark C. Watson

Dear Gram,

Since Joe B. was asking someone to check the underprint on the Ceylon 25c (1942). The 50c does indeed have the Green & (mustard) yellow undpt. The 25c undpt. (under 30x magnification) is what I would call Aqua & (mustard) yellow. As for the watermarks, on these notes, I have always assumed it was a "hit and miss" affair. With the watermark showing up on the note only when the alignment of paper allowed it. Hence it would be possible to have partial, full and w/o watermark "varieties".

EDITORIAL

The clock ticks towards Memphis.. Unfortunately, I will not be able to make it, although I had hoped to... Someday, I hope to be able to attend Memphis, and Maastricht.. thats my wish list.

On another note, I need a list of the serial numbers for the 111 Series 651 .50 cent notes sold in the May 17th CAA Auction. Can anyone furnish?

MPC CATALOG CORRECTIONS & ENHANCEMENTS

Page 18, Bottom - Users of Military Payment Certificates

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:

Australia: 641, 661, 681, 692

Canada: 461 through and including 591

Korea: 641, 661, 681, 692

New Zealand: 641, 661, 681, 692

Thailand: 641, 661, 681, 692

United States: All

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

FEATURED ARTICLE

More Odds and Ends

by Joseph Boling

Murray Hanewich reported yesterday on the tint shades of the Ceylon 1942 25c and 50c notes, and this about the watermarks: "I have always assumed it was a 'hit and miss' affair. With the watermark showing up on the note only when the alignment of paper allowed it. Hence it would be possible to have partial, full and w/o watermark 'varieties.'" On the piece I have, the watermark is at right angles to the inscriptions; it would be impossible to have a full watermark, because the watermark is longer than the note is tall. Murray, are yours oriented differently? My assumption was that the watermark repeated in a pattern that would provide one half of the watermark in any given note. Murray, how much of the watermark is present in each of your two pieces? Does any reader have a note that has less than half of the watermark (either the right end or the left end, oriented at 90 degrees to the note)?

In response to Mark Watson's generous donation of Van Elmt's BAFSV book to the ANA library, once I get my act together and get my books inventoried and packed, ANA will have a pretty good library of military and Japanese titles. I have shipped 14 cartons already, and will take many more with me to the summer seminar in two weeks.

That fourth printing series 481 $1 that Fred talked about yesterday is the one that a local club member brought to a meeting, about which I wrote two months ago. He is hoping to parlay it into a nice Educational $2 note, so bid liberally, boys and girls.

In the June issue of "The Retired Officer" is an article by Susumu Toyoda about counterfeit Japanese battle flags. It seems that in the Philippines in 1944, when the US liberation entered mop-up mode, the members of the 173rd Language Detachment (Japanese translators supporting the intelligence office of the 37th Infantry Division) had time on their hands. Recognizing the trading value of war trophy "meat-ball" flags, they devised a way to create their own, using parachute silk, red ink, and India ink. Being linguists, they could inscribe the flags with patriotic sentiments and personal names. One day one of the bogus flags was brought in by a third party owner to be translated; when the detachment commander learned that it had changed hands for $150, he stopped the counterfeiting operation. Toyoda did not say how many flags were created, but he described the way they were made, including the ageing techniques that were used, and he named three places where they were traded (quartermaster, Seabees, and engineers) to obtain scarce goods and services to make the perpetrators' lives more comfortable. So, that war trophy you own might be a super- scarce official counterfeit. I love it!

Enough for this week--I have much to do before departing for Memphis.

MAIL CALL

You mentioned the auction of a German Enigma code machine in a recent Mpcgram. These have been offered several times over the years. They are not all that uncommon.

It is my understanding that after the end of WWII the British sold such confiscated machines to several emerging African nations. The code-breaking techniques of WWII were still top secret, so the African nations were told that the machines were unbreakable and could be used with complete security. The British then commenced to read their mail for the next 10-20 years. Of course, that could all be just an old intelligence myth...

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Camp White POW Camp

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

This is being written in a motel room near Tupelo, Mississippi, the night before the set up for the Memphis Paper Money Show. I am only about two hours from Memphis and I plan to be up bright and early so that I can review some of the great notes in the Lyn Knight Auction. The world note lead off the auction again at 7pm Thursday night, so it is only the early birds that get to see the notes. Fred mentioned some of the great items that at least nneed to be lovingly held and studied.

Lot number 1291 is a set of four chits from the POW camp at Camp White in Oregon and is the subject of tonight's article. Camp white was located eight miles north of Medford, Oregon on State Route 62 and is the site of present-day White City. The camp was built in 1942 and was divided into two sections, one for training division-size units and the other fro training special service forces. The camp could accommodate over 38,000 troops. It had many buildings and a large hospital. In August 1942, the 91st Infantry Division was activated and trained at Camp White and the 96th Infantry Division trained there later. The camp had a main prisoner of war camp holding close to 1200 POWs who worked for the military. The POW camp opened in May 1945 and closed in May 1946. At the same time the army vacated the camp and turned the hospital over to the Veterans Administration. Much of the land and most of the buildings went to the country. In the post war years most of the buildings were converted into civilian residences and the resulting community was named White City.

The four chits in the Knight auction exhibit the serial number 30007, the same serial number that shows up in the Donn and Campbell book. As a matter of fact, chits with that serial number are the only ones found in collections that I know of. They are all punch cancelled with a hole about ¼ inch in diameter. The booklet which held these chits probably came from the holdings of the printer of these chits-Hancock Brothers of San Francisco. The location of the chit book itself is unknown. I have in my collection a similar set of four chits as offered in the Knight auction. All have the 30007 serial numbers.

A few weeks ago, I got a letter from Fester Tom Koch in response to my plea for reports of any POW items held in collections. Tom told e he had an empty booklet cover from Camp White with a different serial number (59044). Even though the book was empty, this was great information, as the strips of chits stubs remained and careful examination can determine how many of each value was in the booklet. We have found that if a one cent chit was in the series there would be 5 strips of 25 chits in the booklet making it usually the most common value of a series. Tom told me that this book was unusual in that one of the stubs was larger than normal, actually it was the size of an unprinted chit. I simply did not believe it. Could the booklet have been in the owners pocket when it went through the laundry and the colors faded? I asked to see it so Tom mailed it to me. When it arrived, I was amazed. There it was, definitely a light tan stub the size of a chit. I checked my set of chits. A 25c blue, 10c off white/light tan, 5c pink, and 1c light yellow. The stubs were definitely the same colors-2 blue, 4 light tan, 2 pink and 2 light yellow. This was a $5 booklet. The two strips of 25c chits-50c and the two strips of 1c chits 10c, totaled $5.10. There was the answer. That blank chit/large strip reduced the 10c strips to $1.90 and made up for the tow strips of 1c chits.

I've had the opportunity to look at several dozen chits books and this is the first one configured this way. Just goes to show you that no matter how much you think that you know, there are still surprises out there-if you keep looking!

Phil has had an emergency and could not fulfill his editorial duties. Of course I am happy to help. I am not at liberty to disclose the nature of the emergency because I do not know, but I am sure that Phil knows, that all Gramsters appreciate all that he has done, but also want him to take care of the important things first.

I am not at all sure how long you will be stuck with me, but we will do our best-with your help as always. Of course your letters, articles and other submissions will be very much appreciated.

The first thing that you have probably noticed is that the format is probably not the nice pretty one that Phil created for us. I do not know I will be able to get there or not, at the moment, I am just happy to get it done!

This Gram is being created and sent from Memphis. The Thursday auction is complete. We will try to get a report tomorrow.

Fred

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 646- 17 JUNE 2002

Rare Printing Found

By David Seelye

Today, while working on my computer, a little after 5PM my FAX machine printed out a most interesting page.

There was a telephone number and FAX number along with a black and white copy of a series 472 50 cent.Â There were several sentences of text.Â " What is the value of this note?Â Is it a second printing?Â XF- No tears or obvious marks; slight fold on back.Â Serial C04033859C pos 1

I called immediately, and left a message.Â I waited until after supper and evening news had ended.Â Then I called Pennsylvania to talk with Mr.---- about the FAX.Â He is an old collector that recently got Fred's new 4th edition book, and started checking his notes. We talked for 30 minutes about the note.Â He has bought from Denley's and Essie Kashani in the past, but does not recall where this note came from.Â He did say he will check the old invoices he has to try and find out the history.

Another Memphis is in the books! I expect that we will have many reports on the show in the next few days.
Please send us your stories.
I feel very bad that I was not able to get any Grams out from the show. Not only was I extremely busy (like everyone), but because I had not planned on it, I could not get any computer time! I know that the format is not clean, but I will work on that too.
I sure had a great time as I always do! I will try to share some of my adventures with you here.

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,
Â Don Wagner mentioned blood chits. There is an excellent book out called "The Last Hope" by R.E.
Baldwin. That book was just about WWII but had wonderful illustrations such as the currency kits issued to pilots. I corresponded with him for a while, sent him some Korean and Vietnam stuff and he is supposed to come out with a second book on the more recent wars sometime in the future.
Â Don mentioned Desert Storm chits. Buyer beware!
There are a lot of fake chits out there...or maybe instead of "fake" I should say chits that were designed for flight over the desert, but not specifically for Desert Storm. The DS chits had four serial numbers in red on the corners with a dotted line. Each was worth $25,000 in gold. The idea was that the pilot could snip off a corner to reward more than one person rather than hand the entire chit to a local who offered help. Text is in Arabic, Farsi and Kurdish.
Â They were controlled items and had to be signed out and in after a flight. Therefore they are fairly rare.
If you keep your eye out you might run across one. I have seen two or three offered for sale in the past 10 years.

Â On another subject, I received my IBNS Journal today. If I might give myself a plug, I thought that they did a good job on my article on propaganda leaflets, and I was happy to see that one was depicted in full color on the cover. I have one more such article ready to go because the U.S. government keeps churning out reward leaflets in the form of currency. Â At the same time, I see a major error in the "Inside IBNS" newsletter. In the "Letters to the Editor" section a writer shows a facsimile of a British pound note and claims that it is a propaganda banknote. Wrong.

Â Although it is true that the Germans produced one pound notes with Arabic or Italian text on the back, they did not produce that specific item as a banknote parody. In fact, it is the cover of a small propaganda magazine produced by the German propagandists. Someone has torn off the cover and passed it off as a propaganda banknote. Now to Be honest, I would easily pay $150 for that page because it looks like a banknote and I have that "completion" disease, but it is just a page, nothing more.

Herb Friedman

Series 003 - Number 647- 18 JUNE 2002

Memphis Show report

By Joe Boling

Â Â Well, I managed to miss the M2C2 meeting, having not looked at the program past the IBNS meetings. However, nobody said anything to me about it, either, until after the fact. It seems my absence let Fred purchase another MPC carton cheap. Â Â The show started off with a bang with the world paper auction on Thursday night. I was interested in only three lots, all of which I was able to buy, but only one was directly related to military affairs--the Thai series 8 20 baht note (the one that looks like MPC). I was recently able to acquire a group of counterfeits of several denominations of that series, so I have been looking for genuine examples of them. I discovered that they aren't easy to find, and prices are up, especially for the 20 and 100 baht notes. Fortunately, I needed only one signature variety of each. Even though I have several counterfeits, they are all the same signature pair. Â Â Much harder to find have been series 4 notes, which pre-date the war. I want them because there are some official counterfeits in that series (they were written up in the IBNS Journal several years ago and mentioned briefly in SB). I have not been able to find ANY notes in the three denominations of interest, let alone the war-time official fakes (which I expect to be much scarcer than the pre-war emissions). Do any readers have any of the official fakes? Â Â Even though I was not buying many SB notes, I was watching the results of the bidding. I had marked about fifty lots to check prices realized on for updating SB. The first one was lot 42, a Camp Hay 6 pence note (the type with all the sheep on it). Against an estimate of $1350-1850, it was hammered down at $810 to the book. This happens to be exactly 60% of the low estimate. An interesting aspect of Lyn Knight's sales is that 60% of low estimate is the minimum bid. Now, if someone placed a bid at that level on the internet, it was sold to that bidder. However, whether anyone bid on the internet or not, the lot was offered to the room at the next advance over the opener. This means that there is an advantage to internet bidding if a lot is going to sell low. The lowest price you can buy it for on the floor is not as low as you can buy it for on-line. So, if you know you are going to want a lot, and plan to attend the sale, make that first bid online before you leave home (internet bidding stops 24 hours before the live sale). Two of the five lots that I bought came to me at the first advance. I have no idea whether there were any on-line bids on them, but if not I might have had them at 60% if I had started the bidding online. Â Â Back to prices realized--the next lot was a one penny chit from the Australian Defence canteen at Camp 7. It brought $900 (all prices I report here exclude the 15% buyers fee, which would push that $900 up to $1035). I was surprised that nobody bid on the Djibouti 20 francs note (P15). The highpowered lots of Cassa Mediterranea notes seem not to have sold (we can't know for sure until the PRL is issued, which might actually be on the web site already, but I have not had time to look). The Fanning Island complete note in F/VF sold for $445, about four times the SB level. The Fiji one pound on New Zealand pound, SB1376b in chVF (but with tape marks on the corners) sold for $435, again 3-4 times SB. On the other hand, two E A Wright French Guiana 100 franc notes (SB1236a and b) sold for just about SB levels, so not everything is taking off. But--the German 1948 5 mark note as a G-G replacement in F+ sold for $850, again about four times SB. The same note with the stamped B for Berlin (not a replacement) brought $100 in EF--close to SB. The 10 and 20 mark notes with stamped B brought $120 (aEF) and $260 (AU+). The Guadeloupe E A Wright 500 francs SB 1404a and b seem not to have sold at $900 (VG/fine) and $1800 (F/VF), both levels substantially under SB. A Hong Kong $5 duress note (with added four-digit control number) sold for $390 in chVF, substantially below SB. Italian AMC 500 lire (EF/AU) and 1000 lire (aEF and aAU) sold for $200, ($180), and $250, respectively--pretty close to SB (the figure in parentheses representing a lot that may not have sold, at the 60% level). Netherlands East Indies 500 gulden SB5109 in VF with ugly graffiti brought $300 (above the low estimate), a bit above SB levels. Reunion "France Libre" 100 francs in AU/unc seemed unsold at $750, well over SB--the consignor seems to have rose-colored glasses. A Tangier 50 centime chit SB102C brought $450 in VG, six times SB before the juice. I had a couple of those back when I was still collecting north Africa; I never expected to see them at these levels. The Thai 1 baht series 8 (SB 81r) in aFine seemed unsold at $720. The 20 baht in ch EF/AU barely opened at $250, and the 100 baht in AU-unc seemed to be unsold at $390. More rose-colored glasses.

Â Â And more another day.

Â Â Â Â First POW in America Conference

By Steve Feller

Â The inaugural Conference on WWII-Era POWs will be held at the Muscatine Holiday Inn 5-8 October 2002. Supported by Muscatines Art Center, Community College, Chamber of Commerce and Convention and Visitors Bureau, the gathering offers participants an exciting list of speakers, including keynote speaker Lewis Carlson (professor emeritus of history at Western Michigan University), who with panelist Norbert Haase (a Dresden museum director) wrote "We Were Each Others Prisoners/Warten auf Freiheit", an oral history which mirrors TRACES vision and the conferences theme. Additional panelists include Heino Erichsen (once a German soldier and POW, he now heads a Texas-based international adoption agency), Howard Hong (a retired professor of philosophy who toured most Midwestern POW camps during WWII as representative of the War Prisoners Aid of the World YMCA) and Mike Waters (a Texas A & M anthropology professor who heads POW-camp excavations). The Monday Film Night will feature Sharon Young (maker of History Channels excellent [if misnamed] documentary "Nazi POWs in America"), Camilla Calamandrei (invited,) and other POW-film makers, including Steven Balvanz and Michael Schaubach of Fly-Over Films. A TRACES Bookshop will offer participants access to related yet hard-to-find materials. The University of Northern Iowa and Muscatine Community College are offering credits for college students. For more information or to REGISTER to attend, visit <http://www.eicc.edu/mcc/pows.html> or contact Kari Allen at either ksallen@eiccd.cc.ia.us or 1-888-336-3907; reach the Muscatine Chamber of Commerce at 1-800-25-PEARL.

Â Â Â Â Â Philippine Material Available

By Ray Czahor

A 1146 lot sale of Philippine Numismatic material is ready for distribution. This sale includes 33 scarce Countermarks, many ANACS, PGCS, and NGC certified coins, two 1906S Pesos, many medals including several scarce early military medals, 486 lots of Paper Money under Spanish, US, Japanese, and Central Bank including Guerilla/Emergency Currency, and 70 lots of books related to Philippine Numismatics and History.Â A significant number of lots feature WWII material.Â For quickest delivery, I can email the list and bid sheet as an attachment in Microsoft Excel 5.0/95 Workbook format.Â Please let me know if you wish to receive the list this way.Â If you want a hard copy mailed, please let me know quickly.

The POW conference sounds like an exciting event.
Feller and Smulczenski and I certainly plan to attend and hopefully Feller and Smulczenski will make presentations. This will be an opportunity to spread the word about numismatics to others interested in history who may not have ever thought of money as important numismatic relics.
To top it off, if we can get enough participation we will have a swap fest in my room on Saturday evening.
Probably we can come up with some other innovations too. What do you think?

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Memphis!!!

By by Larry Smulczesnki

Â Memphis 2002 has come and gone. Although others have addressed the subject, I feel I too have to get my two cents in about the show. The International Paper Money Show at Memphis is always a great event that quite a few collectors look forward to attending year after year. There are always great items to see on the floor and usually at least one or two new finds that are discovered or shown at this show.Â I got to Memphis about 0930 last Thursday and immediately went to the Lyn Knight Auction Lot Viewing room to review some of the treasures that would go under the hammer that night. The room was packed with several dozen folks doing the same thing I wanted to do. I had looked at the first four hundred lots and was drooling over the Cassa Mediterranea notes for Egypt, when Fred Schwan walked in and we proceeded going through the next thousand lots together. That set of notes for Egypt was every bit as spectacular as we said it was, maybe even more so. One thing that we didnt pick up on from the catalog was that the word Campione (Specimen) printed on the notes are perfectly registered from the front to the back, i.e. the back of the note has the mirror image of the front and they appear to be applied at the same time. We were not familiar with what printing process would accommodate this.Â Â Â Â The two similar sets for Greece and the Ionian Islands were also very spectacular when you view them up close. Campione is also printed on these sets in a similar manner as described above. On the Grecian set, the word Compione was also perforated into the notes preceded and followed by a star with a hole in the center. Unfortunately, it does not appear that any of these lots found new homes at the auction and probably were returned to the original owner.

Â By the way, I obtained a copy of a new Italian book that supposedly was released at Maastricht authored by Guido Crapanzano and Ermelindo Giulianini entitled La Cartamoneta Italiana. This book has lovely color photographs of selected Italian notes including these three sets and the Sudan set plus Italian AMC, the BMA set for Tripolitania, the North Africa Silver Certificates and other military notes. The perforations I mentioned above can be seen on some of the illustrations.Â This is a great book and if you have an interest in these notes you should have a copy.

Â There were other spectacular notes that we at least had a chance to examine closely. The $5 Foreign Trade Payment Certificate, the specimen set of Irish Lady Lavery notes, the Philippine Pasteups from the American Banknote Company and others were all magnificent.

Â The Auction began promptly at 1900 hours. There was the pre-auction feast that Lyn Knight always throws. It consisted of turkey breast slices and pasta cooked on site. Fantastic. The Canadian notes appeared to be very strong to me. The one piece of Canadian POW scrip in the auction was hammered at $1400 plus juice against a $750 to $1000 estimate. Thats a nice price for a chit. I did not do as well as I did in the CPMX auction.Â I did get a 1948 Special Army Currency note from Germany with a perforated B for Berlin that I didnt have, also the blue 5c FTPC chit and a group of

POW chits from Crossville, Tennessee that had a 3c value. The others I was interested in, I was outbid on.Â Â Â

Â Â Â Â I also want to mention the exhibit submitted by Gramster Marcus Turner. I believe it was entitled Financing World War II in the Soviet Union or something very close to that. Marcus showed both the colorful Russian Lottery War Bonds and the extremely rare Coupon bonds as well as the wartime lottery tickets. He did an outstanding job of researching the bonds and even had photographs of the military aircraft and tanks that appear on the bonds. He was awarded the IBNSs Amon Carter Award for the best Foreign Paper Money exhibit.Â Congratulations Marcus.

Â Â Â Â Gramster Steve Feller gave a presentation on Iowa Prisoner of War Camps at the IBNS General Membership meeting. Steve has always been interested in the Algona Camp and has done a great job of digging up information about that site. This time he had actual photographs of some of the buildings, including the canteen where the chits were used, pictures of the prisoners at work and play and a report written by the camp commander. He also showed chits from Clarinda, the other base camp in Iowa. This was the first time that chits from that location were seen by those of us in the audience. He also showed some expedient chits that were used at sub camps and overprinted on a chit from a post exchange. This was a great presentation.

Â Â Â Â Finally at the M2C2 meeting, Marvin Mericle made the announcement that his award winning MPC collection will be sold via auction possibly at next years CPMX. How can you top that for exciting news coming out of Memphis?

Â Â Â Â Â ANA NEGOTIATES LOWER HOTEL RATES

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â FOR NEW YORK CONVENTION

The American Numismatic Association (ANA) has negotiated even lower room ratesas much as 13 percentfor the two New York City hotels the Association selected for its Worlds Fair of MoneyÂ®, July 31 to August 4.

We have been successful in reducing hotel room costs even more at both the Marriott Marquis Hotel, site of the show, and the nearby Milford Plaza Hotel, says ANA convention Services Manager Brenda Bishop. There is a lot of competition among New York hotels to attract guests, which helped the ANA obtain better room rates for those coming to the show.

These reductions will apply to existing and new reservations.Â Because 96 percent of our room blocks in both hotels have been sold, I encourage those planning to attend the ANAs show in New York to make their reservation soon, Bishop adds.

Room rates at the Marriott Marquis Hotel have been reduced from $220 (single occupancy) and $240 (double) to $209 (single/double). The single/double occupancy room rate for the Milford Plaza Hotel has been reduced from $125 a night to $115.

Call the hotels directly and make reservations by July 6, 2002, to receive the ANA discounted prices. The Marriott Marquis Hotel can be reached at 212/398-1900. The Milford Plaza Hotel can be reached at 212/869-3600.

Â Bishop says her department is investigating additional hotels for those unable to acquire reservations at either the Marriott Marquis or Milford Plaza. Attendees should contact the ANA Convention Department for assistance in making alternate arrangements.

The ANA also has arranged for airfare discounts of 5 to 15 percent on Delta Air Lines (call Delta Meeting NetworkÂ® Reservations at 1-800-241-6760 and refer to File No. 182323A) and 5- to 10-percent discounts on United Airlines (call United Meeting Specialists at 1-800-521-4041 and refer to ID# 500BX).

For more information about the ANA Worlds Fair of Money 2002, contact the ANA Convention Department, 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646; fax 719/634-4085; E-mail convention@money.org; or visit the ANA web site at

I am still recovering from Memphis. I have not even looked at the treasures that I picked up there and have to crash to get ready for the seminar. It will be a great time, but at this moment it just does not seem possible that I will be able to get everything ready for this event.

Â You will hear lots more about the seminar in the days to come. If I do not make any reports leading up to it, we certainly expect to have several from Colorado Springs. One of the subtle pleasures of the event is the incredibly high-speed internet connection that is available to students. It is by far the fastest that I have ever experienced. Of course that is a minor thing compared to the opportunity to be immersed in numismatics for a full week (or two). It is indeed a great event and with the advent of the military money course, there is no excuse for you not to go! We look forward to seeing you there next year!

Dear Fred,
I don't know what you have been doing this past week or so, BUT, I am receiving the Gram in a format that's READABLE!Â Previously, it was 5-6 monitor screens wide and I had to arrow back and forth in order to read it, OR copy and paste it to something else, and it would shrink it to a 'normal' size for me to read. Thanks and don't change a thing (for my sake).

Â Â Â Â Emergency Money In Afghanistan

Submitted by Herb Friedman

The latest issue of Army Times states that due to a lack of small change in Afghanistan the the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has issued cardboard coins in the value of 5, 10 and 25 cents. The half-dollar sized coins have the denomination and text reading "Gift Certificate," and "AAFES" on one side. On the other side the denomination is shown with text "This gift certificate has a retail value of 5 cents (or 10 or 25) and is redeemable only at your BX/PX." Â What is interesting is that the PX system is worldwide and apparently any PX will accept the cardboard tokens as real money. An Army Exchange system spokesman stated that he expected many of the "pogs" to disappear as they will be considered collectables.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Chit Heads

By Tom Koch

"I will trade trade you a PFCOM Navy No. 3923 $ .05 for a PFCOM 3245 .05." What in the heck are these two military currency collectors talking about? The topic is chits; specifically those used (in this case at several Pacific Fleet Commissioned Officer Messes) at disguised U. S. Navy locations during WWII and after. Navy No. 3923 and 3245 denoted Yokosuku, Honshu, Japan and Saipan Island, Marianas Islands respectively and was the only "unit identifier" on the chits and chit books. The disguised FPO addresses were used so that if mail was captured there was no way to determine troop strength, unit location and other usable intelligence data. A listing of these disguised Navy FPO addresses is located at:
<http://www.history.navy.mil/books/OPNAV20-P1000/NN.htm>
As you may guess, I have more than a casual interest in chits. I have found it to be an excellent adjunct to collecting MPC for several reasons. First, the historical aspect of chits is that most of the time branch of service and location is identified. Other times the mess treasurer and the individual issued the chits is identified along with other notations. An example to discuss briefly is a chit book from United States Enlisted Men's Club, 17 Hupeh Road, Tsingtao, China. This is a $1.00 chit book with $.05 cent chit. Tsingtao was a major operating base of the U.S. Navy between V.J. day and some time in 1948 when the communist takeover resulted in U.S. forces leaving China. There is even a picture of the club printed on the chits. The chit book is numbered 079666 * which gives you a rough idea that there were more than a few of these issued to the sailors of the ships and stations at Tsingtao during that three year period. If you are following someone's footsteps around the world; you can often find chits from some of the bases this person was stationed at or visited.
In my case, being a Navy man, I have chits from Naval Training Center, San Diego; Norfolk, Virginia; Yokosuka, Japan; Port Everglades, Fla; Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Honolulu, Hawaii; and Treasure Island, Ca. There are many more places that I have been that I don't have chits from than those that I do. The focus of your chit collecting can be as broad or as narrow as you want. A narrow area might be collecting Red Cross Chits or Rest Camp chits. The most obvious example of a large area of chit collecting is POW chits which has the added blessing of having a comprehensive reference work by Lance Campbell and another reference book in work by Larry Smulczenski. Several ideas for focus are: branch of service (enlisted or officer), specific theater of operations, or specific units. Several narrow areas that I collect are chits identified to specific Naval vessels and chits from clubs and messes denominated in yen, lira, marks, etc. If you want to see a sampler of chits; get a copy of Ruth Hill's "Trial Listing of Military Chits". If you so desire, send me your snail mail address and I could send you a copy. Lastly, there is a unique camaraderie amongst chit collectors. Since chits and chit books are much less numerous than MPC; if you want to expand your collection; then trading is often an excellent way to do so. I have had a long term "trading" relationship with one of the gramsters. Part of the camaraderie is that you have to put up with some really bad jokes like: "Chit happens," "Chit head," and "This is no chit."

Â Thanks for reading my shameless plug to recruit some "chit heads" chit on!

For many people, the summer is a slow time with their collections. For me it is a very busy time. Starting with Memphis, my schedule is jammed. ANA Seminar then ANA convention, book projects there is no end to it! That is great! I hope to be able to make frequent reports about all of these things in the weeks to come. I hope that I will see you some where along the road and also hope that you can share some of your hobby adventures with us as Tom has above.

Dear Gram.

To all who have extended their heartfelt thanks for my father. A sincere thank you! We are expecting him to be released Monday or Tuesday, with no unforeseen complications.

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Gram
Â As any good IOWEGIAN knows, Muscatine (at J3 on the map) is south of Moscow, northeast of Fruitland, West of Illinois City, and east of Lone Tree and Nicholas. For those traveling by river, it is located at Dam #16, just up from Dam # 17 and Lake Charles. Glad to help. Rusty

Fred, Â Â Hope to be at the Co. Springs Coin Show on Saturday. Hope to get a chance to meet you. I will try to bring my 481 $1 4th printing CU for you too see if you like!
Â How about an M2C2 meeting in the Springs?
Â Â By the way I'm about 275 miles N/NE of the springs and we have been following the fires closely down there (My son is a tech director at KUSA channel 9 in Denver). If anyone has respriatory problems all that smoke would not be good for them. Over 120,000 acres have burned.Â It could get worse in the next few days with 90+ temperatures, low humidity and almost no rain.
Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,
Â A M2C2 meeting sounds like a good idea. Warner Talso is giving a talk at the show on MPC collecting. We will make that an informal M2C2 meeting. You are in charge!

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Memphis Finds

Bruce Potter (PK6)

Â Once again, I thoroughly enjoyed the Memphis show. Got to see a lot of friends and other MPC fanatics!! The attendance was great and the various types of paper money was overwhelming. As usual, the displays were magnificent!! Each display deserved an award of type or another! A salute to all the individuals who set up the displays. Â The MPC notes didn't seem as plentiful as they were in the last two Memphis shows. There were a couple of MPC notes I needed for upgrading, but the prices were more than double the listed price. I did upgrade a couple, but they were still higher than list price. My best buy of the show was a RADAR NOTE AND A FLIPPER. I found it ($5.00 note, Series 641, AU condition) amid a stack of $5.00 notes (Series 641). The serial number is: J00166100J !!! I was really surprised to find this note laying there undiscovered amid all the other notes! I missed the auction since I also had a family to entertain in he evenings (they really enjoyed Beale street). Â I also heard rumors that next years show might be moved and held in Mississippi instead of the usual Memphis show. Anybody else hear these "rumors" ? Well, it was a great show and I hope to go again next year!!!

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â More on emergency money in Afghanistan

By Jay Jackson

Well, what's the scoop on the paper substitutes for coins being used in Afghanistan??? ( See http://www.dcmilitary.com/army/pentagram/7\_22/national\_news/17256-1.html ). This location even includes photos!

Who made 'em? How many? Any on the market yet?

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Editorial

This Gram is supposed to have the story by Marv Mericle on Series 651 by Marv Mericle. Harold Kroll told me that Phil told him that Phil had received it and that it was ready to go. However, in spite of having Phils passwords, I could not find it (the article). The good news is that Phil has reported that things are getting much better with his father and that he should be released soon and therefore, Phil should be back at the helm. Presumably, that also means that we can have Marvs article very soon.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â MAIL CALL

Hello,
re Mark Watson's mail call on the BAFSV book I am beginning to feel rather embarrassed to note that it proves so difficult to get hold of this book. I donated a copy to the IBNS library as soon as it came out. I know they received it because it was awarded the David Keable Award (or something similar). What happens to these books??? Some time ago I sent a complementary copy of my book on Surinam Paper Currency which was returned for no apparent reason. (So, at least this one was returned.). I replied to one of the Grams some time back that copies can be had from Claire Lobel (Coincraft) in London or any bookstand. So, keep buying. But hurry, stock are getting very, very limited.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 651-Sunday 23 JUNE 2002

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â MPC SERIESÂ 651

by Marvin Mericle

Â Â Â I believe this series is one of the most talked, argued, and researched set of notes within the complete series of Military Payment Certificates.Â We all know that these are the same design and vignette as those of the series 641 with the only change that being the Minute Man placed on the left hand side of the face of each note.Â One must keep in mind, they were not the replacement for the series 641.Â On the contrary, they replaced the old series 611.Â Personnel assigned to Cyprus, Japan, Korea and Libya had been assigned series 611 which were in use for a little over five (5) years.Â When C day was held, only those GIs stationed in Japan, Libya, and Korea were to see the new series 651.Â Cyprus was no longer required to use Military Payment Certificates.Â The new series 651 was to have a short turn-around time for those personnel stationed in Japan, and Libya.Â In Japan, they were used for a total of 22 days, and Libya was only 45 days. Korea being the only place these notes were to be used for any length of time, April 28, 1969 to November 19, 1973.

Â Â Â Lets first look at the Minute Man vignette and its relationship to military currency.Â Concord is considered the cradle of American independence. It was the first battleground of the American Revolution, as Yankee militiamen alerted by Paul Revere, routed the British troops at the Old North Bridge along the old Lexington Road. On July 4, 1875 (the centenary of the Battles of Lexington & at the Old North Bridge), a monumentÂ would be erected (on the opposite side of the bridge). A young New England sculptor named Daniel Chester French had been commissioned to sculpture a statue to commemorate this historical event. His resulting work, the bronze Minute Man, a riveting bronze statue of a young ploughman, eyes ablaze, musket in hand, brought overnight fame to the artist. Â Â Â Mr. French was born (1850) in Exeter, New Hampshire, and reared in Cambridge and Concord, Massachusetts. His fame from the Minute Man allowed him the opportunity to study in Italy in 1876 before opening his first studio in Washington, DC, where his father was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. French traveled to Paris, made the friendship of Saint Gaudens, (those who are coin collectors will know this name) and executed the arresting statue of GENERAL LEWIS CASS for the Capitol in Washington.Â French executed numerous public sculptures among his most successful works is the gigantic seated figure of Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. French died (1937) at the age of 82 in Stockbridge, Massachusetts. Â Â Â Lets now take a look at the fractionals of this series.Â As everyone who is collecting a complete MPC set knows, this is one of the most expensive of all the fractionals.Â The sets ( 5, 10, 25, and 50 cent) are currently only available in CU condition.Â At this time there is a total of eighty (80) complete sets known.Â These notes can tell a story all by themselves. We need to look back in time to 1965 when these were ordered from the BEP by the Army.Â Â Â The United States had just removed all precious metal from our coinage.Â There was a shortage of coins for circulation (1965-1967).Â By the time this series was put in place, coins could be used anywhere without being hoarded, therefore it is my belief that is one reason the fractional notes were never placed in circulation.Â Now then, the notes had been shipped to the various locations, and were most likely stored during the use of this series.Â At that time, anyone having access to these notes could very well exchange some of their mpc bills for the fractionals.Â The only requirement for paymasters was to account for the total dollar value of funds assigned.Â Also, when this series was no longer required to be used, that was the end of MPCs for these countries.Â Were the notes destroyed at the facilities where located, or were they shipped to a central location and then destroyed?Â The military didnt keep very good records of this information because when it was discontinued ( C day), it was no longer considered negotiable currency, and anyone having same was not able to exchange it for ( in this case) US currency. Maybe one of the GRAM recipients was in the military and assigned to one of these areas when C day was held, and can shed some light on how the series was destroyed.Â Â Â Â Â It has now been almost thirty years since this series of notes were used by the Military.Â Anyone who was in service and received the fractionals were not sure they could release them, to the public for sale, without being charged by the government for something. If that person was retired from the service, they could not be sure that the government wouldnt come along and charge them and thereby lose their retirement pay.Â Also, there was the possibility that they would get court-martialed for their taking of these notes.Â With the addition of time, and current military views concerning Military Payment Certificates, I feel we will be seeing all that is out there within the next few years.Â Â Â Â Â Â Note: Anyone owning a set of series 651 fractionals who would like to share their ownership with me, please send me the serial numbers of your notes!!!Â I try to maintain records of owners and have records for the past fifteen years.Â I do not release the names of owners, only the total quantity and serial numbers of the notes known. You may email the information to: marv626@att.net.Â Â Â Â Â Â ThanksÂ Â Marv

Well Marv and Phil BOTH emailed me the missing column that Marv sent three weeks ago. We certainly apologize to Marv for the late delivery, but we are excited about the nice story and hope that he will send many more. Also reading his story inspired a few research lines that I had not thought of before. Based upon Marvs inspiration, I hope to have some new information in the next few days.

Dear Gram,

Having never been to the Memphis show before, I was eagerly anticipating lots of notes and meeting some fellow collectors.Â Let me say that I was not disappointed, in fact, I was very impressed with the show and was able to fill a lot of empty spots in my collection.

Â I always enjoy talking to Fred and he introduced me to Gene Hessler, Larry Ski and Dave Seeley (thanks for the great MPC info and the notes).

I was also able to meet a few other collectors/researchers and learned a great deal about paper money.

Â For me it was a worthwhile experience.

Â On another note (no pun intended), in a recent gram Tom Koch talked about "chits."Â Would the gram have his e-mail or snail mail address?

Â I would like to contact him.

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,

Â Thanks for the nice letter. We will consider sending Toms email address to you, and I know that Tom is willing for you to have it because he included it in his article. However, editors are a greedy lot. We (I) took Toms address out of the article, because we want readers to respond here in the Gram for the benefit of everyone! Not subtle perhaps, but effective.

Fred

Dear Gram and Theo,

Both the BAFSV and the Suriname books are in my donation to ANA. However, if IBNS had a copy of the former and it was deposited with the US librarian, it should be there already. If it went to the European librarian, then it is in Italy.

Â Â There is no David Keable award for books at the IBNS international level. This award might be made by the London Chapter, and the book may therefore have been deposited with their library (if they have one) or the European library. Joe

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Boling Commentary

A No time for a real column today. I depart for the seminar in less than twenty four hours and have far too much to do in that time. Of course Fred and I are looking forward to the seminar, but at this moment it is more the work that I am thinking about than the fun.

Â We will certainly try to make daily reports from the seminar.

I see that I got a little sloppy yesterday. I did not advance the Gram number to 652 from 651. It was a particularly confusing day to make that mistake because the lead story was about Series 651 which WAS supposed to be in Gram 651. I am sure that my error caused some confusion. Oh well, possibly someday a numismatic bibliophile will try to make a list of Grams and get it all straight, or perhaps he/she will not.

A If you are going to be a student in the seminar, please bring a few or any items from your collections that might be of interest to the class. We will be happy to have you explain them, or, if you do not know enough about them, possibly someone will. Warner Talso and David Seelye are bringing some things. I hope that the rest of you will too. Not only can I use a break, but, trust me, you will probably also want a break FROM me!

Fred

Dear Gram,
Tom, The Tsingtao chits were later than May of '46 when I left there to come home. I've noticed several chit ads in the past couple of months from units we were with and to my knowledge they were after this time. We used small stores on the Boxer for our uniform purchases and when we wanted ice cream made from something other than the powdered milk our cooks tried to foist off on us. As I recall there were the Boxer, Antietam, a couple of cruisers and four Cans in the task force there at that time, I was on the Blue, DD 744. All the best

The War Bond Story

Attention was turned to the Four Freedoms and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was asked to try out a separate stamp on each home, a New England cottage; school, a building; religion, a church steeple; and government, the capitol dome. These were shown to the Secretary who remarked "I think they are terrible." So the search went on. One evening I was having dinner with Graves and Odegard at the Cosmos Club. The discussion turned to the subject of a symbol. I suggested the idea of using the Statue of Liberty with the American flag in the background. Both Graves and Odegard objected for the reason that the people didn't associate the statue with defense or war. Probably to some she doesn't, but to me she represents much more than liberty and freedom. She has said, "Goodbye, come back soon," to thousands and thousands of American soldiers, and when they return, she has always greeted them with her arms outstretched. You see, I know, for she said it to me as I stood at the rail of the troop ship bound for France in the early part of World War I. Two years later, wounded and just able to hobble on crutches, I met her again as our hospital ship sailed into the harbor. Odegard then brought up the idea of using Daniel Chester French's famous statue of the MinuteMan. He explained that it was definitely American; that its use in school textbooks, the country over, made it familiar to the public; and that it was a civilian and not a military device. My only question was, would it fit as a symbol if we got into war. Anyway, Graves and the Secretary approved it and for over 30 years it has been the symbol of the Defense, War and Savings Bonds programs. On April 19, 1941, the 166th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, the first shipments of Defense Savings stamps, bearing the slogan, "America on Guard" were shipped to post offices throughout the country, with the stamp albums.

I am hitting the road today heading toward Colorado Springs and the Summer Seminar. I am excited, but also frazzled. I am far from ready and only a few hours to go. The good news is of course that the moment I pull away from the curb, I will be caught up. I expect to receive and send email most days somehow. Once at the seminar, a wonderful internet connection is available, enroute I will have to use initiative. In addition, I expect to leave my cell phone on for most of the time that I am gone, do not hesitate to call me especially for a hot deal (419) 349-1872. However, I am not reliable about checking messages on the cell phone. Please do leave a message, but call back later anyway! I have prepared most of the next two Grams. I am not sure if Phil or I will be sending them, but you can count on them and we count on your support for articles, letters, complaints and the like! Fred

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â MAIL CALL
Dear Editor (AKA, Fred The Delegator)
Â In response to the inquiry yesterday, my presentation on MPC is scheduled for Saturday, July 6 at 2 PM at the City Auditorium, Kiowa Street, Colorado Springs (where the local coin show is). It is scheduled for 30-45 minutes, including questions. Lacking any other guidance, I am pitching it to an audience that knows numismatics, but probably is unfamiliar with MPC.Â Larry - and any other Gramsters -Â will be very welcome.Â I can use the moral support and assistance, if I get in trouble.

Warner

Dear Gram (Fred),
Â Okay, I get the message.Â I wanted to inquire of Tom if he had any info or any "chits" from any of the following Navy Ships:Â USS Mahan County LST 912; USS Askari ARL 30 or the USS Fred T Berry DD 858. Secondly, I recently came into possession of a Post Exchange coupon book (mint condition) from the Pennsylvania State Military Reservation at Mt. Gretna, PA.Â The book has a total value of $2.00 with twenty 5 cent chits and ten 10 cent chits inside.Â Any info would be appreciated.

Roger Urce

Dear Roger (Tom),
Â Bravo, this was perfect application of the power of the Gram. One Gramster writes an article, another responds with a question and we all learn. Wonderful.

Fred

Page 398, Series #541 $10 onÂ "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Predictions and Observations

by Larry Smulczenski

Six months have now gone by since we made our numismatic predictions for the year. At the Memphis show, several announcements or discoveries were made that sort of fit right into those predictions that I made for the year 2002. So I think it is about time to put on the old St. Louis Cardinal baseball cap and pull Ms. Prudy's old bowling ball from under the bed and see how Professor Thurski is doing.

Prediction 1. Lets start off with a fairly safe one. I predict that a new major collection will come on the market this year. Now, I'm not copping out and considering the fabulous Leo May replacement collection that is being auctioned by Lyn Knight at CPMX in late February, early March. I'm talking about a collection that no one expected to be sold at this time. I feel this fairly certain based on the history of the many collections that have been sold over the years. Fred Schwan can spend all night telling you stories about the fantastic collections of Elmer Smith, Jerry Voigt and Alex Kesselman that were sold. So you can bet on this one, it's in the bag.

Status 1. Well it looks like the old bowling ball hit this one right on the nose. We heard at Memphis that the fabulous, award winning MPC collection of Marv Mericle will go on the auction block either late this year or early next year. Those of you that have been around for awhile will remember that this is the collection that Marv had stolen from him a couple of years ago and miraculously recovered intact and undamaged. Marvin was away from home for Christmas of 1998 (don't quote me on the date) when some crooks entered his house through the garage and peeled open his safe. They took the entire MPC collection plus some other of Marvin's collections and made off with them. I feel that Marv was resigned to the fact that he would never see his cherished notes again. But, one day he got a call from the FBI in Pittsburgh asking him to go and identify his collection. It was recovered in a hoard of stolen property, complete and great shape. Most of the other collectibles taken were never found. The thieves were apprehended and served, I believe a year in jail. Amazing isn't it? They are probably out now, ripping off someone else. Anyway Marvin has exhibited this collection on numerous occasions and won awards with it. It also was used to illustrate the latest edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates by Fred Schwan. In other words, Marv's notes make up most of the plate notes for this book. More details will be upcoming about the sale, but you can go to the bank with this one. Better yet, you better start putting money in that bank, so you can participate in this auction.

Prediction 2. Another one that I feel pretty confident about is that there will be a major new discovery made in military currency this year. By that I mean something like a previously unknown MPC replacement note or a brand new Specimen Book. Nearly all the unknown replacements have been found but a few are still unknown. It seems that we get a major find at least once each year, so I'm comfortable with this one.

Status 2. This is another one that the old Prof. hit right on the head pin with the old bowling ball. This is one I had a hard time believing, but it appears that one of the Festers has come up with a Fourth Printing $5 Series 481 note. All the records that we saw at the Bureau indicated that no $5 or $10 notes were printed during the fourth printing. We have not seen this note yet except for a scan, so there is more to come, but it sure looks good and even has a "4 with serif" in the position number and is a higher than published serial number. What a shocker!

Prediction 3. I also feel certain in predicting that a major military fiscal collectable will come out of the war in Afghanistan. We all know that there are propaganda leaflets being dropped all over the country. There should at least be one of them that is a safe conduct pass with the image of a banknote on one side. There could also be "Wanted" leaflet for Osama with a bounty on his neck. Or possibly could we see the reoccurrence of a money substitute such as a chit or token? As the press virtually litters the landscape with U.S. dollars, and more and more of them get into the black market and opium market, there is a good chance that we may see a money substitute.

Status 3. Boy, this one just popped up in the Gram this past week. The BX/PX in Afghanistan is using coin substitutes, because of a shortage of small change. Now that has to be an exciting new announcement.

Prediction 4. Our government issued a Patriot Bond by overprinting an already issued Series EE bond. I predict that someone in the Treasury Department will wake up and redesign these bonds to encourage our population to invest in them. Something with patriotic vignettes--Statue of Liberty, Liberty Bell, Minutemen etc. I've noticed a surge of interest in bonds. Because of this interest, look for some major discoveries in the coming year.

Status 4. This one has been a gutter ball so far. The Patriot Bonds are definitely out there, but are simply the Series EE bond with the "Patriot Bond" overprint. Nothing new and exciting as of yet.

Prediction 5. I feel we have not heard the end of the 691/701 discoveries. Look for the troika to come up with another major item, possibly a set of specimens or progressive proofs.

Status 5. The old bowling ball is three quarters of the way down the alley and heading for that 1-3 pocket on this one. I saw some really great stuff at Memphis, not specimens or progressive proofs, but stuff that will knock your socks off. However, I will let the holder write about his find before the old Professor takes credit for it. There was an announcement at the M2C2 meeting that Mr. 691 has promised a nice surprise for every attendee at Fest Four (ForeFest). So you better get your reservations in early.

Prediction 6. The Gram is now almost two years old, and the number of subscribers increases weekly, however the number of overseas subscribers is limited. I predict that the Gram will gain a huge number of overseas subscribers during the coming year and even be translated into several other languages.

Status 6. Well, what can I say. No foreign language grams yet. Matter of fact, we've had some hard times getting it out in English. But the gram is going out to recipients in England, Denmark, Italy, Canada, Germany, Australia and a few more places I don't know about. Not bad considering...

Prediction 7. The following is a prediction that has to have a lot going for it to come to pass, but I will predict that your editor will turn over a new leaf and organize his office. While doing so he will uncover many valuable notes that belong to other collectors that have been misplaced in the black hole for years. He will even find the item he had promised to sell and send to Ms. Prudy which she wanted to give to me a couple years ago for my 39th birthday. This is a tough one.

Status 7. As I said, this is a tough one. The operative phrase in this prediction, is "turn over a new leaf." We did hear that Ms Judy had hired a new lawn boy that was raking up the leaves in the front lawn and that Fred had even ventured outside and picked one up. Now whether he turned it over or not, who knows, but he told me that he did buy some new shelves for his office, that would get some of the books up off the floor and allow you to at least walk into the room. That in itself is progress. To top that off, I overheard him tell Ms. Prudy that he had an envelope with something in it for my this years 39th birthday and that is still over a month away. Usually he is overnighting it the day before. So maybe the old Prof. is on to something.

Prediction 8. Gary Hicks will finally find the "fours" he has so faithfully been pursuing. He may have to take up golf as a secondary avocation, and run from course to course, fairway to fairway chasing this well known golfing term.

Status 8. I haven't seen Gary since Fest Three. He said something about passing on the "fours" because there was something else in his interest. But one thing we know for sure is that he is a full fledged collector now and I'm sure that he will be at ForeFest.

Prediction 9. And finally I predict that the Thurski column will be nominated for and win a Nobel Prize for Literature. Please don't bet the homestead on that one!

Status 9. The old Prof. not only threw a gutter ball on that one, I think it bounced over into the next alley. But really Gramsters, we appreciate all of you that we saw at Memphis that said you enjoyed the column and realized the time and effort that goes into it.

So there it is, really pretty good prognosticating if I have to say so myself. Any comments?

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Â
Fred

I HAVE RECEIVED AN OFFICIAL REQUEST FROM MPC FESTER LARRY SMULCZENSKI FOR A REPLACEMENT PAYBOOK TO BE DELIVERED TO HIM DURING OPERATIONS IN MEMPHIS TENNESEE ON JUNE 14TH, 2002.Â LOSS OF SAID PAYBOOK IS DEEPLY

DISTURBING GIVEN RULE #1 STATES RETAIN ON YOUR PERSON AT ALL TIMES.Â PLEASE ADVISE FESTERS TO MAINTAIN POSESSION OF PAYBOOKS AT ALL TIMES.

THE LATE DATE AT WHICH THE REQUEST WAS PRESENTED IS A SIGNIFICANT PROBLEM.Â NO DEMAND FOR PAYBOOKS WERE ANTICIPATED UNTIL OPERATIONS IN COLORADO SPRINGS AT THE END OF JUNE.Â STANDARD DOCUMENT STOCK IS ON ORDER, HOWEVER DELIVERY IS NOT ANTICIPATED FOR ANOTHER 10 DAYS.

FOR THIS REASON THE FINANCE AUTHORITY WAS FORCED TO UTILIZE ALTERNATIVE STOCK FROM THE LONG TERM STORAGE
CENTER FOR THE CREATION OF THE REPLACEMENT PAYBOOK. WHILE WE DO NOT EXPECT REQUESTS FOR MORE REPLACEMENT PAYBOOKS, SUFFICIENT STOCK HAS BEEN SECURED OUT OF THE STORAGE FACILITY TO ACCOMMODATE FUTURE NEEDS.

WHAT KIND OF PANZIE WOULD LOOSE THEIR PAYBOOK ANYWAYS?

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of Series 472 .50 cent notes.Â The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

Page 207, #833/4Â - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns)Â line 5

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D(end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 onÂ "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Seminar Scholarship Update

This years recipients for 2002 are:

David is well known (sometimes notoriously) within the military numismatics community over the past few years. His expertise is varied across the different permutations of military numismatics. He collects MPC Fest Money, military training money and perhaps best known for his obsession with SOS notes. Dave will certainly be a contributor to the content of the course.

Frank Clark
Carrollton, Texas

Frank is the President of the Society of Paper Money Collectors and has been involved in too many numismatic organizations to mention. It will be exciting to have the leadership of SPMC involved in the course.

At last count there were 10 persons enrolled in the course. It should be a GREAT event.

Overall it has been a very successful year for the scholarship thanks to the contributions of everyone. Please take a look at the donor list and take time to recognize/patronize/support those who support our community.

Do Not Put Off Until Tomorrow
By Howard A. Daniel III

Whenever I am on a trip in the U.S. or overseas, I carry my IBM ThinkPad and/or Palm with my Outlook address file in it. At each location, I often do a search on that area in my file and see who lives within a short distance. I do not have a telephone number for everyone, so when I have none, I take a taxi to the address and knock on the door. Most of the collectors are very enthusiastic about my visiting them, and all of the rest are at least happy about it. The enthusiastic ones are those who have no one else to share their collecting addiction with, and here walks in Howard looking for something to look at and they almost handcuff me to a chair. Here in Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon), I found Keith Brewer and John Baldry in my file. Nothing is usually easy here in Southeast Asia, so I hired a motorcycle to drive me to Keith Brewer's address, which was an international school. The first person told me that he had transferred to another school, so I asked for the address. When I saw it was half way to Bien Hoa in a foreign industrial park, I asked them to please call there and ask for him. When they did, they found he had resigned and gone back to somewhere in the United States. No points for me with this collector. I gave my driver the second address for John Baldry, which was a computer school. It was on a side street that was almost an alley, so it took awhile to find it. Riding a motorcycle saved me a lot of time trying to make u-turns and walking down narrow streets! When I got to the school, the receptionist told me he had transferred to another branch of the school. The address she gave me was near the international school, so we almost retraced our drive across the city. When I walked up to the receptionist and asked for John, she started crying. What did I do or say wrong? A young man came up to her and asked what was wrong. He then told me that John had died and his Thai wife had left the country with his remains. Wow, this was really bad. Last year when I was here, I put off seeing both of these collectors and told myself that I will see them next time. Now I know that when I have time, I must make an effort to visit every collector within a reasonable distance of my hotel. There is no telling how much time I have left here, let alone the other collectors and/or researchers. I am still in Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) and using an Internet cafe to write this to you. I have been doing tons of research and collecting for myself and a little for some others too, but I have also just about completed the paperwork to buy a townhouse here. At a later date, I will be living in it during the U.S. cold months of the year, and living in my Chesapeake Bay House in Virginia during the warm months. What a life! My next stop after Viet Nam is Memphis for the International Paper Money Show, so I hope to see all of you there!

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

"list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 onÂ "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.
They should be the same price.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Yesterday I received three copies of Gram 655; I did not, however, receive a copy of 654 if one was sent.

Thanks,

Hello Roger,
Â Thanks for the notice. We examined the situation and determined that somehow 654 did not go out to everyone so we sent it out again. You should have received it yesterday.

MPC Discussion Ends Today
ANA Summer Seminar
Colorado Springs, CO

A The trading in Series 100 AFC (Allied F&E Certificates) continues to be spirited. A David Seelye has not yet realized his goal of owning ALL the certificates, but continues his quest. The old-timers tolerate David's obsession with amusement and the new-comers look on with puzzlement and not a little apprehension of what crazy world they have got themselves into.

Upcoming ANA Convention in NYC

Å I have seen several wrong dates for this convention, to include in the MPC Gram.Å July 30 is PNG Day and you will need an invitation from a PNG-member dealer to attend, so it is not the first day of the ANA.
 July 31 is the first day of the ANA.Å You will need no invitation, or will it cost you anything to attend it and its events.Å The first day has no event of interest to me, but I do have to set up and man a joint club table for Numismatics
 International/International Bank Note Society (NI/IBNS). Throughout the convention, I invite all Gramsters to visit the table in a hallway outside the bourse.Å You can leave messages there, meet others there, make it your home at the convention, etc.Å You can also volunteer a couple of hours at the table for me so I can also visit the bourse, or even join one or both of the societies.

The second day is August 1 and there are several interesting events. The first is the Numismatic Literary Guild (NLG) Symposium at 10AM in the Ziegfeld Room. Many of the writers you know in the MPC Gram and other numismatic publications are members of this organization. Then there is the Singapore Mint Press Conference at 11AM in the Gilbert Room. My area is Southeast Asia and many of the people working at this mint are friends of mine, so I cannot miss their press conference. At 1PM in the Ziegfeld Room is the Numismatic Bibliomania Society (NBS) Symposium. If you like numismatic references of any kind, this is the society for you.Â My fellow members have found many important references for me over many years. Check these people out!

Â Then the ANA Life Members Reception at 4:40PM in the Sky Lobby on the 16th floor.Â This is a nice extra benefit for life members and I have introduced myself to many numismatic greats at these receptions.Â The World Series of Numismatic - Young Collectors is at 6PM in the O'Neill Room.Â I have taken a special interest in seeing how I can bring more new collectors into numismatics and especially into areas of my interest. You can do this at other shows and conventions too.

Â The last event of the day is the infamous NLG Bash at 9:30PM in the Cantor Room.Â You can attend this without being a member but you need to buy a ticket that day or one of the few that will be available at the door.Â Â This is a great numismatic event and you will meet many numismatic writers there who are also regular writers for the MPC Gram!

Â The second day of the ANA is Friday, August 2. Besides manning the NI/IBNS table, I will also attend the NBS meeting at 11:30AM, where I can again meet many numismatic book collectors.Â Krause and Mishler of Krause Inc. fame are giving a talk about their life in numismatics at 1PM in the Empire Room. Did I hear that they sold the company to someone? Then there is ANA Membership Reception at 2:30PM on the 16th floor in the Sky Lobby. One of my favorite people is Chuck Optiz of the International Primitive Money Society.Â This society's meeting is at 2:30PM in the Ziegfeld Room and Chuck is always interesting and has something new for me to learn about Southeast Asia.Â Then I am back to the NI/IBNS club table for the rest of the day or on the bourse, if I can find someone to man the table for me.

Â Saturday morning on August 3 is my busiest day of the convention.Â I am moderating both the NI and IBNS meetings!Â IBNS has their meeting at 11AM in the Olmstead Room and it is followed at noon by the NI meeting.Â I would very much like to see members from both societies and Gramsters attend both meetings. You will find many new friends at both meetings!Â I will try to attend the SPMC meeting at 10AM, but if I do, I will have to skip out early to set up for NI and IBNS.Â The YN Exhibiting Program meeting at 2PM on the 7th floor balcony is another place where I can learn how to help new and/or young collectors to get started in numismatics. This afternoon is when I usually schedule to meet collectors coming to the convention.

Â Then it is back to my room to change into a suit when the bourse is closed. Yes, I do own a suit. The ANA Reception starts at 7PM in the foyer outside the Marquis Ballroom for an hour. This event and the banquet require a ticket!Â Then the ANA Banquet starts at 8PM inside the ballroom. My seat is usually at the same table with several Gramsters and with Nancy Green, the ANA Librarian. Nancy is a great lady to know as a friend and she can also help you find that reference you need from ANA Library, which also now include the U.S. part of the IBNS Library.Â There are always several gifts for the attendees and I have found the gifts to equal the cost of the ticket, and often beat the cost!Â It is a great time, and I am often surprised that the food and drink are good too.

Â The last day of the convention is Sunday, August 4. It is a short day and close down starts at noon, so do not plan to see anyone for any length of time on this day.Â I will be packing up the NI/IBNS stuff at the club table and taking it to my Honda CR-V and driving home to Virginia.Â I will be home that night and working on my Southeast Asia column for World Coin News before midnight.Â That is if I am still employed as a writer by the new owners of Krause Publications, if they have been sold.

SEE YOU AT THE ANA!

Today was another exhilarating day at the MPC Seminar. (See Warner's report above). A possibly interesting variety was found by sharp eyed David Seelye when he was studying MPC Series 481 replacements. He noticed some inconsistencies in the serial numbering. Then he and Joe (Boling) interrupted the class by examining the discovery piece and other available examples. It seems that on at least some notes the final four digits of the serial number are different than any others that have ever been observed. Furthermore on this same note and a few others the serial number numerals are grouped into two units rather than being consistent. Let me try again.

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach

Day 3 ANA Summer Session
Colorado Springs, CO

Â Today we discussed AMC.Â There was a particularly stimulating discussing on AM Marks and how disagreements with the Soviets affected the course of the Cold War. Â The Finance Office was open from 0430 to 0440 this morning purchasing AFC (Allied Fests Certificates). This announcement was made at 0900.Â Â There was considerable disgruntlement among the students.Â As a result there was a partial travel pay that eased the financial burdens of those involved. Trading of notes was furious. Be advised there were no serial number 2s.

Â This evening we were treated to an outstanding presentation by Joe Boling on Counterfeiting World Paper Money. Joe displayed many counterfeit notes along side corresponding genuine notes.Â It was an extremely effective way of demonstrating the many ways of creating counterfeit notes.Â Â He covered the following major areas:Â Why make counterfeits?Â Purposes range from defrauding the public to to undermining an economy to defrauding collectors! Approaches to counterfeiting include those hastily done by amateurs, to those done carefully by professionals to those using the actual original processes done by governments.Â Examples demonstrated the range of effectiveness of the various methods. Kinds of counterfeits include raised notes done by pen and ink, to face to back switching.Â Modern counterfeiters can cope with security features such as watermarks and physical inclusions in the paper.Â As Joe says, "what one person can invent, another can copy."

Report from Colorado Springs

Â Â Being here at ANA to teach the Military Numismatics course for a week, my mind has been on military notes more than usually. Herewith reports of new finds in this field.

Â Â From Memphis, a new version of the US $10 1934 Italian propaganda note, SB411, p397 (serial F05934811A with Italian back). It appears that there must be at least six versions of this piece (plus the one(s) of the same serial with the Arabic back(s)). Fred and I have now seen Italian pieces with three codes on the lower left back: I/2 (this newly discovered piece), I/5, and I/6. The text on this piece starts "Corispos?o agli emigrati...." The ? in the first word falls on a damaged spot (the overall grade is "very wretched"). Does any reader have a better example of this piece? Â Â Another new piece is a British pound (SB page 165) with the face of SB191/193, but a new message in Arabic. This one has nine lines of text and no code number/letter. Â Â Yet another is a North Vietnamese 50 xu note (being away from my library I can't look it up to see whether it is actually NVN, VC, or some other entity--the lead line of the title is Uy Ban Trung Uong). It is stamped on the back, in a large rectangle, COMPLIMENTS OF / THE ROBIN HOODS, with a shield in the center bearing 173rd AHC on a ribbon running lower left to upper right, a crossbow at lower right on the shield, and an unidentifiable device (a seashell?) at upper left on the shield. I assume this is 173rd Assault Helicopter Co. In Ray Bows' first edition of his Vietnam Lore book in the ANA library, there is no 173rd AHC listed as serving in VN. This would have to be the organic company assigned to the 173rd Airborne Brigade, a separate brigade that served in An Khe (if I am remembering Bows' writeup accurately). Now, does this really qualify as a propaganda note? The only people likely to understand the overstamp are those who prepared and subsequently dropped it. I wonder if the notes bearing the stamp could still be used in the economy by finders, or if they had to turn them in or hide them to avoid reprisals from the VC/NVA (not to mention reprisals from the ARVN if they were caught with the pieces in any form).

 Don't forget that Warner Talso will be giving an MPC talk Saturday afternoon at the Colorado Springs coin show. If you can't make it to that, there is also the main museum exhibit on the American Indian, including some series 692 MPC

Editorial

Yesterday I started the editorial this way: "Today was another exhilarating day at the MPC Seminar. (See Warner's report above)." Well, I can see no reason to change that intro because it is 100% true.
 Warner exaggerated that travel pay was issued BECAUSE of the complaints. That is hardly the case. It was paid because it was due, but, yes, the troops were pleased to receive it (the pay).
 One exciting discovery in the travel pay was discovered by Robert Kutcher. It was a 200 yen star note serial number 00000002*. Nice to be sure and David Seelye tried hard to obtain the note for a collector who collects number two notes. However, the number two was not the discovery nor the exciting part. The note is a mismatched denomination and even that is an understatement. The large denomination on the face and back both clearly state the 200 yen denomination. However, the other denominations on the face are 20, yes TWENTY!
 The discovery sent Seelye on a quest. He found one other 200 yen star in the hands of students. (His own hands!) It had the same mismatched denominations! He then searched all other available 200 yen notes (not too many available as the top denomination) and found that all of the pieces available for examination had correct matches. The error appears to be only on the stars AND on all stars, but that is not at all certain.
 Comments from finance authorities about the source of the error and any possibly impact on the integrity of the series were not available at press time.
 On other matters, the value of the yen dropped steadily through the day. Max, the only young numismatist in the course, observed that this drop in the value of the yen might necessitate a move on the part of finance authorities. Again, no comments were available from finance headquarters.

Fred

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,
 Sounds like you are having a great time in Colorado Springs. I reminds me of a true story that you might want to relay to those in attendance. While I was stationed at the Air Force Academy back in the early 70's I received a call from a person who was stationed at Fort Carson that they had some military scrip for sale. I had a small collection of MPC at that time but I was always looking for new pieces to add to my collection. I thus paid them a visit.
 To make a long story short, I purchase almost a full 100 piece pack of every denomination of one series. I don't recall the series without checking my records stored in my garage. I saved about 10 notes of each denomination for my collection and turned around and sold the balance of the lot to I believe one of the Gramsters who I believe was stationed in Ft. Leavenworth at the time. Hindsight says I should have saved all the notes. On the other hand I was about to get married and I could not afford to have this amount invested in, at that time, a relatively unknown part of the hobby. I still have the notes and others in my safe deposit box and still married to the same wonderful person for 29 years.

See you in New York City.
Gary Lewis ANA Vice President
Dear Gary,
Â Series 681, thank you.

Fred
(former Leavenworth Kansas resident)

Allied Fest Certificate Series 100 C Yen Withdrawn

Â No details are available at press time about the new issue of money.

Harold"Mpckid"Kroll

note. The fractionals had the same design using different colors for the four different values. The one dollar note has a nice vignette on the face but the back has a gorgeous scene of Mt. Rainier and Mirror Lake. The five dollar is basic brown in color utilizing some of the scroll work around the vignette as in the fractionals with a full figure vignette. Out of the new designs the 661 ten dollar note was a standout with it's vibrant red and orange colors combined with a semi-nude bare chested vignette.

standing vignette on the left end of the note with the dollar amount in XX in the oval on the right side of the note. Basic Information on the 661 series:

Face 50c: aqua and pale reddish orange, orange-red numerals. Back: orange-red and aqua. 10,080,000 notes printed by G. F. C. Smillie. Back: red and brown. The lady is in Victorian garb and is examining rose blossoms with the remainder of the bouquet in her lap. The $5 back female head was engraved by Marcus W. Wickcliffe. 7,200,000 notes printed

Face $10: aqua, orange and red. $10 face is Union and Civilization was engraved by G.F.C. Smillie (same design as used on large-size twenty dollar National Bank Notes / Third Charter Period/ Series 1902).
Back: orange and red. Ceres, based on Antique Poesy by J. Lefebvre, was engraved by G. F. C. Smillie.
4,800,000 notes printed
Face $20: Female was engraved by F.T. Howe, Jr.
The (Back) is engraved by G.F.C. Smillie tentatively titled "The Bouquet". The image depicts a woman in a rose garden picking flowers.
It was also used on the Bank of Philippine Island 50 peso note series of 1912-1928, as well as the Potato revenue stamp of 1935.
This note is gray and tan in color. 8,000,000 notes printed
The above information was graciously provided by Marvin Mericle, thanks Marv.

Another very interesting bit of information overlooked by many collectors.
The face of the fractional denominations and the back of the twenty dollar certificates are the only MPC without the legend "Military Payment Certificate" and a restrictive use clause.

Use of this series was the second shortest, nine months plus, with issue 461 being the shortest used series, five months plus. With the war escalating to its peak, printing of notes was increased to supply the needs of the military. Series 661 ranks fourth in amount of notes printed and delivered for regular issues and sixth in printed replacement notes. Keep in mind that this does not mean all regular and replacement notes were issued or used.

This brings up another interesting topic for discussion. Series 661 was printed in one printing for regular issues. There are however, 3 denominations with replacement notes from the second printed unit of replacements, 25 cent (12), dollar (6) and twenty dollar (2). It's kind of strange that of the only two twenty dollar notes known that they would be in consecutive serial number order. Who may have saved them and why. What caused a second printing and why only three denominations surfaced to date.
These questions remain unanswered at this time but with more research being done at the BEP and fellow collectors, the answers may be found one day.

About 3 years ago I was on Ebay and ran across a lot up for auction that contained two 661 twenty dollar replacement notes, in consecutive order. I watched this lot for 3 to 4 days and no one had placed a bid. I placed a bid and had second thoughts after doing so, it was a pretty good size bid. A day or so later I got a call from Fred Schwan asking me if I really knew what I was bidding on. I replied, two 661 twenty dollar replacement notes, was not sure of myself at the time on the bid I had placed or the importance of these two notes, buyers remorse so to speak, but he changed my thinking in just about a nano second.

He explained that these two notes had been reported as known but no one knew exactly where they were. To my surprise these were the only two replacement notes known from the second replacement printing and still remain the only two reported today. Well, the notes came home to LABH and stayed as a pair for some time, another collector now has one in his collection.

That's a great story for another time. A few months after this took place, the first MPC Fest was held in Port Clinton, Ohio. While there I had the privilege to hold in my hands and DROOL over the only known progressive proof set of the 661 series, all 72 pieces, what a sight to see.

I did try to negotiate a deal to purchase this set but could not come to terms with the owner, have discussed since but still no deal. To top this off, at the CAA Auction in Chicago this past February there was the only known specimen set of 661 notes up for auction. The notes had remnants of a heavy yellow looking glue on the back sides, quite ugly in fact, from being glued possibly in a scrap book or? The fifty cent note had bled through from the back enough that the note was damaged. The ten dollar and twenty dollar notes looked like they had shrunk in size from so much glue being applied to them.

Yes, I bid on the set but someone wanted it more than I did and it did not come home, sigh. I've had the privilege to hold and examine the very rare specimen and progressive proof sets and tried to add them to my collection, maybe one day.

Â The 661 series is very exciting in its own right, still having many unanswered questions with the possibility ofÂ finding an unknown replacement for the other denominations and who knows what else. From my own past experiences, always be on the look out for something new.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Day 4 ANA Summer Session
Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Colorado Springs, CO

by Warner Talso

Â A very intense day.Â We are all on information overload.Â Some of you may think this is no different than a FEST or other information packed event, but you are wrong.Â This is quality overload.Â We started with Japanese puppet emissions by Joe.Â Then moved to Japanese Invasion Money (JIM) and on to Japanese colonial issues.Â Be advised that Joe has the largest, most extensive collection of Japanese homeland issues in existence.Â It boggles (that is a technical term) the mind.

Â As if that were not enough, Joe then relinquished the stage to Fred, who took over and discussed WWII neutral nations and the French colonial empire.Â Fred sifted the wheat from the chaff.Â Every note we saw today was one of a kind or one of four in the world, etc.

Â All day the exchange rate of AFC climbed in relation to the local currency.Â Inflation was becoming an issue.Â Clearly, the Finance Office was alarmed. Finally a decision was made.Â At 1600 hours today all AFC was confiscated and any outstanding notes declared void.Â The troops are without funds tonight and, as you might expect, the senior officers involved are oblivious to the hardships this brings on the rank and file.Â We can only hope that tomorrow brings some respite.

Allied Fest Certificate Series 100 C Yen Withdrawn

A This conversion unified all MFC using areas. Series 022 is now the only series of Fest money in circulation. Although the Springs issue has a special overprint, it is fully negotiable in other areas where 022 is being used. However, Series 022 without the overprint is not usable in Colorado Springs.

A The troops seemed happy to have money again in their hands. Serious trading commenced immediately upon issuing of the new money.

by Larry "Ski" Smulczewski

Â I wanted to find some issue or some item that had some association with the Fourth of July.Â I went to my handy-dandy desk calendar that usually gives me some fact to at least mention in this column.Â All I got wasÂ "On this date in 1942, This is the Army, Irving Berlin's all-serviceman revue, opens in New York.Â The show's twelve-week run raises over a half-million dollars for the war effort."Â I looked at that, and thought that that wasn't very much.Â Today, our politicians raise that at a one-night fundraising dinner and spend countless times that much on silly subjects like the "Mating habits of a tree toad in the African jungles".Â There wasn't much help there.Â I went to a listing of significant dates during World War II.Â Â I found that on July 4th, 1943, the Battle of Kursk beganÂ in the Soviet Union.Â Over the next 10 days the Soviets defeated the Germans in the largest tank battle of the war.Â Well, that's kind of neat, because the Soviets did issue a lovely set of war bonds in 1943, depicting a battle scene with tanks prominently displayed along the bottom of the bond.Â These are great items and I mentioned in one of my columns the super exhibit that Marcus Turner has put together featuring these bonds.Â However, this just doesn't lend itself to our Independence Day.Â There was one more entry noting that on the 4th of July, 1945, the Allied occupation of Berlin officially began.Â The thought ofÂ German AMC or Special Army Currency came to mind, both good subjects and great notes, but little to do with our Fourth.Â So all I can say is enjoy your fireworks, your barbecues and your day offÂ and continue the fight to keep our country free and independent.

Â On another subject, Ole Thurski really took a beating from the young guy about misplacing a paybook.Â Wow!!Â In my defense, all I can say is that when you reach the ripe old age of 39, certain things start to go, and if I remember correctly, the mind and memory is the second thing that goes.Â Of course, I can't remember what that first thing is.Â It's not only the matter of losing paybooks.Â I spend a lot time putting things in secure places so that I can easily find them when I need them.Â Then, I spend the rest of the day looking for similar items that I put somewhere where I wouldn't lose them.Â So it goes with the paybook.Â I'm sure it is in a secure place just waiting for me to retrieve it.Â All I can say, Marcus is that your turn is coming. Ol-timers disease doesn't discriminate.Â You too will reach 39 some day.

But on the other hand, t---pink is not a bad color for a paybook replacement.Â I rather like it and will hold it close to my heart.Â That location might also help me from losing it. Finally, let me try to shed some info about a question that was asked by Roger about a chit book that he had acquired from the Pennsylvania State Military Reservation at Mt. Gretna. Mt. Gretna is in the hills of central Pennsylvania north of Harrisburg. There was a military reservation there established around 1890 that belonged to the National Guard and had a rifle range there that was used to train marksmen from Pennsylvania and other states for battle since the war with Spain. In 1931, at the recommendation of a General Edward Martin, Commanding General of the 28th Division, the National Guard training site was moved from Mt. Gretna to Indiantown Gap. There in excess of 18,000 acres of land were procured to replace the 120 acres at Mt. Gretna for the annual maneuvers which started in 1933. In September of 1940, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania leased the Reservation to the U.S. Government for $1.00. Construction began immediately on the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation which was dedicated on March 3, 1941. In 1975, it became Fort Indiantown Gap. Whether the rifle range at Mt. Gretna continued in use from the 1931 decision through World War II is unknown to me. I personally think it did, but do not have definitive data that tells me so. I have a set of chits similar to the ones that Roger mentions. I'm pretty sure that Globe Ticket Company was the printer, based on that design compared to others done by Globe. Roger, you can confirm that if you will. I therefore would date these chits from somewhere between 1930 and the end of World War II. Others that I have with similar design have been attributed to World War II.

Day 5 ANA Summer Session

Colorado Springs, CO

by Warner Talso

The military money seminar officially closed today, but more events are still on the schedule. The Colorado Springs coin show starts tomorrow. On Saturday there will be an MPC program and an informal mini Fest.

After today's half day class schedule, the annual young numismatist auction was held. Several MPC and MPC Fest items were included. All sold well.

Editorial

The military money seminar has come to a close and must be considered a success. Everyone seemed to have had a good time and probably even learned some things. I know that I did.

There is much more to report, but there just is not enough time at the moment. However, without the pressure of presenting a class, I hope to be able to share some important reports in the next few days.

Some comments on Joe Boling's report. I think that every "new" propaganda item he mentions has been published and translated in an old IBNS article by yours truly in the past.

"From Memphis, a new version of the US $10 1934 Italian propaganda note, SB411, p397 (serial F05934811A with Italian back). It appears that there must be at least six versions of this piece."

No, there are eight varieties. I have published and translated all but I/7. Nobody has ever seen this piece. It is a real rarity.

"Another new piece is a British pound (SB page 165) with the face of SB191/193, but a new message in Arabic." There are three different Arabic messages known on the British 1 pound notes. I have translated them all in the past.

"Yet another is a North Vietnamese 50 xu note (being away from my library I can't look it up to see whether it is actually NVN, VC, or some other entity--the lead line of the title is Uy Ban Trung Uong). It is stamped on the back, in a large rectangle, COMPLIMENTS OF / THE ROBIN HOODS, with a shield in the center bearing 173rd AHC on a ribbon running lower left to upper right, a crossbow at lower right on the shield, and an unidentifiable device (a seashell?) at upper left on the shield. I assume this is 173rd Assault Helicopter Co."

I believe I pictured this item about 20 years ago in one of the two articles I wrote for IBNS on propaganda currency in Vietnam. It was simply a souvenir overprint on a note, although some dealers at the time tried to sell them as "death cards.":

2003 Summer Seminar Expanded

Day 6 ANA Summer Seminar Colorado Springs, CO

The first session is officially over.Â Many folks headed home.Â Some are staying for the second session (masochists).Â And some stay long enough to attend the Colorado Coin Show.Â This show has more dealers than one might expect because they realize they have a national audience as a result of the ANA summer session.Â I, for one, attended armed with new knowledge and expertise that was very satisfying to exercise. I didn't "cherry-pick" any notes that will retire the mortgage, but I did find notes to represent issues introduced in the class and expand my samples of WWII numismatica.Â Interestingly, the Denver Mint was represented and gave away free Louisiana State quarters.

Dear Gram,
 Â Thanks to Ski for the info on the Post Exchange Chit book from Mt. Gretna.Â I had done some Internet research and found a website on Fort Indiantown Gap which provided some information. I called down and spoke to the post exchange at Mt. Gretna and was told it was small exchange and that I would need to call headquarters. I did so and although they could not provide me with any info on the book, I did discover that on 7-13-2002 the National Guard unit assigned to drill would have a historian who could help me out.

Â The book originally caught my attention because it was marked as being from WW I, however when I looked inside, the cover page had a date line ending in "193," which, if memory serves, was a bit after WW I ended.
Â This fits in nicely with Ski's info. It is quite possible that Globe did the printing, although I do not see their name anywhere on the booklet. The serial number is 14573 and is printed on the outside and on all of the chits.

I will speak to the historian and report my findings.

Roger Urce

Dear Gram,
Â I doÂ not want to rain on anyone's parade, but I fail to see the significance of the issuance of all this Mickey Mouse Money and what it has to do with the field of numismatics.

Mike Cummings

Dear Mikey,
Eat your heart out.

MPC CATALOG CORRECTIONS & ENHANCEMENTS

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:
Australia:Â 641, 661, 681, 692
Canada:461 through and including 591
Korea:Â 641, 661, 681, 692
New Zealand:641, 661, 681, 692
Thailand:Â 641, 661, 681, 692
United States: All
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page
Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of Series 472 .50 cent notes.Â The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number:
C040351392C
Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C
D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4Â - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns)Â line 5
Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:
(start) D14784001D(end) D14784000D
Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,
Ending serial number is incorrect
Correct number is F1112000
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500,
on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.
They should be the same price.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Dear Editor--

Â Enjoyed being with the Gramsters at the ANA Summer Seminar last week.Â Â I'm still not collecting this material but am slowly edging towards attending Fest III next year anyway.Â I got in the spirit of things by running Joe Boling up on a couple of MPC related items in the YN Auction (of course always knowing my place by letting him have them at the last moment).
Â As to the Mickey Mouse Money thread, well yeah they are kind of a "manufactured" collectible, but they do serve as a good training device for classes, etc.Â The fact that a few Gramsters have gone heads over heels on them is...well...fun. And that afterall is what this is all about anyway.

Wendell Wolka

Dear Wendell,
Â Thanks for writing and for running Joe up! We look forward to seeing you at the Fest. You will see that I have added you to the list.
Â From your letter it is clear that you will fit right in. Procrastination is a favorite of ours. We look forward to seeing you at Fest IV. We might have a make up for Fest II at Fest VI!

Editor

Dear Editor,
Â Looking forward to seeing you at Fest IV.

Bill Yanchick

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Colorado Springs things

Â Â Thanks to Herb Friedman for the responses to my writing about new (to me) propaganda leaflets. We will obviously have to do a better job on this area in the next edition of WWII remembered.

Â Â This brings up a find that I have not reported in the gram. Some time ago I purchased a piece of SB1605 (page 728) on darkly toned paper. I figured the poor paper was a result of late-in-the-war production, but decided to check the piece against the one I already had, to see if there were any changes in the later printing. I soon found that there are some differences in the Chinese text on the back, and then noticed the clincher; the date on the cruddy looking piece is 1942, whereas the date on the listed piece is 1936. Â It made me feel sort of dumb! The 1942-dated piece will be listed as SB1606 next time out. Â Â I have long been leery of our selection of the identifying diagnostic on the one-peso Philippine US Army counterfeit (SB2224bq), because that denomination seems to be more common in junk boxes than the others.

Å Å Enough for tonight; I have to get some sleep and finish preparing for a six-hour mini-seminar that I will be teaching for two evenings in the ANA summer seminar program: collecting counterfeit world paper money. =====

Last week Joe and I visited a coin shop not too far from here (Colorado Springs). I bought 50 (yes fifty) wonderful black and white photographs for use in the next edition of the WWII book.

Â That is the good news. When I walked into the shop, I picked up a photograph on the counter. It was marked $4. I set it aside with that look "I will take it." The owner of the shop said "that one is not for sale."

Â I spent the next three hours going through thousands of photographs from which I picked out the above mentioned fifty. During that time I made repeated comments about the first one that I had picked and which was not for sale.

Â Many of the photos were in albums that had been made by WWII servicemen. One of these had two shots of soldiers playing poker (or possibly old maid or crazy eights). Anyway, we studied those photos real hard for any signs of money but could only find chips.

Â Finally, I paid for the fifty and some other things that I had found (some really good things including two notes for my AMC collection), but the fellow still would not sell me the photo. So I made the following offer.

Â I gave him a $100 deposit on the photo for the right to take it to the ANA headquarters so that I could scan it for use in the future book.

Â THAT he liked and suggested that it would be ok with him if I did not return it.

Â Today I returned it and got my money back (after scanning of course).

Â What got me so excited?

Â Actually, the photo was a strip of three black and whites. The first two photos were of balloons.

Possibly weather balloons. Nice, but not a big deal.

Â The third photo has a similar balloon, but also has three German soldiers. It is clearly a staged photo, but very interesting. The one fellow is holding a propaganda leaflet which is obviously part of the payload for this mission. The balloon was to be used to distribute propaganda leaflets!

Â Unfortunately, the leaflet is not a currency based leaflet, but it is still a leaflet and demonstrates better than any item I have ever seen how balloons were used to distribute leaflets. Obviously, I think that it is a great photograph.

Â We will certainly use it in WWII Remembered, but possibly I will figure out a way to use it here in the Gram before that.

Editor,
WOW! Your second copy of Rockholt sale? MPC LITERATURE????? HUMMMMMMMMMM.
MPC-WEST

Dear Gram,
I am very thankful to be back on your list.Â I'm not a "want my MPC Gram" or even an "I want my MPC."Â But I did have a handle on MPC when I was a Class A Agent in RVN, and wish then that I knew what I know now.Â I keep looking here and there (mostly there) for the few shops that have MPC in the 25 cent bin.Â Have picked up several replacement notes there (Yea, laugh, laugh).Â But it's all worth the look, and, sometime soon, I may place my dupes on eBay (after offering them to the Gram, of course.)
Â I wish I had done then what I should have done -- set aside 10 or more of each new note.Â I didn't, so I'm stuck with one of each from 70-71.Â I wasn't a C-Day Officer, but was a Class A Officer more than once.Â Â Never found any replacements, because, in my civilian life, I had learned to riffle thru the packs. Never found an out of order note.
Â Thanks again for my (renewed) subscription, and please give my best to all your staff (including one who almost won't admit he made a sale to me.)

gregm burke

Dear Greg,
Â Your story is like so many others. We would love to have you come to the Fest to share them (you will have a great time).

Fred

Dear Gram,
Â Please put me on the list for Fest IV.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 668-Wednesday 10 July 2002

Traveling in the Wayback Machine to Memphis, 1983

By Mark Sparky Watson

Â The day is 17 June 1983, and you have just settled in your seat for Session I of the Memphis 83 auction sale conducted by Herbert I. Melnick.Â Being a military paper money collector, you are interested in the 49 lots of MPC in the session.Â However, as there are still about 200 lots prior to the MPC, you recheck

your bids and make last minute changes. Finally, lot 1260 is called, the one prior to the MPC session, and you prepare to battle.

Â First up is a Series 461 short set, nickel through $1, all Choice Unc.Â As you already have that set, you casually note it goes for $105 with 5% juice added for the auctioneers efforts.Â The auctioneer calls off a few more lots before he finally gets to lot 1267, a series 471 $5 note in VF, serial number B03401696B.Â You have set a limit of $450, and come out as the underbidder as the lot goes for $475.Â You pass on the next lot, a Series 471 $10 note in AU, serial number B06973636B, and watch it go for $300.

A After waiting a couple of minutes, the auctioneer reaches lot 1280, a pair of 10 cent replacements, Series 541 in F, and Series 611 in Gem. You hold up your paddle and nail down the lot at $30. You then try for the next lot, a Series 541 $5 note in Gem, serial number F00688512F and again are the underbidder at $1000 with the note being hammered down at $1050. However, once again you are victorious on lot 1283, a Series 541 $10 replacement, serial number F21065241, in F for $105. At that point, you sit back, as starting with the Series 591 notes, your collection is complete. You note with interest that the Series 591 $5 note, lot 1288, serial number G00243956G, in Gem goes for $1650, and gets the highest bid for any MPC lot. Overall, lot 1295A, a set of six Gem Turnkey Commissary Receipts from 5 cents to $10 has the highest bid in the group going for $2900. However, you do pick up one more lot, lot 1305, a Series 681 $20 replacement, serial number C00142587, for $20. Not bad paying face value for a replacement note.Â Now to head to the cashier and collect your winnings.

Note: The above auction lots and subsequent values are taken from the Prices Realized List for the auction. However, as I had a previous auction catalog from Melnick in late 1982 with some of the same lots, I do not know if actual sales took places at those prices or not.

===== Editorial =====

I have to tantalize you a little today. I drove to Colorado Springs. On the way here from Ohio, I was driving through Atlanta. It just so happens that I was talking to Harold Kroll on the cell phone when I passed a structure which was unmistakably a WWII era guard tower!

I turned around and went back. The sign at the bottom of the tower said "WWII POW guard tower, more exhibits inside the museum"! I dug out some references that I carry with me at all times and read the basic information on the Atlanta camp.

A Wow. The museum was closed. I am going there tomorrow (Thursday) and hope to find lots more information on the Atlanta POW camp. You can count on reading it here.

Â Oh, sorry, Atlanta, Nebraska.

First Woman Collector Registers for Fest

More Allied Use of MPC

Â Â My copy of the July issue of the Retired Officers Magazine arrived last week and as sat eating lunch one day, I scanned the various articles and advertisements.Â One article in particular caught my attention and was put aside for more detailed reading. It was on the Korean War and was entitled Wing and a Prayer.Â Â It started off, "Fifty years ago, in the midst of the Korean War, the 18th Fighter Bomber Wing made a historic transition from the prop driven P-51 Mustang to this jet-powered F-86F-30 Sabre".Â The "Fighter Bomber" and the "F-86F-30" caught my eye. The F-86 was used extensively in the Korean War, but mainly as a fighter interceptor not as a fighter bomber.Â I went on to read "Based at Clark AB in the Philippines since the end of World War II, the 18th FBW was among the first Air Force units committed to the Korean War in July 1950,Â For a brief period, the wing operated with four full squadrons (later reduced to three), enabling it's pilots to log more than 50,000 successful combat sorties in the Mustang."

Â Â "The decision to bring the new "dash-30"Â Sabres into Korea was made in the early fall of 1952 (that is late in the war--Armistice signed late June of 1953), and the delivery schedule was slated to begin in November.Â But construction at Osan AB fell behind schedule, and the new Sabres were delayed. Despite these difficulties, the wing moved to Osan by Dec. 31, while Mustang operations wound down at prior bases of operation, Chinhae and Hoengsong."

Â Â "A mobile training detachment arrived at Osan Dec 29, and the switch over to the Sabre began Jan 7, 1953.Â Three squadrons, the 12th, the 67th and the 2nd South African Air Force (SAAF) made up the 18th FBW." BINGO--I thought.Â Here is a fighter squadron from an allied nation attached to an American Fighter-Bomber Wing.Â I had to go scurrying back to my old grams to find the one that I remembered Fred writing about foreign armed forces serving in Korea.Â I found it in Gram 608 and there I found that South Africa had 811 troops serving in Korea from Nov 16, 1950 to Oct 31, 1953.Â I went to Google.com and found that there was a web site that confirmed that the 2nd South African Air Force started to transition to F-86's in Jan 1953 as part of the 18th Fighter Bomber Wing and flew their first combat sorties on 11 March 1953. So this all agreed with the magazine article I was reading.Â Â Â Â In his article, Fred asked the question, "--did other forces use MPC in Korea during the war?"Â Well, this doesn't come out and say so conclusively, but I would bet my St. Louis Cardinal baseball cap that since these men were part of the same parent unit, slept in adjoining barracks, ate in the same chow hall,Â were briefed by the same support organizations and got their butts shot-off flying the same missions, they sure as hell had similar BX/PX privileges. You could make the argument that South Africa was still part of the British Empire at that time, and could have been paid in BAFSV.Â I grant you that, but I doubt that our BX/PX's would have accepted BAFSV's and I further doubt that there were any NAAFI facilities at these airfields for 800 troops. NAAFI may have been at sites where there was a large concentration of British troops, but I have not yet found anything that says there was contingent of British troops at Osan. I think that we somehow made arrangements for these troops to get and use MPC.

OK, so now the task is to find some South African that was in the 2nd SAAF in Korea and has a piece of 472 or 481 scrip that was issued to him. Wouldn't that make a great story.

DID YOU KNOW--My handy-dandy World War II desk calendar says that on this date in 1942, South American countries report that German agents are flooding their markets with counterfeit U.S. currency in an attempt to devalue the dollar. We have all heard about Operation Bernhard and the British counterfeits produced by the Germans, and that they were working on U.S. notes. But this is July 11, 1942. That is much too early for Bernhard. I have not personally heard of any U.S. counterfeits attributed to that time frame. Any thoughts?

Editorial

As you read this, I am probably on the road to Atlanta (as discussed yesterday). I expect to have a report on that trip on Saturday or Sunday.

Mark Watson and I have both commented on the ANA Library book sale over the past week. Possibly Joe talked about it too.

When I bought the NASCA-Rockholt MPC sale, the catalogs were $2 each. Mark bought his when the price was reduced to $1. Today, on the last day of the seminar, the prices are reduced again. Are you ready? Catalogs are $5 for all that you can carry! I have been looking for motivation to start working out--I have found it! Watch out next year!

Dear Gram,

It was refreshing to read Frank Carter's comments about the scholarship fund. There are a lot of people involved in this program that you never hear about and comments like this are a reward for their participation. The annual MPC Fest auction did real well this year to raise funds for the scholarship fund and this is due to the many folks who donated the items along with cash donations. Its not the size of the donation, its the thought behind it. I for one had the good fortune of attending the first seminar with a scholarship and it will always be a week I'll remember. Many new friends were made that I never would have met and the education was fantastic. Attending this class or any other that the ANA puts on is well worth the trip with or without a scholarship. Get behind and support the MPC Scholarship Fund, it will make you feel good.

Shopping at Coins of the Realm

This week and last week, I have been living out of a hotel room in Rockville, Maryland. My wife is now working in the U.S. for awhile instead of Tokyo, so I am with her during the week near her office and back at our Bay House on the weekends and holidays. After she finds an apartment near her favorite mall (Tyson's Corner), I will spend more time back at the Bay House. One of my favorite numismatic and philatelic stores in the DC area is Coins of the Realm. It is owned by Pete Boyer and he has a great staff working for him. Pete is into "world" paper and he does have some military stuff in his better-priced stock, so you need to contact him for the "good" stuff! Since "military" is not a priority for me, I went through his "junk" boxes. Yes, there are some of us who are not completely addicted! Last week, I went through his $1 box of paper and paid him $38 for 55 pieces of "military" paper. Nothing rare or scarce and it was mostly AMC, but there were a few MPCs in the purchase. This week, I went through his 3 for a $1 box of paper and found a bunch of CU JIM notes, and one BU 1 Peso Philippine JIM with the interesting serial of "0242224." I also found two more AMC Italian pieces. There was a total of 38 pieces in this purchase for $12. John Jefferson is in charge of world coins. In the past, I have bought MANY military club tokens from him and expect more in the future. This time, he had a Thai telephone token for me. His son, Jay, is in charge of U.S. coins, and he had a chopmarked Trade Dollar for me to consider. I bought it after seeing what might be a Thai and/or Lao chop on it. Dirk is in charge of philatelics and I have found some military pieces in his stock that could be of interest to several Gramsters. When you are in the DC area, please consider visiting Pete's store at 1331-F Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852. His telephone number is 301-340-1640 and his email is "CoinRealm@Erols.com." Pete is not too good about monitoring his email, so you might want to just call him and tell him to read your email with your wants and needs.

===== MAIL CALL =====

Dear Esteemed Editor,
 Â I can see you still need assistance concerning the ANA in NYC. The ANA Message Center telephone number is 719-499-3591.Â Â If you are not there, I will be manning the NI/IBNS club table and it can be the Gramsters Meeting Place.
 The IBNS General Meeting is at 11AM on Saturday morning and it is followed by the NI General Meeting at 12 Noon in the same room. I will be moderating both meetings and will be running a "show and tell" with the attendees.Â Bring your stuff to NYC and show it off!

À Every night in my hotel room, I will process my emails, so you can send emails to me too, if you have something to be done at the convention.

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Howard A. Daniel III

If you tried to send an email to us last week, our server was being switched to a new carrier.Â I only received a few messages, so unless you got a reply, please resend.Â Sorry for any mix-ups, as we were out of town, and did not receive the intended message to the change.

Â We have updated our web site at www.Butternut.org. It has some newÂ items and a two new Butternut Bite articles.

This weekend I will be setup at the 49th Eastern State Numismatic Associations annual show held at Brandywine Terrace, 3416 Philadelphia Pike, Claymont, Delaware (next to Wilmington).

Â It is always a great show, run by great people. Hours are Friday 1-6pm, Saturday 10-6pm and Sunday 10-3pm.Â Hope to see you there.

COL Steve

The Scholars BookShelf Military History Catalog
by Howard A. Daniel III

Â Here are some items in their most recent catalog that might be of interest to you;

Â "The East Came West; Muslim, Hindu, and Buddhist Volunteers in the German Armed Forces, 1941-1945" by Antonio J. Munoz, Editor. An account of nearly two million volunteers, primarily Soviet citizens of all kinds, who joined German armies and fought for the Reich. The book studies the reasons why many if these, who were considered racially inferior by the Germans, fought with them.Â 2001, 332 pages, 8 1/2 x 11", illustrated in color and black and white.Â Price

A "Stalin's Silver; The Sinking of the SS John Barry and the Hunt for Buried Treasure" by John Beasant. The story of the August, 1944 sinking of this American merchant ship in the Arabian Sea while carrying nearly $400 million worth of silver and of the subsequent search for the wreck by the French International Maritime Institute and Jean Roux. 1995. 216 pages. (St. Martin's) List price $24.95 Sale Price $8.95. It is possible that something of a collectible nature might be explained in this book and other excellent information.

A "Forgotten Fields of America, World War II Bases and Training, Then and Now" by Lou Thole. Profiles such fields as Coffeyfield, Lockbourne, Fairmont, Herington, Freeman, Stout Field, and Hendricks, Freeman Field, Moton Field, Carlstrom Field, Hondo Army Air Field, Pyote Army Air Field, Sioux Army Air Base, and others. Each fully illustrated profile documents the buildup of the U.S. Army Air Force just prior to World War II and the status of these bases today. 1997-1999, 168 + 172 pages, 8 1/2 x 11", Softcover, (Pictorial Histories), List Price per set of 2 volumes $29.90. Sale Price $26.90. It is possible that some scrip/chits might be explained in this book and other excellent information.

Â Go to "www.scholarsbookshelf.com/military/" to order this book for your library.Â Good luck in acquiring what you need, and please write about it in the Gram and/or other numismatic publications.

I should have saidÂ something about Ski's column on South African forces using MPC in Korea.Â I think that he is right on that this is an important conclusion. I also think that there are more such discoveries to be made!

Â In Gram 661, Harold made a nice contribution on Series 661 that I also forgot to praise! He had a nice combination of research and human interest. The next series contribution is only ten Grams away. In this case I must apologize in advance because Mark Watcon gave me a draft to review while at the seminar, but I forgot to do it. Mark, if you want me to do it now, please send it via email.

Â I am home now. The ride home was longer than the ride to Colorado Springs! I will put off for one more day a report on the Atlanta POW camp because I am still wasted!

Dear Editor,

I have been thinking about the criticism of Fest money as "Mickey Mouse Money." I like it (the criticism). After all, when MPC was in use, the users called it micky mouse money and certainly would never have considered collecting it. One of the purposes of Fest money is to recreate the MPC system. Sounds like it is working.

Â I will write more about this idea later.

À Possibly the biggest difference came fifty years later. In 1993, a large celebration was held to recognize the golden anniversary of the camp. Many former prisoners, guards and others associated with the came returned to Atlanta for the celebration. This reunion resulted in a camp art show and many other activities. All of these are commemorated in the display.

A I sure would be interested to hear from readers who have Atlanta (NE) POW chits in their collections. I also expect to talk more about this camp in future editions.

Dear Editor,

Â Regarding the recent discussion about the use of MPC in Korea byÂ foreign troops.Â While in the Army, I was assigned to the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry which is now the division cavalry squadron for the Second Infantry Division and is located at Camps Garry Owen and Stanton in Korea.Â The official history of the Squadron indicates that during the Korean War, the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry was the designation given to a Greek cavalry unitÂ that was in Korea in support of the UN forces.Â I have seen other examples from the Korean War in which foreign units were given designations as elements of US commands.Â I assume this was done for administrative purposes as well as command and control.Â Unfortunately, I can shed no light as to whether any of these units used MPC.

Dear Editor,
 A I picked up some Club Bucks from Ft. Hamilton Army Base in Brooklyn, N. Y. They are printed on yellow paper, individually numbered and have a value of $1. They have a stamped expiration date. Are they part of the MPC "family"?

Emergency counterfeits

I've had a note for a while to write a column about counterfeit shoshi. What I had in mind was the revalidation stamps that the Japanese placed on old notes in 1946 so that they could be recirculated, there being insufficient quantities of new notes on hand to complete the currency reform, even with most of the converted notes going into blocked bank accounts and not being exchanged.

Â I bought a 100 yen note with a counterfeit shoshi from Bill Henderson sometime back in the 1970s. See SB page 322 for a discussion of this issue and an illustration of the note I am talking about. The proper shoshi are printed from intaglio plates; the fake is lithographed in a gray-green color that isn't correct (too dull). It is glued to the upper corner of an example of the last 100-yen note produced before the occupation, the lithographed note cataloged as SB165b under Japan (page 535). There must have been a problem with fake shoshi at the time, because the Japanese authorities had rubber stamps in the appropriate sizes to mark the notes found with bad shoshi on them. Barely visible in the illustration on page 322 are three small rectangular stamps over the shoshi that say "counterfeit" in Japanese. Two very large stamps that say "invalid" are placed on the note itself; they mean that without a proper shoshi, the note no longer has monetary value.

Â In the past year I have obtained two more examples of counterfeit revalidation stamps on notes of the occupation period. One is from China and the other from Germany.

Check the Red Army issues for China on page 378. I have what appears to be a counterfeit of the 100 yuan revalidation stamp cataloged at SB376 and illustrated above the listings. The originals are a bright green with a hint of yellow; the fake is a dull green color. Both are lithographed, but the fake is a visibly lower quality image. However, without a genuine example sitting beside it, the image quality is not so low as to attract attention. Both have a complex chained underprint (different from each other). The genuine stamp's is lime green, but very faint; the other is yellow, and a bit easier to see. The genuine stamp has very sparse, and very small, blue silk threads (I see only three in the example at hand;Â a ten yuan stamp applied to a Manchukuo 10 yuan note, SB375b, appears to be on the same paper); the fake has no silk.

Â The third example is from East Germany at the time of the 1948 currency reform, when the eastÂ German government had to quickly revalidate reichsmarks (SB61-669, page 302) because they had no currency parallel to the Allied issues for the west (SB651-660). The stamps they used are lithographed, but also embossed, so that they have a textured feel. In addition, there is a chained underprint in a different shade. I have three pieces. One is obviously counterfeit, lacking the underprint, with very crude printing, crude perforations (11 1/2), and apparently water soluble ink, as there is a large smudge in the middle that seems to have been wet. Of the other two, one has noticeably lower relief in the embossing, and is somewhat inferior print quality, but both have the same underprint and perforations (13 1/2). In comparing these with other stamps in Fred's collection while at ANA, we noticed that all the other ones he has show elements of the main lathework design inside the openings of the numerals "948," whereas none of the 50 mark ones that I have do (he had no 50-mark pieces except the counterfeit already described, which is now mine). Does anyone out there have a 50 mark stamp that shows lathework in those openings? =====

R. M. Smythe Company is having an auction in NY City on July 29 just before the ANA convention in that city. This is a tried and true timing thing. The catalog arrived within the last few days. There is not a lot of material in the auction of direct interest to Gramsters, but there is always something. There is no rare MPC but there is a nice group of Hawaii notes and another of world notes. Of course there are some WWII notes in that section. Â I guess that I need to make a confession. During the second week of the ANA Summer Seminar I took Peter Huntton's class on national bank notes. It was great. The Smythe catalog has a very nice selection of these so I had a nice time looking at these notes. I will probably attend the auction and look at all of them! Â Lots of interesting things are happening here at HQ, but I am having a bit of trouble commenting on any of them at the moment.

Dear Gram,

I try to purchase the Sunday edition of "The Washington Post" newspaper for its excellent crossword puzzle and, of course, the news.Â Down here at my place on the Chesapeake Bay, we have a weekly paper with no international news, and I am still interested in knowing what is going on around the world. On page A23 in the July 14 issue is an article with the title, "For Relatives of WWII Dead, Truth Emerges > From Archives" by Karl Peter Kirk of the Associated Press.Â Karl writes from Budapest that there is an Institute of Military History where a Lt. Col. Janos Bus is assisting Hungarians in researching their relatives who were killed or missing in World War II. I thought it might have a web site and other information of interest to Gramsters, so I went to my favorite search engine and looked for it.Â It was the first item in my first search!Â The web site address is <http://www.militaria.hu>.Â There is an English version of the site and many categories of information.Â One of them is Military Prison Camps, so besides regular military currencies that might be there, there might also be prison camp monies too. There is an email address at the site too for you to ask questions, so you guys who are interested in Hungarian military, go to it.Â Good luck and good hunting.

Howard Daniel

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 674-Wednesday 17 July 2002

Important Museum Exhibit

A Larry Lee, American Numismatic Association Museum curator, divulged during the recent ANA Summer Seminar that the museum will feature an exhibition on World War II numismatics commencing late this year. A The exact scope of the exhibit has not been decided. The main purpose of sharing the information at this time was to solicit the participation of Gramsters in the project!

The exhibit will open on November 8, 2002 in conjunction with Veterans Day observances and will continue through the 2003 summer seminar.

^ ^ ^ ^ ^ Sidman Likes Seminar

By E. A. Right

A Numismatic News reporters Ray Sidman reports in a front page story of the July 23 issue that Students Love Seminar.

Â Sidman was a student in the military money course. It is not likely that he knew what he was getting into!

Â In addition to an accurate, interesting, and fun filled account of the entire seminar, Sidman describes his experiences in class.

A Here is how he describes Boling and Schwan: Boling gave the level-headed side of the presentation with a twist of humor, specifically in the areas of World War II and international military currencies. Schwan also proved himself a fount of knowledge, albeit a frenzied and unpredictable one (think Old Faithful with no timetable and a caffeine overdose). It's safe to say the 11 students enjoyed both the instructors' classroom savvy.

Â The story is accompanied by color illustrations of Fest money issued at the event, Schwan and Boling in action as well as some of the students.

Editorial

The forthcoming museum exhibit is an important opportunity for us to showcase our hobby. Indeed, it may be the most significant chance that we have had in decades or ever. I believe that we should throw our support into the project 100%.

We can lend ideas, material, financial support (gad!), and possibly most importantly of all our time and energy by visiting the exhibition and promoting others to do the same.

I believe that we should have a Fest event in Colorado Springs either in conjunction with the opening, or very shortly thereafter. Larry Lee and other staff members have stated that they will be happy to help us in any way that they can.

I have many more ideas long this line, but the museum needs your ideas so put on your thinking caps and send your idea here to the Gram for publication and coordination.

We were certainly pleased to read Ray Sidman's account of the ANA Seminar.Â We hope that Ray and NN will allow a full reprinted here in the Gram [Ray, can you email us a copy of the text along with guidelines on reprinting? Thanks.]

• Another in depth review of the seminar will appear here in Thursday or Friday.

Fred

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Embassy Parolees

This has been a very busy week and nothing had popped into my mind to write a gram article about.Â So after grousing at my wife about having to spend the day trying to come up with some bright idea to write about, I took off for the post office to see what kind of goodies the jolly ole postman had left in my mailbox.Â There was some junk mail and a card that said a packageÂ wasÂ being heldÂ for pickup.Â That was good news as that usually meant a collectable or auction catalog too large to be placed in the box.Â It turned out to be a large envelope containing an ebay purchase of photographs of an internment camp at Fort Stanton, New Mexico.Â There were six 7x9 inch photos of the camp and the men interned there.Â I had never heard of Fort Stanton as an internment or POW camp during my research so was interested in finding out more about the camp.Â The first thing that caught my eye was a stamp on the backs of the photos that identified them as Associated Press Photos and dated them in April thru June of 1941.Â Now this had to be looked at a little more closely.Â What were we doing interning folks over six months before Pearl Harbor?Â A caption on one of the photos identified it as a picture of seaman from the German Liner Columbus that were interned for the duration of the war after scuttling the ship off the coast of Cape May, New Jersey in December 1939.Â The ships name Columbus rang my bell.Â I remembered purchasing a Ships money order (Bordanweisung) note from the Columbus a couple of years ago.Â This stuck in my mind because it is always a thrill to find something that is not listed in World War II Remembered.Â The Bordanweisung notes are pictured in the book but none from the Columbus.Â Wow, I said to myself, I think I have a gram article.Â Â Â Â I raced home to do a google search for the German Liner Columbus, and at the same time called Fred.Â I filled him in on what I found and together we scoured the Internet, immediately being rewarded with the following information.Â The "Columbus" was built after World War OneÂ and made her maiden voyage in April 1924.Â At that time, Columbus was the largest and fastest ship in the German fleet and was the flagship of the North German Lloyd Company.Â Columbus was a very popular and profitable ship for the company as she cruised the North Atlantic.Â Her profitability spurred the company to plan and build the luxury liners "Bremen" and "Europa".Â When she was displaced as flagship of the Lloyd fleet by the faster express liners, Columbus still spent some summer months on the Atlantic.Â However, she spent much of her time cruising to the Caribbean, and indeed, she was in the midst of a Caribbean cruise when World War II started in September 1939.Â Â Â Â As with the case of most all liners not in home waters at the start of hostilities, great pains were taken to avoid capture by enemy vessels.Â British warships were patrolling the Atlantic andÂ intercepting enemy vessels.Â The Columbus discharged her 745 passengers in Havana, Cuba and the officers and crew made plans to return to Europe.Â First she docked at Vera Cruz, Mexico to refuel and where Mexican authorities searched her for war materials, finding none, she was permitted to set sail.Â She spent the next couple of months making short dashes between neutral Central and South American ports.Â On December 19, 1939 she was spotted 450 miles east of Cape May, New Jersey by a British destroyer, HMS Hyperion and ordered to "heave to."Â Two warning shots were fired, at which time, the Captain to avert capture, scuttled the ship.Â A U.S. Cruiser, Tuscaloosa picked up approximately 579 crewmen and took them to Ellis Island, New York.Â Remember, that at this time we were maintaining our neutrality, but the INS was incarcerating a growing number of aliens from Axis nations under the edits of the Geneva Convention (even though we were not a signatory of the Geneva Convention).Â These men were considered distressed seaman paroled from the German Embassy.Â I had neverÂ run across this phrase-- distressed seaman paroled from an embassy--before.Â This may be another classification of internees, along with the second generation Japanese and Italian POW's that became internees after ItalyÂ became a non-combatant.Â Â Â Â Â Â Ellis Island became overcrowded and the Columbus crewmen were transferred to Angel Island, California in San Francisco Bay.Â The INS began looking for a place to intern these Axis aliens in 1940.Â After a site search, Fort Stanton, New Mexico which is 50 miles northeast of Alamogordo was chosen because of its remote location, warm climate and ability to be put into service in a minimal amount of time.Â The U.S. Public Health Service had a hospital there to house men of the Merchant Marine who had contracted tuberculosis.Â These patients were moved to other facilitiesÂ and the crew of the Columbus moved into deserted CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps) barracks.Â The Captain of the Columbus quickly had his crew working to transform these abandon quarters into fairly luxurious accommodations.Â The pictures that I have show them eating lunch in the mess hall, playing tennis, digging a swimming pool and purchasing items at their canteen.Â ItÂ appears thatÂ they led a really tough life.Â YouÂ can see them by clicking on the link www.papermoneyworld.net/larry/powcamp.htmÂ At the end of the war, they were all repatriated to Germany and the Fort again became a hospital for tuberculosis patients.Â Â Â Â We currentlyÂ know of no chits that were issued by the Fort Stanton Internment Camp.Â It seems highly likely that some type of scrip had to be in use because you see items such as Lux soap, Muriel cigars,Â Prince Albert tobacco, cookies andÂ bottles ofÂ soda apparently for sale in my photo of the canteen.Â I wonder when the first one will appear.Â We of course do know of theÂ Bordanweisung note that came from the Columbus that I mentioned before.Â If you look in World War II Remembered, you will see that by the currency restrictionsÂ imposed by ReichsbankÂ president Dr. Hjalmer Horace Greely Schacht, travelers aboard ships departing Germany could not carry German currency.Â To remedy this the Bordanweisung notes were sold to passengers.Â On the back in both German and English,Â was the text "This money-order is valid on board of this ship and for this particular journey only.Â Unused ordersÂ will be cashed immediately after landing in Germany.Â It is not permissible to cash them later inland as this would be contravening the law.Â Â Orders will not be redeemed in cashÂ when the passenger leaves the ship at a foreign port.Â In suchÂ instances the orders unused must be handed to the purser who will see that the equivalent value is remitted to the passenger."Â Â Unfortunately the one I have is dated 14 September 1938.Â You can see it at www.papermoneyworld.net/larry/71702gg.jpgÂ Â This is one year before this fatefulÂ cruise. Somewhere out there I am sure there is a similar note dated inÂ late August of 1939 that was printed for this voyage.Â I sure would like to seeÂ that one.Â =====

Once again, Larry has given us an outstanding feature. Few articles in any numismatic publication have so much new information.Â Furthermore, his article reintroduces illustrations to the Gram. This is a feature that we have experimented with in the past and which we certainly need. Please give us some feedback on using these links. If all goes well, this will be a regular

A I had never heard of embassy parolees, but I (and Larry too) knew that during the period of neutrality German combatants who found their way to the US were turned over to the German embassy. There was at least one famous case of this.
 A A famous German pilot was captured in England. He escaped, twice I think. He was sent to Canada where it was thought that he would have less chance for a successful escape.
 A He jumped from a train and walked across the frozen Lawrence River to New York. He gave himself up to US authorities who turned him over to the German embassy while it was decided what to do with him. While the decision was being made the embassy sent him back to Germany. Later he was killed in action. I am sorry that I do not recall his name.

^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ ^ "Students Love Seminar"

By Ray Sidman Â It comes but once per year. Well, twice, actually but only during one two-week period each year can hobbyists enjoy the American Numismatic Association Summer Seminar. The seminar comprises two one-week class sessions. This year I attended the first session, which ran June 30 to July 5. It was my first ANA Summer Seminar. Approximately 250 students and instructors swarmed upon ANA headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo., and the Colorado College campus, which is literally just next door. Students stay in the college dormitories and meals are provided at the Worner Campus Center, an end-of-the-rainbow outlet for students (cafe, bookstore, community service center, dining hall, student organization offices ... and lots more). I flew into Colorado Springs via Appleton, Wis., and Chicago, Ill., and was greeted at the airport by a pair of cheerful Young Numismatists who arranged a ride for myself and two other first-time seminar attendees. James Taylor of Independent Coin Grading Company chauffeured us to the campus where I checked in and was golf-carted (amusement park rides aren't this fun) to the Knight Student Apartment Complex (previously referred to as dormitories). Weather was pleasant that day, and remained in the 80s all week, with only the occasional spit of rain. Actually, the rain was welcome in the evening as it helped cool the dorms, which were not air conditioned. Large fans were provided to each student, however, and the evenings were pleasantly cooler. The dorms were newly constructed, and many including the one I and my three roommates stayed in had never been used. Very nice and clean, plus it had cable television. The ANA provided excellent hosting services. Beyond the classes and extras associated with the seminar, the ANA Money Museum and library was open early in the morning until late evening, and the staff was friendly and very willing to provide whatever I requested. The annual book sale got under way at 8 a.m. Sunday morning at ANA headquarters, and a long line built up well before that. (I should know, I was there.) Downstairs from the main floor, which housed the Harry Bass Jr. Collection and other notable exhibits, was an entire floor relating to numismatics in music. Several contributions from ANA staff and outside individuals went into this (not to mention the work setting it up), and the result is impressive. Classes at the first session included ones on coin grading, intaglio engraving, the primer course The Compleat Numismatist, classes on various regions and historical periods and plenty more. There were also mini-seminars that met in the evenings. Field trips provided those who signed up with expeditions to Pikes Peak (a requirement for first-time YNs) and a Colorado Rockies professional baseball game, which I heard was a blast. My class of choice was Military Numismatics since 1930, taught by Joe Boling of Federal Way, Wash., and Fred Schwan of Port Clinton, Ohio. The two lived up to their self-styled odd couple title, playing off each other to provide an exciting and informative atmosphere. Boling gave the level-headed side of the presentation with a twist of humor, specifically in the areas of World War II and international military currencies. Schwan also proved himself a fount of knowledge, albeit a frenzied and unpredictable one (think Old Faithful with no timetable and a caffeine overdose). It's safe to say the 11 students enjoyed both instructors' classroom savvy. The two went so far as to set up a process to add the true military numismatic feel to the class. During the first class, on Sunday, each student was given an Individual Pay Record booklet along with a certain amount of yen, then the current military money being used by the studentser, soldiers. Four textbooks were purchased using the money, while trading became the modus operandi, continuing every day before class, at lunch, after class and during breaks. Boling and Schwan made themselves available for questions and discussion during these times as well. The trading among classmates was enhanced by star notes, an error note, and the desire to collect various elements. For example, I managed to have the two-yen note in both serial No. 2 and serial No. 2 star note. Boling wanted anything with a serial No. 8, student/Bank Note Reporter writer Mark Hotz of Brooklandville, Md., collected the one-, two-, five-, 10- and 20-yen notes in serial No. 7 (there were also 200-yen notes). Dealer David Seelye wanted anything with a serial No. 1, adding to his collection of similar material procured at the recent MPC Fests. Later that week, a conversion took place, a common occurrence in the military through the Vietnam era. In this case, the yen became dollars. And the trading continued.

Perhaps best summarizing the enthusiasm of those in the military numismatics field was Schwan, who after explaining SWIMS (notes with serial numbers that are the same when reversed end-to-end and flipped upside-down) commented with a grin: Were sick.

Around that time, a package arrived from Carlson R. Chambliss (whose U.S. Paper Money Guide and Handbook was one of our class texts) with full-color copies appropriately labeled of every U.S. Military Payment Certificate type known. Very useful. Even ANA education director Gail Baker got caught up in the action, having her own Individual Pay Record and taking part in the conversion. Students that performed particularly admirably received the MPC Fest challenge coin. Perhaps ranking above all others in this respect was Chuck Buddha Irwin of Lantana, Fla., who had two before the end of the week. There were more similar interactive elements, and all proved interesting. Night life was also provided by the ANA. There were eight bull sessions over the course of six nights. Opening ceremonies took place Saturday evening at 6:30. Arlyn Sieber of Krause Publications, author of Pioneer Publisher, spoke to a packed house about Chester Krause and the development of Krause Publications and the hobby in the last 50 years. Sunday evening, Dave Jaeger (one of my roommates) spoke on From Mine to Mill to Mint, followed by Civil War Money by David Swearingon in full Civil War (Yankee) uniform. ANA executive director Ed Rochette, Steve Ellsworth, Joe Boling and Mark Hotz also spoke over the next few nights. A concert by the Doe Brothers wrapped the seminar Thursday night. The annual YN Scholarship Fund Auction started at 1 p.m. Thursday, with plenty of fun provided by the ANA, volunteer auctioneer Sonny Henry, the YNs, plus a bonus presentation by Brian Fanton of Hiawatha, Iowa. YN Cameron Kiefer, who spearheaded the auction, reported it made $6,254.70. Proceeds fund YN scholarships to future Summer Seminars. Another YN auction was slated for the second weeks seminar. After class Sunday, seminar attendees were invited to attend an art exhibit and reception in Worner Center with works by students of the intaglio engraving class, taught by Christopher Madden. As the seminar wound down, the traditional banquet was held Thursday evening. I think nearly everyone at the seminar that week attended, with every seat filled. Several awards were presented, and a delicious meal of roast beef, salad and a few other dishes was consumed. During the meal, the banquet hall was very quiet. Afterwards, presentations kept things lively. San Diego resident James Wells walked away with a medal for 50 years of membership. Shortly thereafter, Larry Johnson of Colorado Springs received an ANA Presidential Award. Theres plenty more to say, honestly. Ill summarize thus: if you have the chance to attend an ANA Summer Seminar, most definitely do. Its an experience youll never forget. =====

The linked illustrations seem to be working. There was one complaint, but it may have worked out. This is an exciting enhancement to the Gram, but then, I have said that before. More photos are planned for tomorrow.

Dear Editor,
In Thurski MPC gram you mentioned a German pilot's name who you could not remember.Â His name is Lt Franz von Werra.Â There is an excellent book about his adventures.Â The book is called " Single or Return" written by a fellow POW Fritz Wentzel.Â The title is taken from the downfall of a couple of other german escapees.Â A Nottingham bus conductor asked them
"single or return" which confused them as they did not know what he meant.Â The conductor raised the alarm right away because is was simple asking the POW's if they wanted a one way ticket or a return one.Â Any way the book is a very good read because it tells the story from the other side of the fence.Â If memory services me right von Werra actually travelled through the United States to places south (some where in South America) before crossing over to Europe.Â Hope this information is useful to the gramsters.

PS: During WWII my grandfather was a guard at a POW camp.Â I believe it was around the Lethbridge, Alberta area.Â He passed on before I was able to ask detailed questions about camp life, but I have seen some of his artifacts and pictures.Â One of these artifacts is a "ship in a bottle".Â It is a full clipper ship in a mickey size bottle (hip flask size).Â I was always lead to believe that this had been done by a Japanese POW.Â There are also some other water color painting but these went to different Aunt's and I have not seen them for a number of years.

Dear Dean,
Â Thanks for the info. I am sure the Gram readers wold love to see some of your grandfathers POW pictures here in the Gram (showing off the new capablity).

Dear Editor,
Â I believe that an event held during and in conjunction with ANA'sÂ November 8, 2002 start of WW2 numismatics exhibit is an OUTSTANDING opportunity to present "mainstream" USA coin collectors with our collecting passion!
Â I would certainly attend the event( either as a dealer-collector as in a MPCFEST event, dealer as CPMX paper money show, dealer as FUN Show or collector/interested in the subject matter) and support it in any format, as I am able to help.Â Â I am currently working on a display of ANA seminar MFC scrip, at the request of an ANA official.Â My personal collection will be used, as needed, for the display.

David E. Seelye

Dear Editor,
Â Links to illustrations (MPC Gram 675) worked fine.
More please.
Â For what its worth, I recall seeing the story of the German pilotÂ onÂ TV in the past year or so.
Unfortunately, I can't even remember whether it was a movie or an historical feature - let alone the pilot's name. Perhaps another gramster has a better memory.

Gramme A.

Editor,
Links to illustrations are excellent. Yahooski!
Cheers,
Colin

2002 ANA Military Numismatics Seminar
by David Seelye

[see illustrations at:

However prior to the issuing of the "C" yen, the only valid currency at the seminar by posted proclamation, training was needed. Warner Talso functioned as the pay officer, while I was the trainee. I reported to the desk in class and was issued 1, 2, 5, 10, 20 yen yellow training notes, after presenting my dog tag id (purchased at MPCFEST III) and my pay book. The training complete, we went into the hall where Warner and Max (the YN) issued our pay envelopes containing 336 yen. On the board in the classroom there was a posting of the conversion factor from US$ to yen US$1.00= ¥2.8. Anyone needing to convert additional greenbacks to yen needed to meet with the pay officer, a Major Major. This was not an easy task, as the hours favored by Major Major did not correlate with anything except to make it impossible do a conversion. Furthermore, the hours were normally posted after the time had passed!

A Max noticed that his 200 yen had 100 yen on the back of the note, not 200 yen!! He found a double denomination!!! After a consult, Max traded the note to me for my collection (more on this later) for 150 yen, for the required two books, and US$100.00.

Â By now, I presume that the reader has figured out my problem. We were only issued Y336 and I need at least 3 200 yen notes. I need the 1* which I had, I needed the 1C, and I needed a note to show the back of the note. Trades were made, where I received "C" yen in exchange for MPC off my fixed price list #15 (I brought 15 copies to the class). Bob Kurcher showed me the 200 yen that he received in his pay. It was C00000002*. Now I wanted that note for Harold Kroll. As most of you know he collects MFC serial number 2. Å We were watching TV after breakfast, waiting for the room to be opened by Joe B. (he always beat Fred to the room). I asked what he wanted for the note. He replied that he wanted to keep it, as it was an error. I sat upright in the chair while he showed me what he found. The notes have 200 in numbers on the face of the note. In the corner, the note he had did not have 200 but 20!!! I quickly checked my 200 yen C00000001* and sure enough. It had the same error. The rest of the 200 yen did not have the error, only the replacements!!!! I showed Fred in the seminar room before class started and he was astounded. Å The seminar had started with Fred covering the MPC section Sunday and Monday. Joe Boling took over and covered the Japanese homeland and Chinese occupation issues, along with the Japanese bonds used to finance the war. Fred followed up with the German and German occupation issues, along with the French and colonies issues. All of the discussion was accompanied by the passing around of the various notes the speakers were talking about. For me the seeing and handling the Fred's replacement collection was the summit of supreme pleasure. A close second was his collection of Thailand and Korean MPC. His collections in these two areas are a sight to behold. Joe's collection of Japanese war bonds is also the best in the world. And it's a wonderful thing to see the pieces and have the knowledgeable speakers to give you the interesting tidbits that fill out the information that's not in a book. Å One evening after class, Warner, Frank Clark, Fred and I went to the cafeteria for a coffee and talk. Fred excused himself for a bit and went over to a small table, hunched over something and appeared to be sorting. He came back to the table and showed a group of twelve AFC Specimen notes!! There were six 1 yen notes, 5 with blue Specimen and 1 with red specimen overprint with serial number C00000000C; two 10 yen with the blue Specimen; three 20 yen with blue Specimen; and one 200 yen with blue Specimen. The 200 yen note brought me up in my chair as it was an expedient Specimen on a note with a serial number. The number is C00000001C!!! The note I need for my set!! Fred charged Warner and me to come up with a plan to distribute the notes in a random way during tomorrow's class. My additional task was to safeguard the notes over night. The notes were placed in individual safety envelopes by Warner. They were then shuffled and the students allowed to pick, with Warner taking the last envelope. I received a 1 yen blue specimen. The expedient specimen eventually found it's way home. Å As the days progressed, Max remarked to me about the changing rate of the US$ to yen. The posted rate started at 2.8 yen per dollar, and by Wednesday it was at 6 yen per dollar. I had noticed the rate change, but since Major Major was never around to convert dollars to yen had not made the connection Max made. Max asked if there was going to be a conversion due to the apparent inflation!!! I asked Max to repeat his question to Fred. Å Wednesday afternoon, about 3:30PM , it was announced that due to inflation there would be a conversion. The appropriate form was passed out to the class. The form, along with all the AFC yen for conversion were turned in to the officer in charge, Fred. You were given a receipt for the yen turned in, but no new scrip!!! A number of the class protested as they would have no funds for the last night in Colorado Springs. To no avail. Max was not at class for most of the afternoon, as the YN's had a YN sponsored trip to a Colorado Rockies baseball game. He would be able to do a late conversion on Thursday morning. Å On Thursday morning we received our new scrip. We were issued MFC series 022, still current in all other areas that accept MFC, with a red ANA overprint. Again a new white proclamation was posted over the top of the old yellow AFC proclamation. The new one stated that only ANA overprint series 022 was valid in this area. About this time Warner passed out to the class some yellow scrap paper, that happened to be training notes. Å The rate used to convert our AFC yen to series 022

MFC was 5 yen per dollar. This was an unexpected bonus, as the official rate before conversion was 6 yen per dollar. With the limited amount of ANA overprint, plus the fact that it was already in use, meant that there were no serial number 1's available. But I did manage to acquire a set of notes of each denomination. I will accept any ANA overprint MFC series at a premium over face on any of my fixed price lists. At Thursday noon the class ended! It was interesting to note that an attendee, who had purchased a 3rd edition of the "The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates" at the ANA library sale just prior to the start of class, and protested that he didn't need the new edition, made a trade with me to acquire the 2nd edition. I helped to pack up the classroom and "neaten" up a bit. I liberated the proclamations, as I collect/ accumulate MFC and related ephemera. I was quite surprised to find that the back of the first proclamation on the yellow paper of the AFC training money had a partially printed sheet of training money. Apparently this was discarded as scrap, then was put into use on the clean side for the proclamation! As I said earlier I collect MFC. Specifically any serial number 1 and 1 replacement from any series, errors, and related ephemera. I also accept at par any current MFC on any items from my fixed price lists or at shows. In addition I maintain an Excel spread sheet on serial number and related information on MFC series 011, 022, and their ANA overprints, and AFC yen. I am always looking for serial number information. So MPCFEST IIIers please send me your serial and position number information. =====

Since the success of the linked photographs, I have been thinking about this. First, the experiment was not a complete success. One Gramster said that he could not make the links work. After that, I tried sending him some illustrations as attachments. That worked well for him which got me thinking that I can try sending illustrations as attachments. Therefore, I am sending one here as an attachment. To make things better (or more complicated) here is a link to the photos:
www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/Atlanta.htm

Now you have a choice of ways to look at them and also to comment about! We want to hear from you.

Â The attached photo is of the guard tower at the museum for the Atlanta POW camp. As described a few days ago, this tower is a reproduction. Â I asked the people at the museum about it. The tower was recreated from photos that were available of the original towers. I was disaponted that they did not have original plans to work from. However, now I am wondering if they can provide the plans for the repro?!

Fred, This gram has a question from Chief (USAF) Richard Ziegler asking where he can purchase the MPC Replica notes. I have classifields for these 107 note sets in both Bank Note Reporter and Numismatic News at $25.00 per set. Â If you deem it OK I'd like to offer these sets in the gram for any gramster for $20.00 per set. Â In addition, for anyone who buys from me through the gram I will put 10% of the purchase into the scholarship fund.
Thank you. Dick Freyser
Dear Dick,
Â Thank you for your generous offer. You ad appears below.

Editor,
Â Interesting. There were nearly 600 Germans kerplunk in the middle of the area of operation for the Manhattan Project...Â I wonder if they were still there at 0530 on 16 July 1945...
Â I searched www.TopoZone.com for Fort Stanton, NM and found it located about 50 miles ESE of the Trinity Test site. It was called "Fort Stanton Hospital and Military Reservation" on the map. The 1:25,000 view of the map showed a very detailed location for the buildings there at the time of creation of the map.

The United States Post Office in WWII, by Lawrence Sherman
by Howard A. Daniel III

Another source and review is at <http://www.pbbooks.com/war.htm>. It has many other books that might be of interest to you, but I think you must send a check and cannot do it all online. But there is also <http://www.jameslee.com/beyond26.htm>, where you can buy it with a credit card and do it all online. If one or more Gramsters do buy this book, please write a review here to see if others might find it useful to have it in their library. Please email me a copy of your review at "Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com" in case our esteemed MPC Gram editor has another computer problem. I am not sure if "Gold Star Mothers" is something for the Gram or not, but it was recently forwarded to me by a friend who is a veteran of the Korean War. It was not written by him, but by Cdr. Hamilton McWhorter USN Retired.

The first book SKU is 1576410 and with the title: "In Enemy Hands: Personal Accounts of Those Taken Prisoner of War in World War II" by Claire Swedberg.
 Â It has 284 pages and was published by Stackpole for $24.95.Â The sale price is $7.95.

The second book SKU is 1529641 and with the title: "The Wrong Side of the Fence: A United States Army Air Corps POW in World War II" by Eugene E. Halmost, Jr. It has 152 pages and was published by White Mane for $24.95. The sale price is also $7.95. You can write to Edward R. Hamilton, Bookseller, Falls Village, CT 06031-5000 and add only $3.50 postage to have one or both books shipped to you.Â Their website is at "www.EdwardRHamilton.com". They only take checks or money orders, so you cannot order it online.Â These guys do not want to get too far into the twenty-first century!! What I really like about the second book is "United States Army Air Corps" in the title.Â Doesn't it sound so much better than that modern "United States Air Force"?Â I can already hear Larry and the other "blue" guys out there typing a nasty email to me at "Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com". I hope someone finds something in one or both books about camp scrip, but if not, it might be worthwhile contacting the authors through their publishers to see if they came across some information during their research and did not write about it.

Dear Gram,
After reading the reports of the summer seminar, I am even more upset that I did not go. I will be there next year for sure!

MPCKid (Kroll)

Dear Gram,
Â Just a quick note to letÂ you know that we have table #E05 on the 6th floor at the upcoming ANA convention in New York City . The convention takes place Wednesday July 31st through Sunday August 4th at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in mid-town Manhattan.
Â We will have a goodly portion of our stock of World and Ancient coins as well as tokens, medals, banknotes and related items. As usual our offerings of numismatics of the Holyland and the Jewish People from ancient to modern times will be especially strong. However we certainly can't take everything we have in our inventory. Please contact us by this Tuesday, July 23rd, if there is something specific you would like us to bring.
Â If your plans are to go to NYC, we hope to see you there.

Bill Rosenblum

Dear Bill,
Â I doubt if I need to mention it, but please take your concnetration camp notes and similar items to NY! I want to find some treasure!

Conversion Insights

Â As described by David, we turned in our AFC to the Pay Officer and received a receipt on Wednesday afternoon at the ANA seminar.Â David also mentioned that Max was not there due to a YN event.Â Well, for reason's I can't remember, I didn't turn in three notes.Â I then asked the Pay Officer if I could turn them in and amend my receipt.Â The Pay Officer refused.Â I then started mumbling about the injustice of it all and wondered aloud to David if there was any way around the Pay Officers intransigence.Â Somewhere in this conversation we got the idea of giving my AFC to Max to turn in the following morning.

Â Now, I may be old, but I make up for it by being slow.Â We are having this conversation right in front of the Pay Officer.Â It takes about 10 seconds for this plan to register with him.Â He then snatches the AFC from my hand and stamps it "VOID"!Â I was foiled!Â

ANTHONY J. SWIATEK RECEIVES ANAS 2002 FARRAN ZERBE AWARD

Â The Brooklyn-born numismatist started out his teaching career in the New York City school system.

Holding bachelors and masters degrees from City College of New York earned while working days and attending classes at night. Swiatek entered what he thought was to be his first and only profession. I always enjoyed helping children and really felt I had that sense of calling, he says. It was a lot of work, but I liked it; I really cared.

Swiatek was in his late 20s by the time he completed his first college degree and began teaching science. However, after 10 years in front of the classroom full time and extra hours with coins, he decided to give his other love a try. Taking a leave of absence from teaching, he dove completely into numismatics.

While attending college, Swiatek heard of a coin show at the New Yorker Hotel in Manhattan. There he met Julius Turoff and Moe Weinschel, who gave him copies of Coin World and Numismatic News, and began to introduce him to the wonderful world of numismatics. I will never forget what they did for me, Swiatek says, his voice filled with sincerity. They took the time to help me, lead me, teach me.

While at a show in New York in 1971, Swiatek met noted numismatist John Jay Pittman, who sponsored him for membership in the ANA. Two years later, Pittman convinced him to convert to life membership (#1099). Over the ensuing years, other collectors and dealers guided the young hobbyist, including numismatic legends Abe Kosoff, Sol Kaplan and Lester Merkin, who Swiatek calls his Numismatic Father.

He always tried to help me, Swiatek says. And Margo Russell (then editor of the weekly hobby publication Coin World) took me under her wing. She was a fantastic influence on me; she encouraged me to write for her publication and others. She was my Numismatic Mother. After becoming a full-time coin dealer in 1979, Swiatek immersed himself in the hobby as a writer, lecturer and advocate. He pursued commemorative coins, as well as U.S. silver dollars and gold issues. That devotion opened many doors, including the opportunity to testify before the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs and Coinage regarding commemorative coinage. Swiateks reputation also led him to participate in many first strike ceremonies, and he has been an invited guest at White House ceremonies. Today, Swiatek operates Swiatek-Minerva Coins and Jewelry, Ltd. in Manhasset, New York, with his wife, Gloria, and produces a newsletter about the numismatic marketplace, The Swiatek Report. He is a member of more than 20 coin clubs and organizations around the country and served 10 years on the ANA Board of Governors, including terms as president and vice president. Ever the teacher, Swiatek frequently volunteers as a speaker and instructor for many of the organizations to which he belongs. At ANA conventions, he always can be found leading a Numismatic Theatre presentation. The perpetual student, he expanded his own knowledge by studying for the ANAs World Series of Numismatics, a mind-challenging game of wits held at the Associations summer conventions. He captained his team Minervas Conquerorsto victories in 1992, 93, 95 and 97, and a fifth time in 1998, in The Tournament of Past Champions.

Outside the classroom and lecture circuit, Swiatek continues his instruction with his writings, receiving the ANAs Heath Literary Award and Wayte and Olga Raymond Memorial Literary Award, as well as several Numismatic Literary Guild awards. He is the author of Commemorative Coins of the United States; co-author of Encyclopedia of United States Silver and Gold Commemorative Coins, 1892-1954; and The Walking Liberty Half Dollar.

Swiatek is a recipient of the ANAs Outstanding Adult Advisor Award, Glenn Smedley Memorial Award and Medal of Merit. He also received the Great Eastern Numismatic Associations first Frank J. Caggiano Literary Award. In 1993 he was named a Numismatic Ambassador by Numismatic News. Nominator Walter Ostromecki offered his own definition of this years Farran Zerbe Memorial Award winner. Anthony Swiatek is the gracious hobbyist of hobbyists; the consummate mentor of mentors; the academic teacher of teachers; and one who never has failed to encourage others on all levels to Have more fun with your hobby.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Editorial

I recently received an inquiry about the suitability of a proposed article for the Gram. It appeared that it would be a general article about WWII. The prospective writer did not state the numismatic connection. Basically, I told him that we want a numismatic connection for our editorial material. Furthermore, the items should have a connection to military numismatics.

Â Having said this, we sometimes do not meet this goal. Sometimes we include things because of their general interest. Other times we might include something because the inbasket is running on empty (gad). We might also run items from a regular contributor that we might not for someone else.

Â I told the Gramster that I would write about these editorial standards in today's editorial. Then something interesting happened! We received the above news release about the Zerbe award.

Â Clearly it is numismatic. The connection to military numismatics is much less clear. First, let me say that Swiatek is a friend of military numismatics. He has demonstrated this in many ways even if he has never owned an MPC or sold an AMC (I do not know if he has ever done either).

Â The release also had two other properties that were important in the decision. It was timely. Because of the nature of the Gram, we can deliver news faster than just about any numismatic publication. Therefore, if we can fulfill an important news function, we often will elect to do it. Next is the overall newsworthiness of the item. Not only does this item inform readers, but it also promotes the forthcoming ANA convention. This is the next major stop on the numismatic calendar. We support the ANA convention on many levels and want to promote it.

Â Has all of this been clear? Has any of it been clear? We inviteÂ your comments.

Fred

POST / BASE EXCHANGE(PX/BX/NEX)

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: $3950

Series 521 5 cent, second printing (12 reported), great fine (SN E01088098/pos 53) $275.00

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33) F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now. In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description. Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better! It has three heavy vertical folds. The two flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only $995.

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VF $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

A Â A Â A Â Hitting the bases on 11 August 1969, Series 681 represented a change inÂ the design philosophy of MPC. Instead of having female vignettes, theÂ series, for the most part, highlighted the various military services. Like the prior series, 681 had eight denominations, from a nickel to twentyÂ dollars, only the twenty dollar note having a second printing. Â Looking at the fractionals, the face depicts the USS Thomas A. Edison returning to Holy Loch Scotland from its first patrol, sometime around May 1963. The BEP based the design on a photograph taken by Captain Young. These submarines had two crews with Captain Young being the skipper of the crew about to take the submarine. As fellow Gramster and Seminarian David Klinger has reported in depth on this subject, please refer back to recent Gram articles for more information. Â Switching to the back of the note, the design moves to outer space with an astronaut vignette. Even though you cannot see the astronaut's face, you can easily identify him as Maj Edward A. White, the first American astronaut to walk in space. To compare your note to the actual picture, I refer you to the NASA website at:

681 MPC Series by George Fitzgerald

A Â Jay in Garrison, TX had an interesting comment to my last week's article about the crew of the German Liner interned at Fort Stanton, New Mexico.Â Jay wrote that Fort Stanton is a mere 50 miles from the Trinity site where the United States tested the first atomic bomb on the 16th of July 1945. He wondered whether the German seamen were there at the time of the blast.Â Â I hadn't thought about that aspect, in fact I have to admit, that I hadn't even associated that piece of World War II history that put us into the Atomic Age with the proximity of the crew from the liner "Columbus". I did some real quick searches on Google to bring myself up to speed on the Blast at Trinity site and reviewed my notes on Fort Stanton. Jay was absolutely right about Fort Stanton being 50 miles from the site of the blast, but so were the cities of Alamogordo and Truth or Consequences with Ruidoso and Socorro a few miles closer than that. I learned from the Internet that that first blast was an air burst suspended on a tower, 100 feet above the ground. That made it a much cleaner detonation than if it were a ground burst which would have hurled much more radiation contaminate up into the sky. I also learned that this first bomb developed a blast equivalent of 19 kilotons of TNT. Now this is much smaller than the megaton nuclear weapons that we used to haul around on B-52's during the cold war. There were bunkers at 10,000 and 20,000 feet from the blast were observers viewed the awesome power though protective lenses. When it was all over there were reports of broken windows as far away as 120 miles. The observers indicated that the heat from the blast was akin to opening the door of a blast furnace. However, the farmhouse where the bomb was assembled, two miles from ground zero was intact, less the windows. The barn roof was reported as being on but bowed. Since the detonation occurred at 0530 in the morning, reports that it could be seen for over a hundred miles are readily believable as it probably was still fairly dark at that time. Gamma radiation was recorded on specially positioned instrumentation but was reported as quickly subsiding. To answer the question on whether the internees were moved prior to the blast, I have found no specific date on when they began their return to their homeland. The few mentions of that event that I have found only say after the war. Since VE day was only a little over two months before the test, I don't imagine we were in any hurry to repatriate the seamen. Our troop ships could probably be more effectively used transporting soldiers to the Pacific Front. By the way, there was no announcement that the blast was going to take place, and the report in the press the following day was that a military ammunition dump blew up causing the shock wave and fireball. No reports of the test were made until after the second bomb was dropped on Japan. As mentioned above, there were several major cities the same distance from the blast as Fort Stanton, therefore I doubt that these internees were considered in harm's way. So my guess is that the internees remained at the camp during the test.

I also mentioned in the article that the German seamen were rescued by the U. S. Cruiser Tuscaloosa. When I reread my column, that name rang a bell in my mind. There was something familiar about Tuscaloosa that I just couldn't put my finger on. Of course, I knew the city was in the west central part of Alabama, and was the home of the University of Alabama, but that wasn't what I was reaching for. I was going through some items that I had picked up at the Memphis paper money show, when it jumped up and grabbed me. Good friend R. A. Medina had given me an envelope of odds and ends to go through. There was some short snorters, World War I POW notes, propaganda leaflets, a couple of Chinese Bonds, some ration items, etc, etc, etc. AND A HAND DRAWN PHILATELIC COVER FROM THE CRUISER TUSCALOOSA. Someone had taken an envelope drawn a red, white and blue background, then sketched an outline of the state of Alabama on it with a basket of cotton and the location of Tuscaloosa. 'Cruiser' is hand lettered above the state with "Tuscaloosa" below. The postmark features "U.S.S. TUSCALOOSA--FEB 12, P.M. 1941." The three cent stamp is the 1937 Territorial issue from the Virgin Islands with a slogan cancellation that reads "Lincoln's Birthday" and sure enough it was. See it at www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/postcard.htm I tried to find what the Tuscaloosa was doing at the time of the post mark, but all I could find is that much of 1941 involved the tedium of patrolling the shipping lanes of the North Atlantic. Yes, it is postmarked a year and a couple of months after the rescue of the German seamen, but still there is a connection. I'm not a stamp collector but I consider this a nice addition to my note collection. I will never be able to pass by that Ship's Money Order (Bordanweisung) note from the Columbus without thinking about it's scuttling, the rescue by Tuscaloosa and this cover. To me this is one of the greatest parts of our collecting hobby, being able to tie the events and issues together. Now who out there is going to find a chit or possibly a short snorter from Trinity Site, Fort Stanton or the U.S.S. Tuscaloosa. Editorial

I am certainly happy that I gave Mark Watson credit for his 681 article in the editorial since I blew it and did not put his byline on the article. Will you buy the story that that was an editorial experiment? Sorry, Mark, and thanks again. Fred

Dear Gram,
Enjoyed Mark's article on Series 681 and particularly liked the NASA photo of Maj Edward A. White's space walk. Noting NASA had uploaded the picture upside down, and not being too keen to turn my monitor over in line with Mark's first suggestion, I followed his alternate idea and viewed it standing on my head. Makes all the difference, but unfortunately I was still unable to compare it properly with the astronaut vignette on the back of the fractionals as I discovered, when on my head, the note was then upside down. Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: $3950

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33)Â F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now.Â In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description. Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better! It has three heavy vertical folds. The twoÂ flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only $995.

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VFÂ $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

Physical cancellation methods--Japanese and related notes
by Joe Boling

A Â Pass? I asked for a pass? I was doing hard labor. Monday night (Fred's Tuesday morning) I sent him the following email: "Sorry, I forgot it was Monday. I'm on my way out on a 100-miler and won't be fit to write anything tonight either, so the column will either come Wednesday AM or not at all." I was taking a training ride for the Multiple Sclerosis Society benefit bicycle ride that I do every year (for which Fred generously contributes 20c/mile), which will come immediately after ANA this year, so I needed to get some miles in. I rode twelve hours (101 miles, 7500 feet elevation gain), then slept eleven hours. Since he had the series 681 report for Wednesday and Ski's column for Thursday, he didn't need mine until Friday. Now, next week I may need a pass, because the column will be due the night I get to New York for ANA, and the likelihood of my writing one then is slim (unless there is convention or auction news to report). Â Â So, what to talk about THIS week? How about physical cancellation methods? Japanese and J- related notes have appeared cancelled in the following ways: cut, punched, drilled, angled (ignoring the many forms of stamping that have also been used). Â Â The only pieces I recall seeing cancelled by cutting are hansatsu, somewhat outside the scope of this rag, so we'll move on to punched. This can be accomplished with the ubiquitous single or two- hole hand punches, or by press punches capable of penetrating a thick stack of notes at once. The lightweight hand punches leave smooth holes that might occasionally have a notch caused by a burr on the punch. They are generally hard to authenticate because they have no physical signature (other than the hole that is left). If the punching is taking the form of fine perforations forming letters, characters, or numerals, these are somewhat easier to authenticate if one has access to quantities of such notes from disparate sources (for instance, to ensure that the punched character "mihon" in a specimen is original, and not a fabricated piece prepared for the collector market). Â Â When we get to pieces that have been punched with a machine punch or a drill, then we have additional physical evidence. This is in the form of wrinkling around the hole caused by pressure as the punch die penetrates a large number of notes at one time, such as an entire pack (or more). Note the listing at SB2174bx: "cancelled w/ragged 14-17mm hole." A punch die that large needs tremendous pressure to penetrate quantities of notes, which is why the diameter varies; the hole is not cleanly cut. That particular punch was used to cancel spoiled (error) notes; many such notes show inspectors' crayon rejection marks. Â Â But even small-diameter holes, if created through sufficient notes at once, will leave this signature wrinkling (cratering) around the hole. See the specimens on pages 602 and 608 of SB; even those small holes often show this distinctive disruption of the paper, aside from the physical removal of a disc.Â Â Now go to pages 532 and 535 of SB; note the pieces with four holes punched in the center. These are expedient specimens. Apparently a single punch was available and the stack of notes had to be manually moved three times to get the four holes created. One hardly ever finds two notes with identical hole patterns, but those holes do show signs of having been created on bulk quantities of notes; they are not smoothly cut. Â Â Finally, note the Y200 piece at SB163 on page 535.

Those smooth oval holes could only have been cut by a high speed drill with the pack (or several packs) of notes secured in a jig of some sort at an angle to the drill face. I don't recall seeing notes from any other nation cancelled by that process.    Another day we'll talk about stamped cancellations.    =====

Joe mentions that he might have trouble filing his column next week. Hm. Well, we will have some problems for the next week too. Ironically, while the ANA convention will likely generate some news, often a lot of news, it might be difficult to get the Gram out every day. Therefore, as always we need and want your submissions. If you do not have that article finished, work on it; don't even have it started, send a question, make a complaint. We want to hear from you and need your submissions over the next two weeks. Thanks.

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: $3950

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33)Â F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now.Â In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description. Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better! It has three heavy vertical folds. The twoÂ flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only $995.

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VFÂ $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

Series 003 - Number 684-Saturday 27 July 2002
Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Important notes offered

by Howard Daniel

I just received a regular mail version of the Compagnie Generale de Bourse (CGB) "Billets 30" catalogue. The back of the catalogue has some terrific WWII items.

Go to "www.cgb.fr" and click on the "Billets 30". Then click on the last category of notes with "Tresorerie" and click on next page until you see lot 4127, which is the first WWII French allied paper money.

Item is 2 Francs with a perforated specimen for 130 Euros, and there are similar examples of most other denominations too. Then there is a Specimens of Supplemental French Franc Currency booklet for 5000 Euros! Besides these specimens, there are many other scarce to rare notes of these French notes.

Good luck in acquiring the pieces you need.

New MPC Program

A The American Numismatic Association Library is preparing a new slide program on military payment certificates.

A New slides were shot during the summer seminar. The old ones were not only out of date (no 691/701--651 fractionals), but were also terrible! The new ones will be great since they were taken by the ANA official/professional photographer.

A The text is also being revised so this should be a great set to offer to your clubs etc. Expect the project to be finished by about the first of the year. You can be sure that you will read about the completion in your Gram.

[illegible]

We just learned that there was a problem sending out Gram 682. You probably received 683 BEFORE 682. Of course we are sorry about the confusion, but the computer gods got us on this one! (It was not even the editor's fault!!)

A Just as I claim that it was not my fault, I must admit that the above important item from Howard was somehow delayed by two days because of a senior moment. I can remember working on the item for inclusion in the Gram several days ago, but when challenged on this by Howard, I could not find it. Possibly it was in Gram 682.333?

Korean War Veteran's Memorial Day

Editor,
I just wanted to commend you and your staff for providing a MPC Gram that has been timely, easy to read, and in the correct format for the last two months. I have had NO problem having it spread over 6 - 7 monitor screens wide as in the past. Whatever you're doing, keep up the good work.

I appreciate it!

(Alias Don Taylor)

re the attachment issue.Â no, i've not recieved any attachments either, and i use a regular isp and stand-alone email software.Â in any case, i'd rather that you just include a url for the image, as that only takes up a fewÂ bytes in the text of the newsletter instead of several hundred? kb on my hard drive in a separate file.

[illegible]

A USS Wyoming was a WW1 era battleship converted to a training ship as per the Washington Naval treaty after WW1. Long gone by Korea and Vietnam. Only the 4 Iowa class battleships (Iowa, New Jersey, Missouri and Wisconsin) remained on the reserve list at the beginning of the US phase of the Vietnam war. Only Iowa and New Jersey were activated at that time. All four were later re-fitted in the early 80's with cruise missiles, Phalanx (?) AA guns etc. and I think all but Iowa saw action during the Gulf war. All are de-commissioned now and no battleships are active or in reserve anywhere in the world.

Larry Gibbs

Dear Gram,
Â Over the weekend while working in my library, basically getting it in some kind of order, I was putting away my copies of "The Numismatist."Â Â I was in the stack from 1974Â and I could not help but reread some of the articles.Â I found in the July 1974 issue an article by Fred Schwan.Â It is the earliest article that I have read about MPC replacements.Â The title of the article is "Military Payment Certificates-Replacements."Â At the time that I received this issue in the mail back in 1974 the article did not register with me, what a shame.Â I have now come to my senses.Â The article appears to be the beginning of the Replacement Survey that now is an important feature in the MPC world.Â Â I found the article informative.Â Â It shows very few notes being found and reported in 1974, if my memory is correct the reported note count at that time was in the 400 range.Â Quite a few of the notes that were reported were listed as CU.Â Â The article did not list the notes by serial number.Â Â I found the article interesting and recommend it to other Gramsters.Â Since the MPC Gram is still fairly new I thought this early article needs to be brought to everyone's attention.

William Choate

Dear William,
Thank you for your comments. I have thought that some day I might gather up all of the survey reports that have been done and review them in one article. Indeed, that is part of the plan for the proposed MPC replacement book. Â Even though I have planned to do it, that does not mean that you or some other keen collector could not do it first! I hope that someone will.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: sold

Series 521 5 cent, second printing (12 reported), great fine (SN E01088098/pos 53) $275.00

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33)Â F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now.Â In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description. Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better! It has three heavy vertical folds. The twoÂ flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only sold.

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VFÂ $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

POST / BASE EXCHANGE(PX/BX/NEX)

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: sold

Series 521 5 cent, second printing (12 reported), great fine (SN E01088098/pos 53) $275.00

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33) F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now. In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description.
Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better!
It has three heavy vertical folds. The two flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only sold

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VF $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

(Or one could let the roller press hard enough to activate the plunger, but set the device to advance only after every two depressions--one for inking, one for printing. I don't know if any were ever set up that way; the ones I used had such a strong spring that the ink roller's pressure would not activate them). So, what are the physical characteristics of this kind of numbering device? The letters attached to the plunger are usually very heavily impressed into the paper, so the a visible embossing takes place. You can feel the letters No on the back of the note much more evidently than the rest of the numerals in the serial number. Also, the printing of the letters on the plunger is typically much heavier; more ink is transferred by those letters than by the numeral wheels, resulting in an overinked appearance for the leading characters. If the character was not No, but a

A ~ I once had an AMC yen fractional note on which the blind plunger impression was very obvious, letting us know that the AMC yens were not numbered with machines that had a press-linked rotation mechanism, but the old fashioned plunger-activated wheels. Fred now owns that piece, if he can find it. Has any reader ever seen a blind plunger impression before or after an MPC serial? It's also possible that the leading block character was mounted on the plunger--any evidence of that? The trailing character would not be on a plunger--think "replacement."~ ~ ~ ~ ~ Editorial

How are things up north?? I was wondering if you with all your talents may have another one of these notes around in about the same condition ? If so are you going to put it on ebay. I am at that point where I have to make hard decisions you also have two others up I need, I am down to the hard ones 471 $5.00 10.00 472 $5.00 541 $5.00 and 591 $5.00 I just want to do a set don't have to be perfectÂ this all started with two pieces I had from the service and a trip to your house in 1992 you are a bad man LOL let me know when you have a free min.

Thanks John Lane

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I am bagging and boxing a ton of "stuff" to bring with me to the ANA Convention in NYC. I am driving up in my Honda CR-V on Wednesday starting around lunch so I arrive in NYC after rush hour and in the evening. I do not believe there is a single sane driver with New York plates on their vehicle during rush hour! Not even Herb Friedman!
Most of the "stuff" I am bringing are samples of books that NI has published and has for sale, coins and paper money to give away to school-age collectors, my computer and printer to create IBNS badges for members without them, and some of my personal "stuff" for show and tell at the NI and IBNS meetings on Saturday, August 3. By the way, my name does not have an "s" on it as you have in the Calendar of Events.
I am looking forward to many Gramsters (collectors and dealers) showing up at the IBNS meeting at 11AM to show and talk about a significant MPC piece in their possession, and at the NI meeting following it at 12 Noon in the same room, to show and talk about a significant military token or related piece. I want the "civilians" attending the meetings to be convinced to join us, so please do not disappoint me and not show up!!
See you at the ANA!!

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,
Are you sure about the name thing?

Â Â In the ABLE test, the weapon was dropped from a B-29 and burst over the target fleet at an altitude of surviving target ships had been safely reboarded.Â ÂÂ Plans for the BAKER test proceeded onschedule and the blast occurred 90 feet below the fleet on the 25th of July.Â Eight ships were sunk by the blast including the battleships USS Arkansas and the Japanese Nagato; the aircraft carrier Saratoga, two submarines and three support vessels.Â The detonation caused most of the target fleet to be bathed in radioactive water spray and radioactive debris from the lagoon bottom. With the exception of 12 target vessels anchored in Â Â Two different souvenir short snorters were printed in conjunction with Operation Crossroads. You can see these by clicking on www.papermoneyworld.net/larry/shortsnorter.htm.. You will see some familiar designations on both of these notes.Â Joint Task Force One or JTF-One, Bikini Atoll, Crossroads, appear prominently on the notes.Â The one with the central vignette of the bomb blast depicts the 58th Wing and the 509th Composite Group.Â The 509th Composite Group was the organization tasked with dropping the bomb on the ships moored in Bikini Atoll. The B-29 "Dave's Dream" was the actual aircraft making the release.Â The 58th Wing Photo Unit supported all organizations during the tests. The serial number of the note reads K58509320E.Â We have identified the 58 and the 509 above, but have found no mention of an organization identified by the 320.Â I'm sure there was one, but as of now I can't place it. On the back of the note, there is mention of a Task Group One.Five.Â Task Group 1.5 was the operations order designation of the Army Air Group, comprised of all Army Air Force Units assigned to the Crossroads mission. All major units had a similar designation--The Target Vessel Group was Task Group 1.2, the Destroyer Surface Patrol Group was Task Group 1.7,Â the Army Ground Group was Task Group 1.4 etc.

Finally, to fill you in on everything that went on, four days after the BAKER detonation, the bikini swimsuit debuted at a French fashion show. Now isn't that a real blast.

Editorial

Thursday is a very busy day at the ANA convention culminating in the NLG Bash (Numismatic Literary Guild). Joe Boling and I will be there late on Thursday. I doubt if I will get any additional reports on the day in here until Friday, but, heck, if I think that Thursday is busy, well, Friday and Saturday are worse. er, better.

Mail Call

Dear Fred,
 Å I just received the copies of your books yesterday. Unfortunately, the softbound cover was totally messed up and it looked as if someone had chewed on it but at least no pages were torn off. The handcovers fared a little better. I was told that the contents were most probably checked once or twice if not more times and jiggled around before being "re-sealed" but they say that most of the mail sent in this manner becomes this way since 9/11. I'm sorry to say but I have noticed other mail sent from the U.S. tends to be pretty messed up ever since the various sad "incidents" of last year. I have found "auction catalogues" looking as if a dog had it as a toy when it arrived over here all in the name of "Security" with "tape" hold it together. I'm all in favor of them being thorough but one wonders if it's not just an excuse to be rough handling with regular mail. Also for some strange reason, the "Airmailed" book also came on the same delivery. This faired the best in that the corners are not totally bent like the all others. Anyway, I have had a chance to look through it and I must say that it is very impressive. I personally thought that the old third edition was very good. But I recall that you mentioned that many people complained about the "Computer scans" back then. It's probably fair to say that "No one will be complaining with this edition!" I have not had the time to go through it thoroughly yet but I hope to this weekend. Many thanks for the books.

Best regards,

collector for Japan

Dear Collector,
Thank you for the kind words and especially for the report on the mails.

POST / BASE EXCHANGE(PX/BX/NEX)

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 471 50c, (SN B00488021/pos 62, plate note in MPC 4) very rare, four reported. This is the most difficult series. A great note. Listed as VG in the census, but it has claims to better. Indeed, except for some soiling on the back it clearly would be fine. It is important to look at the others in the census. They are VG, F, and F+ respectively. Furthermore, all three of those pieces are in major collections that are unlikely to come on the market for decades. This is an important chance: sold

Series 521 25 cents (E00264390/34 first printing, 7 reported), VG with honest wear, all quarters are scarce to rare, $300.

Series 591 5 cents (G00209786/27) F-VF $295.00.

Series 591 $1 (G00256925/33)Â F $1750.00

Series 611 5 cents (H00089203/12) VG (condition rarity!) $75

Series 611 25 cents (H00058207//8) , only 11 of the type, rare F, attractive, $850

Series 611 $1 (H00017307/3) F-VF $150

Series 611 $10 this is a rare and important note. Furthermore, it has a good pedigree. It was in the famed DeRosa collection then in another private collection until now.Â In the census it is listed as fine. That is probably a reasonable description. Technically it is somewhat lower, but it looks better! It has three heavy vertical folds. The twoÂ flank folds have splits at the bottom. There is tape residue on the right side of the face (this is probably removable), but the portrait is unaffected and the note does not look bad. SN H00076907, are you ready for this? It is position number 10 thus matching the denomination! All in all a desirable note at only sold

Series 641 5 cents (first printing J00333038/42) VF, interesting SN $150

Series 641 50 cents (first printing J00534868/67) F-VF looks much better than fine $300

Series 641 $1 (first printing J00220517/28) VG with two staple holes but looks good $250

Series 661 $1 F $95.00

Series 681 5 cents VG-F $100

Series 681 $20 first printing wonderful VF $800

Series 692 5 cents EF+ $150

Series 692 10 cents AU $200 Former Kesselman

Series 692 25 cents VFÂ $285

Series 692 $10 EF, 2 pin holes $3300

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

WANTED SECTION:

Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here.

Dealers and collectors who have these items, are then encouraged to list them for sale in the above section as a reply.

ANA Business Mixed
Mel Steinberg reported that he had met his sales goals for the convention on Friday when Joe Boling purchased some items for his collection of world counterfeits.
Other dealers have reported less optimistic sales, but still have reported steady business. These reports do not include any business from Saturday which is often the busiest day of the convention (at least it is often rumored to be).

At the summer seminar this year, there was some discussion about what to do next year.Â This year's success certainly translates into enthusiasm for next year.Â The intention of this article is to advance a proposal for next year and solicit discussion and comment.Â Fred and Joe have clearly given this some thought.Â This is basically their proposal.

Â First, the basic course should be repeated.Â Each year has been more successful than the last.Â Out of 11 students this year, 9 were new to our madness. They may be collectors, but they had not been exposed to FEST, the Gram, etc.Â We had a reporter from the Numismatic News, a columnist from the Bank Note Reporter, the President of the Society of Paper Money Collectors, the project manager for the upcoming ANA MPC exhibit and a YN (Young Numismatist) on an ANA scholarship.Â Obviously the word on the class is spreading.Â And each of the aforementioned attendees is in a position to provide more publicity on the class.Â

Â Second, Fred and Joe have some intriguing ideas for an advance class.Â Recall last year the idea for an advance class died partly because it was too difficult to define.Â The current idea is to have an advance class that is centered around individual student research projects.Â Perhaps like thesis work.Â There would be some class work, but the majority of the time would be spent doing research at the ANA library.Â Fred and Joe would act more like faculty advisors.Â As a finale, students would present the results of their research to the rest of the class.Â Perhaps a goal is to produce a publishable article.

Â Will this work?Â Will it be perceived as a disadvantage because students will not get the value of day-long lectures ("face time" with instructors)?Â

Â "Advanced" students do not need the structure of continuous lectures or guidance.Â Such students are also more apt to have pet ideas or projects they would like to pursue.Â The ANA library is a great resource. In past seminars, students have lamented the lack of time to spend in the library.Â

Â The atmosphere, camaraderie, and association with fellow numismatists of like interest is of significant value.Â Just being in the summer seminar environment is stimulating and rewarding.

Â One concept is to present the advance course in parallel to the basic course. Joe and Fred could take turns from the basic course to mentor the advance course.Â There could be some interaction between the two classes.Â

Â Certainly if there is a pay call.Â Perhaps the two classes could share the same classroom - at least adjoining classrooms.

Â So - that is a concept.Â Let's hear the opinions of fellow Gramarians.

Well, it is nearly 5pm and I have not been to the bourse yet or done anything else having to do with numismatics or the ANA convention. Judy and I have been on a tour.

Å Are you a fan of Seinfeld? Over 400,000,000 people watch Seinfeld in 90 countries. I am trying to get that mailing list for the Gram, but in the mean time I will tell you about our activity for the day.
 Å Judy and I went on Kramer's Reality Tour. Kenny Kramer is the guy on whom the character Kramer in Seinfeld is based. Kenny is a great promoter. He probably should have a Seinfeld or even Kramer Fest, but instead he has a weekly Kramer's reality tour. We visited the site of the Soup Nazi and had our pictures taken in front of Tom's (the cafe often shown in the sitcom). The whole thing was a hoot!
 Å We (JAS and I) are heading out to try to make that last "big deal" at the show. Then we will go to the awards banquet. Not many deals to be done at that event--but lots of newtworking!
 Fred

Dear Gram,
 In response to Bill Krondak's question << Did the Japanese send their own money to places like Kwajalein? >>:

Yes, the Japanese used homeland currency in the Pacific Islands. The only place thay had a specifically military currency (gumpyo) was in China and environs (like Hainan Island).

Festers to Receive Special Souvenir

A Mr. 691 is the code name for the person who liberated Series 691 and 701 for collectors. No additional details are available on this spectacular offer. If details become available, they probably will NOT be released until FourFest.

NY--MPC collector and student at military money seminar I Adna Wilde has been selected for induction in the Numismatic Hall of Fame. The announcement was made at the ANA Awards Banquet on Saturday night in New York.

A visit to Fort Indiantown Gap
 by David Klinger

A POW camp for German prisoners operated there in 1944 and 1945. According to Lance Campbell's POW book they issued POW Canteen money in denominations of 1, 5, 10, and 25 cents. I never found any of the scrip during my visit.

A I pressed him for anything he had and he found a file of newspaper clippings and other assorted papers, all related to the POWs. One article stated that there were over 20 POW camps in Pennsylvania, including one on the battlefield at Gettysburg. He also had one artifact in the museum related to the POWs. It was a model tank, made by one of the German prisoners. It was in the bottom of a display case and wasn't clearly identified as to it's POW connection. I've attached a picture of the tank.

I asked if there was a book or pamphlet on the history of Indiantown Gap - none. The nearest thing was a two page handout entitled: Historical Sites at Fort Indiantown Gap. There were 24 items listed, but no mention of the POW Camp! In the file I did find information on the barracks used by the POWs which I'll mention later. I also found a copy of a POW record for a Gunnar Wack who gave his record to the museum during a visit he made a few years ago. He married an American and still lives in New York. His record shows he was first in a camp at Scottsbluff, Neb. (30 Sep 1944), then Ft. Eustis, VA (28 Jan 45) and finally to Indiantown Gap on 8 Feb 1945. I've attached a scan of the front side of his POW record. The back had a complete set of fingerprints and other data.

Other interesting items from the museum's POW file included a newspaper report of 8 Aug 1945, when one prisoner escaped and another who had escaped a few days earlier had voluntarily returned to his work detail. This article puts into dispute the closing date of the camp, listed in Campbell as May 1945. Most of the POWs worked on various details in the area including various local farms. One list had 40 men assigned to the Shaub farm nearby. Most all of the farmers in the area were (and still are) Pennsylvania Dutch, and most spoke German. This list was unusual also in that it referred to the POW Camp s:

"Stewartstown POW Camp, Branch #3 out of Indiantown Gap." The history of Indiantown Gap dates back to the Susquehannock Indians who lived in that area of Pennsylvania for well over three thousand years. From these Indian villages, located throughout the surrounding area, Indiantown Gap got its name.

Jumping forward in time, the origin of Fort Indiantown Gap as a military training facility actually began in 1931 when they moved and expanded the National Guard training site from the 120 acre summer encampment at Mt Gretna to Indiantown Gap. Additional land was gradually purchased from local farmers until the total area was in excess of 18,000 acres.

Annual maneuvers started at the Gap in 1933. Indiantown Gap wasn't formally dedicated until March 3, 1941, and officially named Indiantown Gap Military Reservation (IGMR). On May 1, 1975, the name was changed to Fort Indiantown Gap.

World War II began the strategic importance of the Gap. It was one of the nation's most important Army training camps serving as the staging area for the New York Port of Embarkation. Seven divisions were given final training at the Gap prior to being shipped overseas. Many of these troops lived in the barracks of area 16. The only thing which remains at Indiantown Gap to tie into the POW era are the various barracks which were used to house the German POWs during the period 1944-1945. The POWs at the Gap during that period were first housed in areas 17 and 10. Most of these buildings no longer exist (except for two buildings in area 17). However, during most of the period the Germans were housed in area 16 in the Green Barracks, some of which are still standing (though in partial ruins). These are the only green buildings on the entire post so they are easy to remember for those who stayed in them.

These barracks were built as temporary buildings in 1940, so it is amazing that they are still standing. The barracks were green, not from paint, but from a green, asphalt-based roofing material which was used to sheath the outer walls of the buildings. I walked through many of these buildings. Some pictures are attached:

www.papermoneyworld.net/baricks.htm

I was with my brother, Rich Klinger, during this visit and he suprised me when he told me that he lived in these Green Barracks for two weeks in 1948, when he participated in a High School, state-wide, Olympics-style athletic competition.

Although many various and important events occurred at the Gap over the years, two more are especially notable. Fort Indiantown Gap was chosen on two separate occasions as a Refugee Resettlement Camp. In 1975, over 32,000 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees were housed at the Fort. Then five years later, in 1980, the Fort again became a refugee camp when over 19,000 Cuban aliens were brought to the Gap for processing. The Vietnamese, Cambodians and Cubans were all housed in these same Green Barracks of Area 16, as well as in several Tent Cities.

One of the 49 Gratitude Train cars from France is also located at Fort Indiantown Gap. Americans filled over 700 of these boxcars with supplies for the starving people of France after WWII, who later expressed their appreciation by returning 49 of the boxcars filled with gifts and trinkets for each of the 48 states plus the District of Columbia. The PA car came to the Gap in 1950. Picture attached.

I stopped for gas before leaving the post and chatted with an Officer who told me that a demolition order had been signed for all of the Green Barracks. By years end there will be an empty field where these historic barracks now stand. Maybe someone will at least put up a marker of some sort to remember these remarkable events.

So, I made a final inspection of the barracks and as I stood inside one of the silent green buildings I could almost hear the conversations which must have occurred there over time: 1943 - A group of anxious GIs discussing their impending deployment to points unknown.
When are we going? Where to? When will we see combat? When will we be back?

1945 - Two German POWs just return from a days work on the Shaub farm. They remark how strange it is to be able to speak German to Americans here in the US and to eat German food.
1948 - Several high school athletes discuss tomorrow's one mile race and wonder aloud if any of them will do well enough to make it to the real Olympics - someday.

1975 - A Vietnamese woman laments to her family how she wished she could have some steamed rice and a bit of fish, rather than the pork chops and fried potatoes she was just served at the mess barracks.

1980 - Two Cubans, who were cell-mates in an Havana prison, make remarks about how Castro released them and sent them to sea in small boats, and how now they end up in a foreign prison in this place called Indiantown Gap. =====

Series 692

It was an April spring day in 1996, a spring break trip to Washington D. C. with the family. We had just toured the National Archives and were leaving via the Constitution Ave. exit. On the left was a statue that I immediately recognized stemming from my recent interest in MPC. I grabbed the camera from my wife and took a picture of "The Guardian" by James Earl Fraser. This statue was the basis for the vignette on the 692 fractionals. The base of the statue has an inscription, "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Liberty. "Why did Len Buckley, on his walks around the mall, select this piece of statuary as the basis for the 692 fractionals? It would certainly be interesting to know. Fraser is noted for other artistic (and numismatic) accomplishments. At age 17, Fraser traveled to France to study under Augustus St. Gaudens. Fraser's wife, Laura, assisted him in his sculpture so certainly deserves partial credit for the work (apropos of the saying that behind every great man is a woman). He designed the Buffalo Nickel on which his initial "f" appears under the date. Probably his most notable sculpture is the "End of the Trail" which depicts a bone weary Indian riding slumped over his under-fed horse. Other works of his include the statue of Theodore Roosevelt in front of the N. Y. C. American Museum of Natural History; his statue of Hamilton which graces the Treasury Building; and in Chicago, the limestone depiction of "The Pioneers and Discoverers" on the north pylons of the Michigan Avenue bridge across the Chicago river. As an aside: The ANA Money Museum in Colorado Springs currently has an exhibit: The upper gallery features the exhibit "Proud Spirits American Indians, Bison and U.S. Money, "inspired by James Earl Fraser, the sculptor of the buffalo/Indian head nickel that was minted from 1913 to 1938. Glass-cased exhibits showcase Fraser's contributions, and explain how America's money was influenced by its native people and animals

Back to series 692: some non-collectors might disparage U. S. currency for not being as colorful or aesthetic as foreign currency. To counter this; I pull out the fractionals of the 692 and 541 to show them the bold, imaginative colors of these two series. Those series are my favorites as far as eye appeal from a purely color perspective.

The 692 series vignettes of the dollar denomination and above can be characterized as "Americana" and set the stage for continuing that theme on the 701 series. The helmet, sword and lion skin on "The Guardian" has a military theme but since the statue graces the entrance of one of our great buildings on the Washington Mall, I would consider that piece to be loosely along the same theme.

The face of the 692 $10.00 shows a picture of Chief Hollow Horn Bear (Matihehlogego) of the Brule/Sicangu Sioux. He was born in Sheridan County, Nebraska and in 1850 participated in Sioux raids against the Pawnee. In the Red Cloud War of 1866-68, he led attacks against U. S. Troops. Chief Hollow Horn Bear gained fame by defeating Lieutenant William Fetterman during this period. He was selected in 1899 to negotiate treaties with General Crook. His picture graces a U. S. 14 cent stamp and is one of the three Indians used for the design the back side of the buffalo nickel. He attended Theodore Roosevelt's inauguration in 1905 and in 1913 led the Indian contingent in the inaugural parade at Woodrow Wilson's. On this last visit to Washington, he caught pneumonia and died there. Additional info on the Sioux can be obtained at:<<http://coas.missouri.edu/anthromuseum/PDFs/Sioux.pdf>>. A family picture of the chief can be viewed at<<http://www.omaha.lib.ne.us/transmiss/research/cleanhtml/tmi00666.html>>

Chief Ouray (The Arrow) of the Ute (Apache) tribe was born in 1833. He was raised by Mexican sheepherders and fought against the Sioux and Kiowas. During this time he learned Spanish, English and several Indian languages. In 1863 he helped negotiate a treaty in which the Utes ceded all lands east of the Continental Divide. A short history of Chief Ouray can be found at:<<http://www.utahhistorytogo.org/ouray.html>> During 1868, he and his wife traveled to the nation's capital and at one point met President Ulysses S. Grant. Other denominations continue the Americana theme with items of natural beauty: dams, eagles, bison and pictures of the fairer sex. Please refer to the mpc books for additional statistical data which I have chosen not to focus on in this writing. Another excellent statistical data source on this series (and all series for that matter) is Phil Goldstein's wonderful site at: <http://hometown.aol.com/IWANTMYMPC/page1.html>

Editor,
While the 4th Edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Currency had a long and tortuous gestation period, the birth and acceptance has been Spectacular!! The book reaffirms the preeminence of Fred Schwan in the MPC arena. He is head and shoulders above the rest of us mere mortals. GREAT JOB, and WELL deserved award!!!! How is the new AMC catalog doing?

David E. Seelye

PS. Fred send another case of 4th editions!!!
Dear David,
Those are the types of comments that my father would have appreciated and my mother would have believed, but you talk my language in the PS. Actually, I have not been working on the AMC book for a few weeks because I was working on another military title that I am hesitant to mention less I get more reminders!

Fred

Dear Gram,
In response to "Gentlemen, I may have missed it if you covered it in one of the grams. What format do you use for pictures of money and other info in websites for the MPC gram? Can you handle .bmp stuff?
T the answer is YES bmp is a usable format

Series 003 - Number 693-Tuesday 6 Aug 2002

Great WWII Discovery

by Joe Boling

A Â IBNS member Mark Tomasko, who specializes in engravers and their work, has obtained some proofs of Japanese puppet bank notes that were apparently prepared by the American Bank Note Company during the war. His research shows that most records of this work were either destroyed or never created, and that the employees were told to keep the information close-hold indefinitely. Even proofs of the plates were not to be retained in the normal manner; it is not known exactly how or why the proofs that have come into his possession were created. Â Â He asked me to bring certain notes to the ANA convention in NY for comparison to his proofs. Through miscommunication, I took only part of what he needed, but it was enough. The first note we checked (the one I had in quantity) is the very common Central Reserve Bank of China red 5 yuan, P-J10. I looked at his proof and at one of my high-grade notes and quickly found a couple of minor plate differences. I then checked the rest of my notes for one that would match his proof, and glory be--I found one! This is the second variety of the note--serials on face only, with black signatures. He then checked for the presence of a secret mark that he had found in the proof, and it is also present on my note. Â Â The most interesting aspect of this is that my note came in a large lot of counterfeits from the Ward Smith collection, when it was auctioned by The Money Company. Most of the lot was Nationalist currency from a variety of banks, but this one CRB note was in the group. At that time I could see only slightly more bold signatures on the back; I did not scrutinize the well-circulated piece for plate differences, because I did not expect a wartime counterfeit to be intaglio (this was long before we found the intaglio Malaya $10 OSS counterfeits.) I had forgotten about this CRB note buried in my collection, and did not go back to it when we learned that the US really was duplicating intaglio plates for counterfeits. I obviously should have. What did Ward Smith know and when did he know it? This is fascinating! Â Â We showed the proof and my note at the IBNS meeting Saturday morning at the ANA convention. See--you should have come to the convention. Â Â Mark has only face proofs. I have found a characteristic of the back plate that is easier to describe than the mark on the face (which is a letter V hidden away in a curlicue). On the counterfeit back, the periods after the bank officer titles are in line with the titles; on the original pieces, the signatures are below the line of the titles. This is especially obvious at the left signature, "vice governor." Let's hear from you who have quantities of these common notes; anybody find another one with elevated periods? Â Â Mark also has a proof of the 10 yuan P-J12, presumably for P-J12c, since the 5 yuan we found has black signatures. I found a "v" buried on it also, but Mark (who has made a study of ABN secret marks) says that this placement is not like their usual practice, so it may not be what it appears to be. In any event, I had no examples of P-J12 with me in NY. Having returned home, I find that there are none in my collection with the mark I found. Most of the pieces I have of this portrait variety are of P-J12d. We would not expect to find counterfeits of these, unless the counterfeiters were also adding the control overprints. I will be searching for an example of this plate variety. Â Â In the "merchandise" files that Howard Daniel obtained for Fred and me to use for WWII Remembered, there is a 1944 memo stating that CRB 10 yuan plates had been delivered to the OSS and the numbering machines would follow shortly. There is no mention of 5 yuan notes, nor of Federal Reserve Bank of China notes. However, the third proof that Mark has is of P-J73, the first undated FRB 5 yuan note. I had only a single piece to take to NY, and it is poorly printed, so it made comparison with the proof difficult. However, Mark and I found a couple of minor differences in the face plate; I will also start searching for those.

Â Â The purchasing power of the CRB 5 and 10 yuan notes in 1944 was almost nil. Notice in WWIIR (p724) that we said the counterfeits of those notes had to be used in rural areas. I do not recall where that information came from; it is not in the "merchandise" files, but probably in some other secondary reference that Fred or I found. I see that we said there were to be a million 10 yuan notes "for each agency," but failed to name them. Both OSS and SOE were to get a million pieces. In addition, a third agency was to get some quantity--both the agency name and the amount are obliterated in the copies of the memo that we received from the CIA. Â Â The FRB yuan held up much better, but there would have been less call for it, as we had no troops near the areas of its use. It also has not been mentioned in any source that Fred or I have seen; we had no clue that FRB notes might be being officially counterfeited. But that note also has an elaborate watermark. I would not be surprised if counterfeit P-J73s are never discovered because they were not produced. Â Â None of the documents we obtained mentions who prepared the plates or paper for, nor who did the printing of, any of the US WWII official counterfeits. We can now say that the plates (at least some of them) came from ABNCo. More documentation of the ABNCo-OSS connection may exist in other files, but all the WWII material is now in the National Archives in Suitland, Maryland--much harder to access than when it was still at the CIA, which could be plumbed with a FOIA request. In the archives, you have to do your own searching, and you have to know what cartons to ask for. There is no telling when someone will have the time and serendipity to find out more on this subject. Â Â Our thanks to Mark Tomasko for pursuing this; I look forward to the article he is going to write about it.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Goldstein Stars

Â MPC maven Phil Goldsetin had 15 seconds of fame this morning when he was featured on CNN. Phil was filmed at the ANA convention where he was asked about the best way to carry your personal cash. It seems that there was wide disagreement on the matter. Phil was taped at the table of Leo May who did not make it into the bit. Fred Schwan was standing by but did not get a speaking role.

Man does that sound funny. Today's Gram number that is. Say six ninety three a few times. MPC collectors say 692 and 691 over and over again, but never 693. It just sounds strange.
Â I am reporting from Woodstock, NY. Judy and Phil Goldstein conspired to get me into an upscale inn here in Woodstock. Not my style at all, but it IS style! All of this in the hope of having a meeting with Phil this evening to play some more with notes! Stay tuned.

Editor,
While the 4th Edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Currency had a long and tortuous gestation period, the birth and acceptance has been Spectacular!! The book reaffirms the preeminence of Fred Schwan in the MPC arena. He is head and shoulders above the rest of us mere mortals. GREAT JOB, and WELL deserved award!!!! How is the new AMC catalog doing?

David E. Seelye

PS. Fred send another case of 4th editions!!!
Dear David,
Those are the types of comments that my father would have appreciated and my mother would have believed, but you talk my language in the PS [books were mailed from Woodstock!]. Actually, I have not been working on the AMC book for a few weeks because I was working on another military title that I am hesitant to mention less I get more remnders!

Fred

Dear Gram,
In responce to "Gentlemen, I may have missed it if you covered it in one of the grams. What format do you use for pictures of money and other info in websites for the MPC gram? Can you handle .bmp stuff?
T the answer is YES bmp is a usable format

1946 War nickel found

À According to the headline story of the August 6 Numismatic News in a story by David Ganz, Burton Blumert of Camino Coin Co., Burlingame, California has found a 1946 US five cent coin struck on a silver planchette from the wartime years. The coin was found in an unsorted group .

It was sent to PCGS for grading and authentication.
It came back as a Fine 12.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â NOW AVAILABLE!!!

4th Edition of Lyman Allen's U.S. / Philippine Coins has just arrived. This edition has significantly expanded the number and photographs of Philippine coin varieties, expanded coin listings with updated values in seven grades, including all bronze coins in red, red-brown, and brown state of preservation. Values for individual Proof coins and sets are given for five grades. Also included are combined population reports for those certified coins in grades Mint State 60 through 68 as of early 2002. The price for the catalogue is $25 shipped POSTPAID in the Continental US. Outside of the US, cost of shipping is extra and depends on shipping location. Contact below to order:

It hurt our feelings to have Numismatic News scoop us on a World War II item. That 1946 silver nickel is just downright wonderful. To make matters worse, according to Ganz, the coin was available for viewing at the ANA convention! Drat. I have lots more to report, but just no time to get it done now.

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Series 003 - Number 695- Thurskî 8 Aug 2002

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Thirty Nine -- AGAIN!

by Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

A Yesterday, I celebrated my 39th birthday--again! This has been the 27th time we have celebrated that event or the 27th anniversary of my 39th birthday, which ever you prefer. I now have two kids that are older than I and a third that will be there in a couple of years. The baby is only in her mid-twenties so she has a long time until she catches me. But it has been fun.

A My fascination with 39's all started many years ago when Fred found a set of Italian AMC, all with serial number 39. Now I don't mean a serial number with various numbers and ending in 39, I mean all zeros and then ending in 39. ----A00000039A. I had to have that one for my collection. It sure was pretty to see all those notes laid out in front of you with the same serial number. We had seen some low serial number notes and even a couple of similar sets, but this was the lowest serial number set we had seen. The negotiations were very difficult, but I finally walked away with the set and significant "alimony payments" for the next couple of months.

The second note that appeared was a one-dollar Hawaii note. Fred again found this one in an auction and purchased it. He then sent it to my wife who gave it to me as a Christmas present. This is a lovely uncirculated note with serial number C00000039C. Needless to say, I was thrilled. The note sure beat the hell out of getting a tie or shirt for Christmas.

A Somewhere in the same time frame, the British Ministry of Defence sold the second lot of surplus BAFSV's to a private buyer. The thought crossed our minds that we may be able to purchase some of the notes with serial number 000039 from the hoard. Fred went at the task and contacted the buyer. It took a little time, but I ended up with about a dozen notes all with the serial number 000039. A Around the advent of the First Fest, a number of us got the idea of collecting another set of MPC all from the same position. Fred started collecting a number "1" set, Harold had number "2," Joe the number "8" and Doug decided he wanted to assemble every position for every series on the values five cents thru one dollar.

My task, of course, was the position number 39. I haven't completed this set but it is well on its way and makes a very impressive display. A couple of years ago, the series 691 and 701 notes suddenly became available. Interestingly, the 691 one dollar notes that reached the market had serial numbers starting with 039. Friends of mine, knowing my interest, made available to me the note with serial number D03903939D. Months later, the five dollar, series 691 note with serial number D00000039D also came my way. The collection was really growing.

A Recently I saw an ad in the Banknote Reporter for a U.S. $20 Federal Reserve Note with a radar serial number. Amazingly, that serial number was E39399393B. You know where that one had to reside. A Ebay also contributed to my collection. I saw a note from Russia or the Ukraine or some place like that. I don't really know and I don't really care, because the serial number was 393939. That one came my way pretty cheap because there aren't many people out there collecting 39's and David probably didn't see it. A A I tell this story with intent of showing that you can have fun collecting without having a goal or being structured. There is no complete set of 39's or if there is, I'll never achieve it. I don't collect just MPC or just U.S. notes with 39 in the serial number, it's anything that comes my way that has a 39 on it. I have a chit, a lottery ticket from 2001, a souvenir card and lots of Fest money. That too was a lot of fun, trading notes at the Fest's to get the MFC with serial number 39. What is the next note that will come my way? I don't have a clue and I sure don't have a want list although in the back of my mind I know I would like to have a national from charter 39. That would make an interest addition to my novelty collection. Do you think collectors are sick puppies? You are probably right.

Â This column was written and typed at the Eglin Air Force Base library. My house was struck by lightning for the second time in the last three years and the computer is back in the computer hospital to be repaired. Don't let anyone tell you that surge protectors work. I had two of them in line with the computer and that bolt of lightning still got by. So if there are a bunch of errors in this column or it seems a little disjointed, its because I'm typing on a strange computer. Us 39 year olds need all the excuses we can get.

Oh boy am in I trouble. I have a nice item for Larry that I was supposed to send to his wife for his birthday. Now I am in trouble with her AND with Larry. Drat. I let her down once before and it took a long time for her to get over it, now I am in trouble again.
Â I still have a good report in preparation on my visit with Phil Goldstein after the ANA and there is breaking news for tomorrows Gram. On top of that, I am home from my travels so everything is VERY hectic!

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Mail Call

Greetings.
Â Early this morning, unable to sleep in the heat as the counting sheep abandoned me for cooler pastures, I found myself watching MASH.Â What other episode should air, but the one I commented on a few months ago:
Â Hawkeye is paymaster, has $10 extra, gripes to Radar about lost compensation... etc.. I leaned REAL close to the TV screen to watch... (my eyes are spinning)
Radar hands Hawkeye a brown accordian style envelope containing $3000. When Hawkeye counts the MPC, he counts off by flicking the bundle in his ear and says "Thats fifty" but look closely - they are crisp new, and are wrapped with a rubber band. Fifty notes in a bundle? Wrapped in a rubber band? Â Another scene: At the Poker Table, there are MPC notes on the table, and they are in colors: red and green, possibly blue, hard to tell on my TV, but definitely red. Upon closer inspection, the do appear to be Series 611 $1 notes, just copied in different colors.. There is definitely an "bright" oval with no embellishment, offset to the right of the note and the closest note to come to that description is the Series 611 $1. Also, it should be noted that Series 611 $1 Prop Money is confirmed to have been used, and can be seen on Page 185 of Fred's book.
Â I will continue to nit-pic further "MPC" episodes of M*A*S*H.. But my next question is, does anyone out there know of any movies that use MPC? Something for us collectors to watch out for.

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Phil,
Â Thanks for the report. I have to pick at one item. At the Fest and other times, we have used the term paymaster rather loosely. In the army the person who paid the troops was the pay officer or officially the class A agent. Most often the person who handed the money to the soldier was the company commander with the class A agent sitting in the background. Sometimes the company commander was also the class agent and sometimes the class A agent (not the company commander) actually paid the troops.

ANA Report

Â On Tuesday, attended the PNG day and found a few Philippine coins of interest to buy, which by itself was an accomplishment since rarely do I find anything on PNG day. The rest of the afternoon, a friend and I traveled uptown to the Stacks store where I bought a few more coins, and then to view the Heritage and Bowers and Merena auction material. Nothing really exciting in the four lots of Philippines at Heritage though I did win a group lot. At Bowers, however, they were auctioning off a bound copy of the famed 1954 Farouk Sale--it was Sol Kaplan's annotated copy and given only six Americans attended the sale, was a rarity itself. I had previously heard that the sale contained Philippine rare patterns, etc and wanted to know specifics. Well there wasn't a lot of detail and all the Philippine coins were grouped into one lot, but I learned about one pattern that I hadn't heard of. In the end I decided it would be great to have a piece of history so entered a bid against the $750 estimate for the catalogue. I don't know whether I won however.

Â On Wednesday, first day of ANA bourse, I spent four hours on the 6th floor where most of the World and Foreign dealers were located but I only talked to about half of them. I did buy from one dealer a very scarce 1915S ten centavo in UNC and a 1909S one centavo in Red BU as well as five Philippine military tokens which are extremely hard to come by now a days. About 2PM, I found myself in front of the ANS table. I confirmed my breakfast reservation and was told the tour to the Federal Reserve was leaving momentarily. I made a quick decision and joined the tour, which was headed by Dr Michael Bates, head curator at ANS. We boarded the bus which took us down the west side highway pass the vacant space where the Trade Center towers once stood. The History of Money Exhibit was very educational, consisting of about 20 panels, and Dr Bates knew the history of every piece in the exhibit. And if you wanted to see an 1804 Silver Dollar, Brasher Doubloon, high relief Double Eagle, they were there also. I only spent another hour on the bourse 5th floor and bought some modern Philippine errors from Glenn Berger from my local town of Baltimore.

Â Thursday Morning was uneventful and I finished touring the 6th floor without buying a thing. I then ventured on the NY subway system to go to the ANS offices at 155th and Broadway. Well I got on train #2 while I wanted #1 and ended up in East Bronx at 149th street and knew something was wrong. I went up to the surface and found I certainly didn't want to be in East Bronx, saw a police officer who directed me across the street, down the subway going back whence I came to 96st station where I crossed over to #1 train. I got off at 157th street crossed over Broadway and walked back two blocks to the ANS offices in an old large imposing concrete building at the far end though a large courtyard.

Â I met Mr. Hogue, found out he used to be a curator at the Smithsonian, and met his assistant, Dawn Bennett who brought me tray after tray of Philippine items. These trays were only about 1/2 inch high and about the size of a normal bourse display case. Apparently they are stacked floor to ceiling in the ANS vaults which contain over 1 million items. Before this, I had seen in my 39 years of exposure to Philippines, maybe 125 medals. ANS had 20 trays worth. I only reviewed in detail ten trays and was getting worn out. They had four trays of military medals of which I reviewed three of them--many military medals I didn't even know existed and aren't even documented in "Philippine Military Medals" by Reynolds which came out in 1998. Many were in silver and gold for different ranks. I was overwhelmed.

Â I looked at a box--not well organized of Philippine Paper Money, mostly guerilla currency. A number of guerilla issues were scarce but I had seen all but one plus an interesting WWII Sto Thomas Interment Card of which I made a xerox copy. Of the paper money under US issues, there were two RARE pieces, a 1903 10 Peso Silver Certificate (Pick 27a) in CU--never saw better than a Good before. Also a 1904 Spanish issue 5 Pesos (Pick A31) in crisp full bright color--Very Good is about what is normally seen. I advised Ms Bennett that these two notes were rare, valued certainly in high 4 figures and were just mixed in with the $1 notes.

 Â I then began with the Philippine coins, looking at two trays before it was 4:30 and the museum was closing down. My return travel plans were fixed to leave on Friday at 2PM from the hotel. However, I made a decision to return here rather than spend more time on the bourse floor. I made arrangements to come back at 9:15 the next morning and continue. I wanted to document in detail the numerous 18th century Counter Marked coins for my next input into Krause's 1800-1900 catalog. Mr Hogue wasn't to be available on Friday but Ms Bennett agreed to continue with me. Before I left, I reviewed some fantastic Spanish Philippine Isabella issues, at least 8 or 10, the finest I had seen. The 4 Peso Alphonso XII Gold piece turned out to be dated 1885, a very rare date, worth 5 figures in my estimation. I had had the 1882 date piece 6 or 8 times, it being worth $1200-$2000, but never had seen or known anyone to own an 1885. There were also UNC grades of 1913 1,5,20, and Peso Culion Leper Colony pieces rarely seen. Also of interest were, incuse hubs in copper of the 1936M Commonwealth 50 Centavo and Peso commemoratives, I had never seen or heard of before.

Â After the excellent ANS breakfast, I returned the next morning, (catching the right subway this time!) and arrived about 9:20AM. Ms Bennett had not arrived yet so I spent time just going through the Library index cards making numerous notes on documents I wanted to review. Other than looking at two pamphlets, I ran out of time in the library as I wanted to get back to the coins. I ended up looking at three full trays. A number of the Counterstamps were fascinating but even more intriguing were the 25 faked counterstamps. I have been asked several times to authenticate Philippine counterstamps but it is very difficult since there is not much written and the photos in Philippine articles I have seen are of poor resolution. ANS will take photos of coins, obverse and reverse for about $25 per set. I may have their photographer do that on the fakes so I have a reference set for the future. The under US coin collection was not complete or in many cases not in high grade. What was disconcerting was that the coins, particularly the double sets of 1903 through 1908 proof coins were being damaged by elements since none were in protective cases and were sliding around in the trays in little boxes. I left at noon, returned to the hotel for a late checkout, one hour on the bourse floor to make final rounds, and then headed for the train station by 2PM as previously arranged.

Â Overall, the visit to ANS was a great bonus and I ended up spending more time there than on the bourse floor but what an unexpected education I received! I didn't spend enough time to even research their WWII material but given what I found, ANS probably is worth looking into by anyone doing research for that period. The ANS people are very friendly, helpful and cooperative and support research into many aspects of numismatics. I plan to return in the near future and was pleasantly surprised by an invite by Dr Bates to return to identify and catalogue the rarer Philippine items. ANS has a web site at www.numismatics.org. Its main telephone number is 212-234-3130 and is located at Broadway and 155th Street (take Subway #1 coming from Downtown).

What a great report by Ray Czahor, thanks Ray! I must admit that I, like, Ray have not pursued the ANS as a source for research material. It looks like that might be a mistake. I guess that I will have to find an excuse to go back to NY to have a look.
 Â It is possible that I am mistaken, but I do not think that anyone from ANS is on the Gram subscription list. If anyone out there has some good email addresses for Bob Hogue or other appropriate staff members, please send them.

Dear Gram,
Â We have just updated our web site inventory www.butternut.org. with the latest additions. Check it out to see if we can send you anything. Hours are 10am to 6pm Friday and Saturday, and 10am to 3pm on Sunday. It is one of the premier shows in the South. Always a great show, run by great people, so if you're in the South, be sure to attend.
The following weekend, August 23, 24 and 25th, I will be at the Ohio Coin Exposition, held in the Holiday Inn/Strongsville, 15471 Royalton Road, I-71 Exit 231-A @ Rt. 82 East, Ohio Turnpike. Exit #161 South on I-71, Strongsville, (South Cleveland), Ohio. I plan on being there 1pm to 6pm on Friday, 10am to 6pm on Saturday, and 10am to 2pm on Sunday.
Â It is always one of best shows in Ohio. I look forward to seeing you.
Best regards,

Visit to MPC Capitol of NY

A Phil Goldstein got on CNN and I bought some notes. Actually, he and I chatted quite a bit at the ANA convention, but we did not get all of our business done. Furthermore, I had some other business to do north of NYC, so Judy and I planned a side trip to see Phil.

Judy had called Phil for information on finding an upscale place near him. The place selected was in Woodstock, NY. It was nice lodging even if it was difficult to find late at night. Woodstock was interesting to visit while we waited for Phil to finish work the next day then the real fun started. Contact by cellular phone was about impossible in the mountainous region, but we were able to get together. It was dinner time Phil suggested (insisted upon) the place. I should have known better.

A Why it took all of this time to get to Margaretville I do not know. It seemed to me that that was where we were heading to start with. It was also supposed to be close to where we were staying. Remember, that was the main criteria when we got the referral on the inn. Driving into town I somewhat expected to see a sign Home of Phil Goldstein MPC King, or possibly &CNN Star. I thought that it was also possible that there would be a wanted poster on me as a result of my previous and comments that somehow might have been considered unkind by the city fathers.

Â Amazing, the buns dinner was open, but Phil did not want to go in. He seemed nervous about that prospect so we looked for other places. Still no library to be found, but the library sign is still where I saw IT two years ago. Every eligible restaurant was closed. Finally Phil informed us that the Chinese carry out place is always open and that he really wanted Chinese anyway. As we approached the place I expected to see a hand flip the open sign in the window to closed, but we got in without difficulty.

Â Even though the staff knew Phil, they served us anyway. The food was great too! We were entertained by a confrontation when some of Phils upstanding neighbors stiffed the restaurant for a bottle of iced tea.

Â After finishing we had to drive back to the inn. That meant that we had to unwind the Woodstock, Bearsville, Lake Hill, Willow, Mt. Tremper, Phoenicia, Allaben, Shandaken, Big Indian, Pine Hill, Highmount, Fleischmanns, Arkville, Margaretville. For the return trip it was dark and I could not help thinking that we might be stopped by some crazed tea thieves.

Â Back at the Inn (sounds like a sitcom in the making), Judy watched Law and Order while Phil and I looked at notes. One has to wonder if all of the above foreplay was worth the wait. It was.

Â I only had the material that I had bought at the show and along the way, and Phil only had part of his collection, but that was plenty. We had a great time. Without doubt a highlight for me was finding a third printing replacement 521 10 cent in his collection that I needed for mine. Well, I prevailed and got it from him. It was neither cheap, nor easy, but it came home with me. I am quite sure that Phil is also happy with the trade as he received two replacements that he needed by type.

Â We also worked out some other complicated trades that should keep us in dispute for years if not decades.

Two episodes of Law and Order latter and Judy was tired of television, our inattentativeness, and (especially) our wrangling. Phil, never one to overstay his welcome, only stayed another hour or so. Of course it might be argued that I encouraged him by digging more stuff from my bag or finding a treasure to discuss in his collection.

Â It should be clear that we had a great time. I look forward to the next visit, but I think that I might work on the accommodations myself!

Â Phil may have equal time.

We are dependant upon you for so many things. Indeed, virtaully everything in the Gram is because of your cooperation. The letter from Mel Steinberg below points out a bad calendar mistake. The Gram can be as good as you will help us make it. We need more questions, suggestions, criticisms, and down right complaints. They all make for a better Gram.

Dear Editor,

Just noticed that the IBNS London Congress is not listed in your CALENDAR OF EVENTS. There may just be a few MPC and WW2 military stuff at that important paper money event. The dates are October 5 and 6.

Best,

Mel Steinberg

Dear Mel,

Â ThanksÂ for the kick in the head. Perhaps someone from London will send us the schedule for the whole week so that we can put it on the calendar.

Editor

Dear Gram, Fred, Â I would like to report a replacement note that I don't think you have listed in your New 4th Edition MPC Catalog.Â Â Series 692, E00026706, Plate #4 in EF. I bought this note on ebay some time ago. I couldn't find theÂ serial number listed in your catalog. I hope this information is useful to you.Â I am just a novice collector having started collecting MPC only about six months or so ago. I enjoy reading the MPC Gram and think you are doing a good job. Keep up the good work.

Regards
John C

Hello John,
Thanks for the comments and especially for the report, but please send me the denomination! We hope to see you at the Fest soon! By the way, we are ALL beginners in this field!

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
 fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Lawton, Oklahoma Library Features MPC

A The library has a full set of MPC on display for the public to admire. The Lawton MPC network seems to be working too. The local newspaper has promised to run a story on the display and/or our Oklahoma leader.

Â Doug reports that while he was installing the exhibit a fellow approached him and described some MPC that he brought home from overseas. Of course, Doug offered to do an appraisal a s a public service. If it happens we hope for another report.

A Fred's got it about right... Tuesday is a bad day for food in my area. Seems to be Tuesday is every cooks day off! What was open, were the local bars and taverns, which of course serve typical bar/tavern fare. I was looking for something with a bit more class. Unbenownst to Fred, was the fact I intended to treat him and Judy to dinner, since after all, they were in my area. I still got to buy him dinner, albeit being Moo Goo Gai Pan, and Roast Pork Fried Rice!
 A The library is indeed in Margaretville, and is open this summer(!) but we did not make to town in time. I offered to show him WHERE is was, but Fred insisted it wasn't necessary, since anytime that he'll want to go in, it'll be closed. ( I call them to let them know he's coming!)A A I have to add this in my defense: Our long jaunt, in actuality only 30 miles distance wise, but made longer by Ms. Judy's request that we look at the other prospects of motel/hotel/inns she was interested in, so that added close to a 30 minute side trip. Fred seemed pleased with his accommodations, but since he feels the Woodstock Inn by the Millstream was a little high falutin' for him, I'll locate an old refrigerator box, and some old newspapers (or maybe some old MPC notes) for him to snuggle into with next time... although Fred, it could be worse: Judy and 200 square feet!

A The next time he does get up here though, he'll have the pleasure of staying in the Richard M. Bower Suite in my house currently under renovation. I plan on decorating the Suite (room) with vignettes off of MPC, and some fancy notes mounted in frames on the walls. =

Congratulations to Doug Bell and the Lawton Public Library for their efforts to promote MPC. Doug is an

A Here is a little secret. Because of security concerns on the part of LPL, the display consists entirely of the souvenir copies created and distributed by Carlson Chambliss. While there has been justifiable controversy on these items, it certainly seems that this is a perfect use for them. Fred

Mail Call

Dear Lowly Editor,
Because the Calendar of Events has been so slim, I have sent the below updated list of upcoming events to you three times in the past three months but none of it has been published. And then you complain! Where can I file a letter of reprimand or Article 15 against the editor! Not all of the below events are appropriate for the Gram but you can pick out the top twelve (one for each month or so). And some of them have yet to publish their next dates in the numismatic press. The event chairmen are almost as bad the Gram editor. Well, maybe not that bad.

Howard A. Daniel III

Greetings Editor:

A Is there any reason that the major paper money show sponsored by the R.M.Smythe Co. at Lancaster/Strasburg Pennsylvania in September isn't listed in the Gram???? I'm not aware if they have any military notes in their auction, but I do know that they have a great selection of Large and Small U.S. notes and obsoletes. And of course the bourse will be attended by many of the big name dealers in paper money collecting.

This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Nice Korean MPC coupon; 4th series .25 denomination. 600.00. email me at kochfam@gte.net Tom Koch

WANTED SECTION:

Dear Gram,

Â I enjoyed reading the editors article on his trip to visit Phil after the ANA convention, also Phil's response. In remembering the story that was in the gram on last years visit it seems that the situation has not changed much. Side walks roll up at dusk, businesses lock down from 5:00/7:00PM for the night, travel to and from by narrow curvy roads, town with one stop sign or yellow blinking caution light, a police force with four patrol cars and two officers and a jail that has twelve cells. From the description one would believe it sounds like "Hicksville" or being in the "Boonies. I brought out my Rand McNally and could not find it listed in the city directory of New York State either, another clue? Until Phil's response I assumed the library was no longer in existence but the sign still remained only as a reminder of what was. Phil mentions that he would call ahead of time to get an appointment so the library would be opened for use, I've heard of volunteer fireman but not volunteer librarians on a per call basis, quite a novelty don't you think. What happens if the volunteer librarian is on vacation, oh well try again next trip.

Â It seems to me that with all the "MINOR" problems Fred had to face on this trip that in the end he acquired a nice addition for his collection and Phil did the same. What more could you ask for.
Â Phil has tried to persuade me to make a trip to visit him several times in the past, I have to say I prefer this type of setting over big city life. I will make this trip some time in the future and look forward to a nice visit and staying in the "Boonies." I'm really waiting for Phil to get the MPC Suite finished in the little house that is being remodeled to include a hot tub.

Mpckid

Dear Kid,
Â Hm, Harold and Phil in a hot tub. Not a pretty sight!

Dear Editor,
A 1976 Souvenir Card produced by the BEP which uses an engraved version of the Ed White space-walk image juxtaposed with the Wright Bros. at Kitty Hawk. Â The Souvenir card was produced for the "Bicentennial Exposition on Science and Technology" held at Cape Canaveral, Kennedy Space Center, Florida, from May 30 to September 6, 1976.
Â According to his website, Ken Barr has examples of this card for sale on his price list for $5.00 listed as B-36.Â Ken's web address is in the dealers' list below.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 700- Tuesday 13 Aug 2002

More on counterfeits (and some comments on this week's grams)

By Joe Boling

In reference to Fred's report about his visit to Philland (gram 697), anyone who has driven from Bowling Green to Port Clinton at night knows that Fred has no grounds to complain about roads that are "narrow, windy, without shoulders, animal prone, and with little visibility." [But definitely NOT mountainous-Ed]

After mentioning the IBNS London meeting once (gram 697), it again was dropped starting in gram 698. It is 5-6 October at the Trade Union Congress hall, two blocks from the British Museum. On 4 October there will be an IBSS (Int'l Bond and Share Society) meeting at the Victory Services Club (Marble Arch), which will include lot viewing for their October mail bid sale (the sale will include Japanese WWII bonds, and undoubtedly other items of interest to gramsters).
There are usually auctions by Spink's and by Phillips Son and Neale that week, but I don't have the dates for this year. I plan to attend all of these events.

The St. Louis paper money show 21-24 November is also not listed in the coming events calendar. It would seem to me that anything listed in the "major shows" column of Numismatic News or featured in a display ad in BNR should not depend on reader input for insertion into the gram.

For those of you who do not yet have the 4th edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of MPC, Alex Kesselman had 50 replacements, not five as reported in gram 699.
I know, this was just Fred's way of making us all go flex the book's binding at a new location.

And while it looked like gram 700 was going to be published Monday, it apparently was not, so I guess this column will appear in that issue. 700 isn't a usually-celebrated milestone, but it is a significant achievement (witness yesterday's comments from C.
Tolek--"more than 58 years of a monthly magazine and more than 13 years for a weekly"). Congratulations, Fred and Phil. (Just who IS the editor now? Production seems to have returned to Ohio from New York.)

OK, enough sniping at the gram. Ray Czahor mentioned the Smythe auction that was held the Monday before ANA in New York. I arrived in NY about 1800, too late for the sale, so I faxed bids that morning before getting on the plane (late, yes, but I only got to the catalog that night, having stacks of mail still unopened (even to this day) from the two weeks I was in Colorado Springs). I bid on five lots and got two (the ones I least needed to buy, of course). All are British white notes. Lot 3411 is a Catterns-signed 50 pound Bernhard note, 15 June 1933, 50/N 37118. As it happens, not knowing whether my bids had even been executed (they were sent so late), I bought another Catterns 50 at the ANA, same date, same block, number 54342. You would expect that there would be no differences between these, and it looks as of there are none in the printing (there are tiny differences that are probably attributable to the degree of inking of the plates). However, the watermark boards are different.
All the white notes are printed on distinctively watermarked paper that includes a serial number for the individual watermark board. One of these pieces is from board F3733 and the other from G1332. Anyone else have one of these? What watermark number?

The more interesting lot is 3416, described as four five-pound notes, two Bernhard counterfeits and two genuine. For starters, they are four ten-pound notes.

Next, they are all fakes. Two have the watermark that I described last year, in which the curved line coming to the pediment of the N is to the left of center--way too far left, almost missing the N. The defect in the Britannia engraving that I described then is present in all four of these. The two pieces with the supposedly genuine watermarks are the same date as the piece I bought last year in Colorado--16 March 1935, block K/144, numbers 24972 and 25800. The one I already had is same date and block, 24910. All three are from the same watermark board--B0634. Now things get interesting. The other two pieces in the newly-acquired lot are dated 16 March 1935 (again) and 17 April 1935. The first is still block K/144, #61100. The April piece is K/146-64992. The March piece is still from watermark board B0634, but now the curve comes up dead center in the pediment of N! The Germans either modified that board, or created a new one with the same serial number. (The April piece is on board B0834, just one digit different.) The overall quality of the Britannia engraving is visibly inferior on the two with the left- side watermark. Last year's conjecture that they might be from Operation Andreus, a predecessor to Operation Bernhard, could be correct. Or, these could be class 3 products, the grade that the Germans used to pay informants and for other low-importance use.

Bryan Burke's book mentions that Operation Andreus notes show trouble getting the ink to completely fill the broad letters of "Bank of England." While all three of the possibly-Andreus notes show this defect, so do some of the notes with the "normal" Bernhard watermark, so I can't say for sure that these three are from the earlier operation.

Burke also mentions variations in UV sensitivity between genuine notes and early German copies. I find that all mine, good and bad, vary all over the block, some showing a distinct lilac appearance, others appearing to be dead, with no predictability between genuine and counterfeit pieces. Of course, I don't know what UV wavelength is used by the B of E to separate genuine notes--it may not be the one that we use for note examination today.

Update--I have visited Bill Henderson looking for more examples of the CRB and FRB counterfeits described last week. He had only a half dozen examples of each CRB note, and only two of the FRB piece. No luck with any of them. Keep looking, boys and girls. I did get some other interesting Chinese fakes, but modern pieces for collectors, not WWII-vintage productions.

We are pleased to have a new list of material in the For Sale section from Tom Kotch. We generally do not like to mention such additions elsewhere in the Gram so as to give the advantage to those who regularly check that section. Today, I want to use that list as an opportunity to promote more use of this section. I can tell you from personal experience and reports from others that Gram listings sell. The biggest advantage of all is that they (the ads) are fast. Send your ad today and it goes out today or tomorrow to hundreds of eager buyers. If it does not sell in a few days, use what ever other means that you had in mind. This is a free service to all Gramsters. The expenses are subsidized by subscriptions (the subscriptions manager does not like this as you can imagine).

The For Sale section is open to collectors and dealers alike. The only requirement is that the listings be sent electronically to make it easy to paste them into the Gram.

50 replacements, not 5 in the Goldstein & Kroll Collections

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Gram,
The Spacewalk BEP card is listed by Ken Barr at $150 not $5 as stated in the Gram. If you have any for $5, let me know.

Bill McNease

Dear Gramsters,
Could there have been some sinister forces out there yesterday changing 50s to 5s?

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
 fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.
That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1)
printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the
"list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.
They should be the same price.

Series 701 – The FINAL Series

By Marcus Turner

You guessed it! Series 701 was printed in 1970 and was the last series of MPC to ever be printed. Upon completion (with the exception of the ill-fated fractional pieces) the series was sent to Saigon in June of 1971 where it sat for the remainder of the war. The series was returned to the United States where they found a home at Fort Benjamin Harrison (along with series 691). There they sat again. After being declared "unserviceable" a second printing was prepared in 1984. This second printing was printed on slightly different paper containing fewer planchettes and white UV security over the entire serial number. This was a radical change from the orange UV security contained in the design of the first printing. Ironically the second printing was also deemed "unserviceable". We know that much of the series was destroyed in the late 1990s.

The face of the $1 note bears the portrait of author Washington Irving. While US postage stamps have been prepared throughout the years with his likeness, none have been identical to the vignette of a younger Irving appearing in series 701. The $5 note bears the portrait of Thomas Edison. This vignette has been seen on a 3 cent US postage stamp. Sorry folks, I don't know enough about stamps to identify it clearly. The left side of the note contains the vignette "Franklin and Electricity" which appears on the first and second charter $10 national banknotes. The $10 note bears the image of George Washington. Take a close look! This is not the same vignette we are all used to seeing on our modern $1 notes. This Washington is less round in the face and wearing a coat with a higher collar. The $20 note bears the portrait of inventor Robert Fulton. Today Robert Fulton's body is buried in Robert Fulton Cemetery along SR 56 just north of Rising Sun, Indiana. Ironically Rising Sun is still famous for it's river boat (only the one present today is known as the Grand Victoria Casino).

The FINAL series you say??? Yep...

I recently obtained a copy of a Memorandum for the Deputy Chief Financial Officer, Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller). The Memorandum was dated November 6, 1997 (Defense Finance and Accounting Service, Arlington VA).

"After exploration of various alternatives and coordination with the Military Services, the Armed Forces Financial Network (AFFN), and the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES), we have concluded that a reloadable stored value card (SVC) can meet the needs of the Department of Defense (DoD) in a contingency environment. The attached describes the baseline concept of the reloadable SVC as the alternative to MPC. All agencies with whom we coordinated concur."

And so here ends the story of MPC.

I am sure that Marcus expects some arguments from me over his (great) article. I do not want to disappoint him, but the points are minor.

It does look like this is the official end of the MPC system. However, I must say that it is possible that a series was printed after series 701. First of all we have the circumstantial evidence. Since 701 (and 691) were tested for suitability and found to be unsuitable, the logical decision would have been to prepare more MPC. Of course that could have been a third printing of 691/701!

More interesting, we know that work was done at the BEP on a series post 701! There is a project box for this series that outside researchers are not allowed to see. Since we know that at least some of the design work was done, I tried to find out through indirect sources if it was printed. Thus far I have failed, but have not given up. Possibly the 1997 memorandum might unlock the box.

Finally, and most importantly, the MPC story absolutely does not end on November 6, 1997. MPC will live on in the minds (and albums) of collectors forever! Indeed, we might consider Nov 6, 1997 the START of the MPC collecting era!

Dear Gram,

Just wanted to say CONGRATULATIONS, 700 grams, a great and wonderful newsletter for the MPC collecting community. The daily gram and the MPC Fest were dreams several years ago, today collectors let it be known when they do not receive one and some even go through withdrawal symptoms, I'm one of them. Fred, keep on dreaming. Special mention must go out to Joe Boling and Larry Smulczenski for their weekly articles, hey guys we look forward to these each and every week, your doing a fantastic job. Thanks to all the contributors to the gram, without the information and stories that you send in the gram would not be what it is today.

Please renew my subscription for another 39 years.

Harold "MPCKID" Kroll

Dear Kid,

If we drip into self adulation every 100 issues, we will be doing that every three months or so. That does not sound good for egos or mental health. On the other hand 700 (and 800, 900, and (especially) 1000) are important milestones.

The success of the Gram is the result of the people you mention and many others. Phil Goldstein has done great work as editor and innovator. Doug Bell has solved lots of technical matters and continues to get the Gram delivered on time. Howard Daniel and David Klinger are frequent contributors who will be columnists in the future (hint, hint). Mark Watson is working on getting a column going. I think that he is going to get Warner Talso involved in that. Marcus Turner has been the driving force in the scholarship program. Kid, you have given us lots of letters and created great collectibles (souvenir cards) for the various events. The list goes on and on.

Every letter, article, complaint is important. We thank all of you!

Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale, purchase or trade will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

This is a modest but important collection of MPC replacements. Heck, anytime that a collection has more than twenty different, it is significant. This collection is not significant so much for how many different, but for what the pieces are. This collection includes some VERY important replacements, starting with the first one. Terms are available, please confirm availability via email
fred@papermoneyworld.net. Of course the email confirmation gets the note.

Duplicate Navy related chits; for sale or trade. Chits from places you

I Don't Want That RAG

By Larry Smulczewski

My computer is still in the computer hospital. Turned out to be a lot more wrong with it than just the modem, so it looks like another trip to the library to meet this deadline. That means that I can't address a topic that I have to do research on as they only give me a half-hour on the computer as there are always people waiting to log on. Therefore I will have to come up with a tale from the past-----

Let's go back to the summer of 1977. I was being transferred from Wright-Patterson AFB in Dayton, Ohio to Eglin AFB in Fort Walton Beach, Florida. The first Memphis paper money show had just occurred a little over two months ago. Now as I drove south, I debated going to the ANA summer convention which was being held in Atlanta. It was hardly out of the way and I had plenty of time before my reporting date, so why not go? At that time, I was hotly pursuing my MPC set. I had a good start but still needed a number of key notes and was always looking for information on the series. Remember that at this time, Schwan hadn't yet published the First Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. The first Pick catalog was published a couple of years before and was beginning to garner acceptance as some dealers were just beginning to use Pick numbers in their ads. The Bank Note Reporter was in it's fifth year of publishing and had moved from Florida under the reign of Grover Criswell to Camden, South Carolina under the leadership of Austin Sheheen and his brother. Fred was writing a column then known as Military Vignettes which contained a wealth of information about military notes. Much of this information has been incorporated into Schwan publications but in some cases, these columns are the only published sources of the information.

Thus it was not a difficult decision to make that stop in Atlanta. I found Fred immediately and we were off and running. He naturally had something new to show me. Turned out to be a pair of Thai $10 MPC Coupons. I had never seen these before and he explained to me that a Thai soldier fighting in Viet Nam could only make a purchase in our PX/BX if he had MPC and an MPC Coupon of equal value for the item he wanted. This was an attempt to keep these allies from taking their purchases downtown and selling them on the black market for MPC and then taking that MPC back to the PX/BX for more purchases. Without the coupons, the Thai soldier could not buy additional items. Fred said that this was a new and exciting addition to MPC collecting. I had to agree, BUT the two notes he had would grade VF at best. I reminded him that I was only interested in beautiful, crisp, uncirculated notes without any flaws. My goal was to collect only the finest notes available. Both of these notes had multiple folds, minor stains and to top it off, the nicer of the two had Thai graffiti in the right edge of the face. Possibly, it was signed by the Thai soldier that used the note. Fred told me that I wasn't going to find much better examples. Consider, he said, that they were worthless if they were not used, so the individual to whom they were issued would use them quickly instead of saving them and the PX/BX would destroy them after they were used. I finally told him that I didn't care how scarce they were, "I just wouldn't have that damn scurvy looking note contaminate my pristine notes." We went round and round for the next two days. He finally wore me down and I paid him the $150 he was asking with the caveat that I would receive $150 credit on a trade-in for the next CU $10 Thai coupon that he handled. Well, guess what, twenty-five years have now passed and that note still resides in my collection. I don't know if Fred has ever handled a CU $10 Thai coupon or not. I don't remember ever seeing one and I have mellowed somewhat. There are a lot of coupons in my collection that are in worse condition than that $10 coupon and I must admit that I haven't noticed any cross-contamination of my other notes. We do keep these "lepers" in quarantine though.

Editorial

I managed to lose a few letters. I am very sorry about that. Basically, I got sloppy with file management and a little crash cost me the last copies of the letters. I have not done that in a long time. One was from George C. I do not even remember the other one or two, for which I am even more sorry. If you think that you might have had a letter lost in the past few days, another copy will be appreciated.

Please be sure to check the for sale section. We expect to be adding things regularly now! Today is the last day for listing of the Tom Kotch chits.

Fred

Mail Call

Dear Editor'

I recently found a note at a street fair at a dealer's table who had lots of overpriced Jim for sale, and yet among the notes I picked out an interesting note from south Africa. It is a 10 Shilling note, P-82d, dated 10 November 1941. The note has two signatures; J. M. McLain "Napoli 2.3.44" and J.J. Walsh "Naples 2.3.44."

We have all seen many signed notes from WW II, either in a short snorter or as a single well traveled note. I personally do not recall seeing any from South Africa, Most were from Asia and Europe. So who were these lads? American soldiers who found a stray note in Italy or perhaps a more reasonable explanation is that these lads were from South Africa and part of the British Forces who captured and occupied Naples on October 1st 1943. This date just four months before McLain and Walsh decided to leave their marks, see signatures, for the world. Nothing conclusive, but always an interesting premise for those Gramsters who enjoy the hunt.

I will be looking a bit further into this and perhaps find Messrs. McLain and Walsh! I must tell you that Joe Boling thought I should share this with you , maybe there are others. So enjoy!

Best Regards,

Bob

D-Day H-Hour By Max Spiegel

While watching a show last night on the History Channel about the Atlantic Wall and D-Day, I remembered that the thought came up at the summer seminar about what D-Day really means. Well, not soon after I thought about it, the announcer started saying a few quick facts before the commercial. It turns out that the word D-Day was first used in World War I and meant the first day of battle. It was used for the June 6th invasion because that was the first day of leaving to destroy the nazi control of France. However, some people thought that the D stood for debarkation while others said it is meaningless. According to Le Musee du Debarkment, the D stood for debarking for Normandy. While looking this up, I couldn't help but wonder what H-Hour stood for. It turns out that H-Hour also originated in World War I. It was used to signify the first hour in which the assault was to be made. The French called it l'heure so it became know to the French as H (instead of l'heure). Then the British also called it H, so the H turns out to mean hour (or l'heure).

Other terms similar to these also were used for D-Day (and some were invented just for D-Day). The first, Y-Day was the day when all preparations for D-Day had to have been completed. This date was June 1, 1944. The term was later used in major assaults on Japanese controlled islands. The second term was K-Day which was the date when a convoy system was introduced on a road. However I can't find why it is K or why it is Y for either of these. I'll have to look harder. And the final term was M-Day. On M-Day, the mobilization (of troops, planes, ships, and vehicles) had to begin. This too was used mostly for D-Day. So far these are the only terms that I can find, but if there are anymore, I would like to know.

Ski's submissions from the local library reminded me that I wanted to write about using libraries for Gram support (and other things too). First, several Grams have been created and sent from libraries (and a few other public places) around the world. Libraries provide a great service in this regard. Believe it or not, a substantial number of military money collectors do not receive email. Most often they comment/complain that they do not have computers. They also often indicate that they do not want to have a computer. They can receive their daily Gram at the public library. I have tried (hard) to recruit some of these candidates into librarygram service, but believe that I have failed. Do you know a candidate for the Gram who does not have email? Take her/him to the library and set up an email account , and get them going!

Dear esteemed editor,

I recently e-mailed Larry Ski to advise I have a series 641 $10, position #39 if he is interested. I see from his column that his computer is a little under the weather. Let him know to check his email for my message.

Thanks,
Roger Urce

Dear Roger,
Thanks. Larry, check your email.

Steamed Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I am serious about the oil painting of the Series 692 $10 replacement and I now have the block/serial of E02029908. Is this a correct block/serial and/or has it been reported? The painting is about 36x18" and is still available. The past couple of days have been shopping for furniture and appliances with my wife for our townhouse. The shopping was not a nice experience but the furniture in the house looks great. For the first time, I slept in my own bedroom over here instead of a hotel room. I still have not had time to look through any MPC or anything else, but I have heard a collector here may be selling some of his MPC collection. If correct, I remember him having some great pieces. I will keep you informed. That is all from this side of the big pond.

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,

Did I miss something? Oh well, it does not matter. The position number for the above serial number should be 4 (I hope/assume that someone will check me on this). I do not suppose that it makes a great difference if the position number is correct or not.

Also, this two million number would not be of an actual replacement. Replacement numbers would be under 400,000. Of course it would be great news to find one with a number like that.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

D-Day H-Hour By Max Spiegel

While watching a show last night on the History Channel about the Atlantic Wall and D-Day, I remembered that the thought came up at the summer seminar about what D-Day really means. Well, not soon after I thought about it, the announcer started saying a few quick facts before the commercial. It turns out that the word D-Day was first used in World War I and meant the first day of battle. It was used for the June 6th invasion because that was the first day of leaving to destroy the nazi control of France. However, some people thought that the D stood for debarkation while others said it is meaningless. According to Le Musee du Debarkment, the D stood for debarking for Normandy. While looking this up, I couldn't help but wonder what H-Hour stood for. It turns out that H-Hour also originated in World War I. It was used to signify the first hour in which the assault was to be made. The French called it l'heure so it became know to the French as H (instead of l'heure). Then the British also called it H, so the H turns out to mean hour (or l'heure).

Other terms similar to these also were used for D-Day (and some were invented just for D-Day). The first, Y-Day was the day when all preparations for D-Day had to have been completed. This date was June 1, 1944. The term was later used in major assaults on Japanese controlled islands. The second term was K-Day which was the date when a convoy system was introduced on a road. However I can't find why it is K or why it is Y for either of these. I'll have to look harder. And the final term was M-Day. On M-Day, the mobilization (of troops, planes, ships, and vehicles) had to begin. This too was used mostly for D-Day. So far these are the only terms that I can find, but if there are anymore, I would like to know.

Editorial

Ski's submissions from the local library reminded me that I wanted to write about using libraries for Gram support (and other things too). First, several Grams have been created and sent from libraries (and a few other public places) around the world. Libraries provide a great service in this regard. Believe it or not, a substantial number of military money collectors do not receive email. Most often they comment/complain that they do not have computers. They also often indicate that they do not want to have a computer. They can receive their daily Gram at the public library. I have tried (hard) to recruit some of these candidates into librarygram service, but believe that I have failed. Do you know a candidate for the Gram who does not have email? Take her/him to the library and set up an email account , and get them going!

Mail Call

Dear esteemed editor,

I recently e-mailed Larry Ski to advise I have a series 641 $10, position #39 if he is interested. I see from his column that his computer is a little under the weather. Let him know to check his email for my message.

Thanks,
Roger Urce

Dear Roger,
Thanks. Larry, check your email.

Steamed Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I am serious about the oil painting of the Series 692 $10 replacement and I now have the block/serial of E02029908. Is this a correct block/serial and/or has it been reported? The painting is about 36x18" and is still available. The past couple of days have been shopping for furniture and appliances with my wife for our townhouse. The shopping was not a nice experience but the furniture in the house looks great. For the first time, I slept in my own bedroom over here instead of a hotel room. I still have not had time to look through any MPC or anything else, but I have heard a collector here may be selling some of his MPC collection. If correct, I remember him having some great pieces. I will keep you informed. That is all from this side of the big pond.

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,

Did I miss something? Oh well, it does not matter. The position number for the above serial number should be 4 (I hope/assume that someone will check me on this). I do not suppose that it makes a great difference is the position number is correct or not.

Also, this two million number would not be of an actual replacement. Replacement numbers would be under 400,000. Of course it would be great news to find one with a number like that.

Steamed Editor

More on 691 and 701 MPC

By Bob Unger

The Series 691 and 701 were removed from Ft Ben Harrison the weekend of 6-7 May, 2000. It was approximately 6:00am and I happened to be there because my office inside Building One at Ft. Ben was moving due to GSA preparing to renovate our section of Building One. I was assisting the telephone company in shutting down and moving our Network's Frame Relay.

I noticed there were several pallets of crates setting in the main entrance with Saigon RVN marked on the sides of each crate. I talked to a security guard and asked what was going on because there were extra security personnel on duty that morning. The guard said they were moving money today. Knowing the government stored MPC at Ft. Ben, I could only surmise it was MPC. I counted 14 pallets, but I had to leave as they were still moving pallets out of the basement.

I have tried to remember how many crates were on each pallet but the only thing I know for sure was that they were stacked head high with the top level having fewer crates.

Ft Ben Harrison did have an Army Finance Museum that displayed artifacts and explained the process of military finance and pay. I was told the Army moved it to South Carolina. Can anyone provide the known address of the Finance Museum and if it is still operational? I visited the Museum often when it was in Indianapolis, IN and the Curator provided me an opportunity to view the series 691 and 701. The notes that he showed me were stored in a vault, in wide slender drawers that slid out of a large type of file cabinet. If there no longer is a Finance Museum supported by the Government, maybe we can politic to have it resurrected in Port Clinton.

Editorial

Roger, there IS an MPC museum in Port Clinton! The Army also has one at Fort Jackson, SC.

Fourteen pallets of MPC. Now is that something to dream about or what? Replacements, errors, fancy numbers! Heck, just the wooden crates and cardboard boxes are the objects of wistful thoughts!

When will I stop being surprised at the resourcefulness of Gramsters? I must say that we are an amazing group of collectors and I am proud to be part of it.

Fred

Dear Editor,

Looks like your automated Gram Numbering Machine (GNM) is not working correctly. The last two Grams were numbered as 703. It's probably the Static Number Virus (SNV) which has infected the GNM in the past. If your Norton Anti-Virus program doesn't eliminate the SNV, try just changing the number manually each time you send a Gram.

David Klinger

Dear David,

Thank you for setting us (me) straight. As you have since noticed, we corrected our mistake. When we make a mistake cheating you out of an issue, we might overlook it. When we make a similar mistake cheating us out of credit for an issue—we fix it!!

Editor

Dear Gram,

Max Spiegel talked about D-Day. It is just a bit more complex than he states. I used to teach a military tactics course called "Senior Battlestaff" and by regulation there were a series of letters to be used in case of multiple attacks being launched about the same time or on the same day. There was a prioritized list of letters to be used after D-Day, and a second list to be used after H-hour.

To my shame, I don't recall them, except to possibly remember that "M-Day" was the second priority (I think). Perhaps Howard will recall. There is a regulation and a FM for everything we do in the military. I am sorry that I don't recall exactly the priority of letters. What do you think Howard, maybe Staff Operations 101-5?

Herb Freidman

Dear Editor,

Here are the "Official" definitions of D-Day etc etc from DoD web site: www.dtic.mil

(DOD) (C-, D-, M-days end at 2400 hours Universal Time (Zulu time) and are assumed to be 24 hours long for planning.) The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff normally coordinates the proposed date with the commanders of the appropriate unified and specified commands, as well as any recommended changes to C-day. L-hour will be established per plan, crisis, or theater of operations and will apply to both air and surface movements. Normally, L-hour will be established to allow C-day to be a 24-hour day.

a. C-day. The unnamed day on which a deployment operation commences or is to commence. The deployment may be movement of troops, cargo, weapon systems, or a combination of these elements using any or all types of transport. The letter "C" will be the only one used to denote the above. The highest command or headquarters responsible for coordinating the planning will specify the exact meaning of C-day within the aforementioned definition. The command or headquarters directly responsible for the execution of the operation, if other than the one coordinating the planning, will do so in light of the meaning specified by the highest command or headquarters coordinating the planning.

b. D-day. The unnamed day on which a particular operation commences or is to commence.

c. F-hour. The effective time of announcement by the Secretary of Defense to the Military Departments of a decision to mobilize Reserve units.

d. H-hour. The specific hour on D-day at which a particular operation commences.

e. H-hour (amphibious operations). For amphibious operations, the time the first assault elements are scheduled to touch down on the beach, or a landing zone, and in some cases the commencement of countermine breaching operations.

f. L-hour. The specific hour on C-day at which a deployment operation commences or is to commence.

g. L-hour (amphibious operations). In amphibious operations, the time at which the first helicopter of the helicopter-borne assault wave touches down in the landing zone.

h. M-day. The term used to designate the unnamed day on which full mobilization commences or is due to commence.

i. N-day. The unnamed day an active duty unit is notified for deployment or redeployment.

j. R-day. Redeployment day. The day on which redeployment of major combat, combat support, and combat service support forces begins in an operation.

k. S-day. The day the President authorizes Selective Reserve callup (not more than 200,000).

l. T-day. The effective day coincident with Presidential declaration of national emergency and authorization of partial mobilization (not more than 1,000,000 personnel exclusive of the 200,000callup).

m. W-day. Declared by the National Command Authorities, W-day is associated with an adversary decision to prepare for war (unambiguous strategic warning).

David Klinger

Dear Gram,
I have been unsuccessful in receiving any attachments to the Gram. I'm particularly interested in Marcus Turners reference to the "baseline concept of the re-loadable SVC as the alternative to MPC" mentioned in MPCGram 701. Is it possible for me to access it somehow?

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 706- Monday 20 Aug 2002

Whose initials are in the Ed White vignette?

By Joe Boling

In gram 699 Jay Garrison reported that Ken Barr was offering a souvenir card bearing an engraving of the Ed White spacewalk that appears on the series 681 fractionals. In gram 700, Bill McNease reported that the card was listed by Ken at $150, not $5. However, before I received gram 700, I had ordered the card, asking Ken to send it for $5 plus his customary shipping and handling charge. He responded in a day or two that the card was on its way, and that shipping was being provided gratis to gramsters. Today the card arrived, with its $5 invoice, which I had already paid by mail. So, at least one was available for $5; I don't know how many more there may be.

The engraving is exactly the one that is on the 681 notes. Remember that Fred and I learned at the Bureau that MPC designs were first engraved, then separated into multicolor lithographic elements for production. This card seems to be made from the plate that was converted for use on the 681 backs. The only significant difference I can find is the addition (on the MPC) of a wedge of color to the lens of the camera in White's hand. (As on the NASA web site, the engraving is upside down in relation to its orientation on the MPC.) The other engraving on the card is one of the Wright Flyer airborne at Kitty Hawk.

While inspecting the Ed White engraving and comparing it to the MPC backs, I found what appear to be initials in the sea below White, just to the right of the baton or rod that he is carrying. The most conspicuous is the letter V; to its left is a less-clear letter A. On the MPC, in lithographed form, the V is still quite visible, the A less so. Fred and Larry, who at the bureau had the initials AV? AV being a near-SWIM, it reads the same no matter which way the vignette is oriented (but as shown on the souvenir card, the A appears to be the stronger letter). Fred (via Gene Hessler) identifies the engraver of this vignette as Edward R. Felver; I wonder if he had a daughter named Victoria or Alice? Inspection of two other vignettes engraved by Felver (in their MPC-lithographed forms--681 fractional face and 692 $5 face) does not reveal any further use of these (or other) initials.

The only mention of signed vignettes in MPC-IV is the reference to the initials MPC in the Chief Ouray vignette. Has anyone else found any evidence of signed vignettes? Did anyone at the Bureau ever sign his work? What about all those vignettes borrowed from 19th century sources? Were any of those brought in from private banknote companies?

Get out your loupes, folks, and start searching.

Carlson Chamliss is visiting here at headquarters. He came to do some publishing business, and, indeed, we did some. However, I must admit that with all of the scholarly intent, we digressed into a swap meet! I showed him mine, he showed me his, and some deals were made.

I think that there is something in the nature of collectors. It is hard to get together without creating some deals! I love it!

Dear Editor

The story on the destruction of Series 691 and 701 is sad and incredible. Did Robert Unger take a picture of the boxes, pallets, or the actual "act of destruction?" I would love to view one.

Best regards,

Trung T. Nguyen

Of course we also have the TGIF day. (Everyone knows that one) The F0 day (can be combined with G (golf day) and the all important TGIGMO day (Thank God I got my orders day)).

Bill McNease

Dear Beloved and Respected Editor:

Recall the discussion about the POW Camp at Fort Stanton, NM, and it's proximity to the Trinity Site when the first nuclear device was detonated. There was a question about safety considerations. Last night I had a long conversation with Ben Benjamin, a gentleman who was an Army technician at Trinity Site. He was one of the construction party that spent the year preceding the test building the site and the year afterwards tearing it down. He knew nothing of the POW camp. Their primary safety concern was the spread of contamination. There was a test event of 100 tons of TNT for instrument calibration on 7 May 1945. This was seeded with radioactive isotopes. No particular problem arose due to the spread of airborne radioactivity. For the Trinity test, the only specific related safety measure was the stationing of 2 or 3 people in each of the nearby towns with instructions to go to the authorities and explain the cover story (an ammunition dump blew up) in the event there was some catastrophic event.

Probably more detail than you wanted to know.

A Trip Down Memory Lane

By Larry "Ski" Smulczeski

Last week I mentioned going back and looking at a copy of a Bank Note Reporter that was twenty-five years old. It brought back some interesting memories and in some cases information that I had forgot or didn't know. Twenty-five years ago my interests were not as encompassing as they are today, and I frequently glossed over articles or did not digest information that I had only a passing interest in.

Anyway, it was an interesting trip down memory lane and something came to mind as a result of it. I still subscribe to and read Linn's Stamp News even though I have little, if any, interest in stamps. There are occasionally interesting articles in that paper that provide valuable information for the events and time period for which the notes we are collecting were issued. Linn's also does a weekly review of their newspaper that was printed fifty years ago including events and the price dealers were selling items at. I always find this little feature interesting as it takes me back to my high school days and brings back more memories. If only I had the foresight to buy up some of those mentioned items at those prices, I'd be in tall cotton today. But then again, who had the money to buy collectables at that time. After all, it cost over a dollar to take a girl to the movies and have an ice cream soda or a cherry coke afterwards.

Our heritage in banknote literature is not as rich or encompassing as the stamp-collecting hobby, but the Bank Note Reporter does go back some 29 years. Since I am always looking for a subject to write about, I thought I might follow Linn's lead and review the Bank Note Reporter of twenty-five years ago during one of my weekly columns each month. I think you will find some of the information from these aged relics of the past to be of interest.

The August 1977 issue headlined Grover Criswell assuming the presidency of ANA. You might remember that I wrote last week that Grover founded the Bank Note Reporter in 1973 and sold it to Austin Sheheen in 1976 because of his ever increasing responsibilities with ANA. Criswell was the author of several books on Confederate currency and bonds.

Right below that lead story on the front page was a featured article by Fred Schwan about the E.A. Wright Bank Note Company. This article eventually evolved into a monograph by our editor entitled "The Paper Money of the E.A. Wright Bank Note Company."

The article tells the story of the immigration to New York City of Ernest A. Wright in about 1871 and the establishment in Philadelphia of a securities printing firm known as E.A. Wright Bank Note Engraver.

His son, E.A. Wright II was born in 1880 and joined his fathers firm in 1898. In 1907, the company was incorporated as E.A. Wright Bank Note Company. Business was good for the firm as it produced significant numbers of stock certificates and other fiscal paper. E.A. Sr. died in 1912, but saw the birth of two grandsons, E.A. III and Thomas P. Both joined the company in the late 1920's. The two youngsters expanded the companies' diploma and commencement program printing business making it one of the most important aspects of the companies' business.

Yet, there were no banknotes for this Bank Note company. This changed in 1941, when French officials contacted the company about printing paper money for five French colonies--French Guiana, French West Africa, Guadeloupe, Martinique and Morocco. In all, 21 different notes were printed for the colonies although there are numerous signature, date, and other varieties. All of these notes are WWII military notes and are all listed in WWII Remembered. In its 92 year history, these were the only actual banknotes printed by the company although they were well done, beautiful notes. If you decide to collect them, I hope you have real deep pockets. Most are scarce and high priced.

The company was sold to Josten's (a class-ring manufacturer) in 1964 mainly because of the diploma and commencement program business. The security printing business remained as E. A. Wright Company. A year later, Josten's sold the security printer to Thomas de la Rue who did business as Federated Bank Note Company. de la Rue eventually sold out to Security Columbian Bank Note Company. By the way, there are also an E.A. IV and E.A. V. Since this article was written 25 years ago, I wonder if there is an E.A. VI or even E.A. VII by now?

Page 3 of the paper has an article that announces an auction by paper money dealer Bill Kiszely at the Long Beach Coin and Stamp Expo. The auction included "A" and "B" yen specimen books. I wonder who got them and at what price?

Most of you will not believe this next item, but pages 6 and 7 feature a full two page ad by Fred Schwan featuring military notes for sale. Didn't know Fred advertised, did you? BUT, can you imagine Fred selling a 641 5c replacement in fine condition for $3?

It books at over three figures today. Or how about a 661, 5c replacement for $2? Would you believe $300 today? I'll bet you would jump at a 692 10c or 25c replacement for $3.25. In all, there were 28 replacements ranging in price from $2 to $195. I haven't checked all the prices, but I doubt if you could purchase any of them for less than 10 times the listed price and some for 100x. Fred featured a complete set of 681's uncirculated for $55. or take two for $100. Please don't go running for your check books!

Page 10 featured an ad by C.M. Niel Nielsen wanting 10 peso Philippine guerrilla notes from Mindanao with about 300 specific serial numbers. I remember this project of Niel's. He had a large number of Mindanao counterfeits and he was attempting to match the counterfeit with the real note having the same serial number. That's really looking for a needle in a haystack, but he was successful in finding some of them and had a fabulous exhibit at one of the Memphis shows featuring these notes. Nielsen also authored a great article entitled "Financing the Guerrilla Movements in Mindanao." Some of this information is included in the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money Volume One, but not in its entirety. It's unfortunate that this info never made it to book form, because it makes great reading for the collector interested in these notes.

For those of you who asked, the computer is not back yet, but I got a call today and hopefully by next week we will be up and running.

Larry came up with a great idea for a monthly column. While it is a great idea, I want to point out a negative. It is an idea that any of the rest of you could have thought of and implemented! Larry has always led by example, so you can use his example and find some new twist.

I was sure that Larry was going to end the E. A. Wright story with his personal encounter with a great collection of the notes. [Larry, see there is another story idea. I will supplement that story (when you tell it) with a story of my own about the Wright notes.)]

Finally, can you imagine 50 years from now when Meoldy Turner is editor of the Gram, Nikkie Goldstein might do a daily review of what was in the Gram 50 years earlier. Each month Nikkie will do a flash back to Ski's flash back to the BNR.

Mail Call

Dear Gram:

Just a quick note to tell you how very much I'm enjoying each issue of MPC Gram. There's terrific writing as well as unique information available every week.

Just as the title states, "Covering the Entire World of Military Numismatics," I've been learning all kinds of things about this area of collecting that you won't find anywhere else.

I just read Joe Boling's column about the initials in the Ed White vignette (MPC Gram 706) and it reminds me that good research, like good writing, requires an inquiring mind and Joe certainly fills that bill.

Larry Smulczenski's column about his research into the story behind photos of detainees at Fort Stanton camp (MPC Gram 675) is another example of great writing. Larry took some bare bones facts and fleshed them out into a fascinating story.

As in any area of study the more information the deeper the understanding, is there a possibility for a glossary of terms related to military life? Sometimes there are references to practices or procedures that non-military folks like me don't really have a clue about nor can we infer from the context of the story. Maybe a brief definition can be included in the story when appropriate or a reference to a printed or electronic source of information could be included. Just a suggestion.

Keep up the good work.

Michele Orzano

Michele,

Thanks a bunch for writing. I suspect that one of our surfers will find you a great site for military terminology (aka jargon). If someone can do that, we can provably find a spot to put the link on a permanent basis. Failing that, we might be able to work more directly on your suggestion. I will keep your idea in mind and try to put some explanations in context in the future, but it is not easy to recognize the words needing such clarification.

We will certainly welcome a teaser from you now and then asking about a term or a group.

Thanks for your thoughts. We would be pleased to see you at Fest IV. Sidney is not outside the "pass limits."

Editor

Editor,

Well, you've resurrected the old template that omits the IBNS from the 5-6 October show announcement. How do you do that?

Joe

Dear Joe,

It is a skill!

Editor

Dear Editor,

The original proof of Ouray at the BEP has "F. Noyes" in the portrait. This was altered and replaced with "MPC."

Early Articles on Military Currency

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

While attending the ANA Summer Seminar, I used the library frequently, mainly because my class met in the library. During breaks, I would wander through the stacks, sometimes looking at the military paper money books upstairs against the front wall, and at other times browsing through the various journals the ANA maintained, sitting on their shelves in the basement.

One journal, "The Numismatic Scrapbook Magazine," I enjoyed looking through greatly. Published from 1935 to 1975, the journal contains a cornucopia of information. Unfortunately, the magazine does not have an index, or more correctly, a useable one. The published index consists of a listing of the article titles for the year, but no keywords. As many of the tidbits of knowledge came in the form of paragraph summaries, the existing index completely misses them. Some respite comes in the form of the Harry Bass search engine, one of the greatest tools for the researcher. However, because of the factoid nature of some of the articles, only by doing a page-by-page review of the journal can the researcher gleam all the information.

While thumbing through the 1945 volume, I came across two articles dealing with the issuance of Allied military yen currency. The military first used AM yen on the Ryukyus Islands on 1 April 1945. This is the supplemental B yen (supplemental A yen entering circulation on 7 September 1945 in Korea), and came in denominations of 10 and 50 sen, and 1, 5, 10, 20, 100, and 1000 yen. Not being one of the original denominations, the 1000 yen began circulating in December 1951.

1st article, May 1945, p. 466

American Army and Marine assault troops in the Ryukyu Islands have requested an issue of American invasion currency in Japanese denominations for the first time in the western Pacific war.

Navy Lt. J. G. Roberts (author's note: perhaps LtJG Roberts instead?), supply corps officer in charge of issuing new money, exchanged crisp sen and yen notes for American greenbacks for a long line of soldiers, Marines, and sailors.

Invasion bills were issued in six denominations -- ten and 50 sen, and one, five, ten and 20 yen. The exchange was at the rate of ten cents for one yen and ten sen for one penny. (The pre-war value of the yen was 23  $\frac{1}{2}$  cents.)

Largest of the bills, the 20-yen note, is about the same size as American currency. Other bills are half as long.

Most of the troops are buying the currency for souvenirs.

2nd article, September 1945, p. 882, entitled Sen, Yen

To facilitate dealing with the natives, Yanks on Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands are being paid in military sen and yen notes instead of dollars. There are 100 sen in a yen and a yen on Okinawa is figured to be worth 10 cents, but this rate of exchange may vary in other Jap areas on the invasion schedule. The military currency, which was made in the U.S., comes in denominations of 10 and 50 sen and 1, 5, 10, 20 and 100 yen. Low-value notes are about half the size of a dollar bill, high bracket yen jobs approximately as big as one. On the face of the notes are the words "Military Currency" - printed in both English and Japanese. Men who want to send money home may, of course, exchange their sen and yen for greenbacks.

It sounds like Doug Bell has an interesting MPC barbeque planned for Dallas this weekend. He is going to ask his wife to write a report from the perspective of a non collector. That should be mighty interesting!

If you can figure a way to be in Dallas on Saturday afternoon, I think that it will be worth your while! I cannot attend because of a whole schedule of things happening at home that weekend, but you can be sure that I tried to make it happen. I will certainly try to make it to BBQ2.

Dear MPCgram,

I haven't spent much time studying the significance of the relationship between position number and serial number of MPC notes. But, I have found something interesting about MPC notes becoming available on e-bay. With in a matter of months, I have seen (3) $5 Series 661 notes all with position number 48. I have purchased (2) of them. All are graded unc. They are B00382503 B, B00383105 B, and B00383897 B. I am not a steady reviewer of e-bay and only access it every other week. Is this an indication of a potential horde being released a little at a time or is it just by chance? Any thoughts on the matter from the Gramsters would be appreciated.

Bob Unger

Dear Editor,

The best reference, by far, on military terms and definitions is Joint Publication 1-02, entitled: Department of Defense Dictionary of Military and Associated Terms. This is available on-line ( in .pdf format) at the following web address:
www.dtic.mil/doctrine/jel/new\_pubs/jpl\_02.pdf or go to: www.dtic.mil/doctrine and click on DOD Dictionary.

The dictionary is over 500 pages long so I don't know how long it will take to down load on a phone modem.

Initials on MPC

By Gene Hessler

This is about paper money in general, not necessarily a reference to MPCs.

Yes, at least two BEP engravers signed their work: G.F.C. Smillie and Alfred Sealey.

The image of Ceres on MPC 521, $10 had an "S"(millie) in the lowest button on the sleeve. However, that portion was cropped to fit the note. I 've written about this subject in PAPER MONEY and/or the IBNS Journal and elsewhere.

Both Smillie and Sealey would hide an "S" in buttons and their names in lapels. G.F.C. Smillie often put his entire name in a vignette. Some souvenir cards will show this.

Doug Bell said that he would send me a fest note with barbeque sauce on it. That is little consolation for missing MPC barbeque I. I decided to console myself by going to the Strongsville (OH) Coin Show. This show has been the source of a few finds over the years. Leo May is going to be set up so there will be plenty of military money to look at, but then I went through his stuff a few weeks ago. Will probably do it again at Strasburg. Oh well.

I will give a report on Strongsville, but we will have to rely upon the guys with sauce on their lips and possibly on their notes for reports for the Gram.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I walked into the Van Dung store at 15 Le Loi this AM and the owner told me someone had been there to see me from America! It turned out to be Bill Evans, a fellow member of the Society of Indo-China Philatelists. And they said he was an old man like me and too tired to stay at the store so he was back at the Caravelle Hotel sleeping.

"Old Man"! In what little brain I have left, it is about 18 years old, so how can I be old?! I belong to this society because I also collect postal financial instruments like postal orders, postal checks, etc. I wrote an article about them in the society's journal and recommended the Van Dung store, and Bill shows up there! Great stuff! I love the power of the print and web media! We can spread around a lot of good news to many collectors and others worldwide so they can get in contact with sources and the good guys. That is all for now. My wife and I have about 24 more hours of shopping for our house here before she returns to the USA and leaves me to do my things.

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

To either editor.

Militaty Currency Lives.

In the Sept 2002 issue of World Coin News, columnist Richard Giedroyc, relates the use of "pogs" as small change for the military in Afghanistan. Giedroyc quotes the Army News Service as stating that the Armed Forces Exchange service recently started using pog-like 5, 10 and 25 cent "certificates" other than MPC or coinage. And apparantly the Main Post Exchange in Ft Lewis, WA, is accepting the pog at face value. Now there is a challenge for gramsters in that part of the world. Go, Joe [MS Bike Ride].

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements, Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Vietnam Trip Report

Nguyugen Trung

Back in 2001 my friend Phil asked me to look for a currency control card during my trip to the homeland Vietnam. Phil was specifically interested in a card issued by the United States Coast Guard. Well, no card was ever found.

Phil - It took me another trip in 2002 to figure out why those items are beyond rare. During the visit to the former Independence Palace of South Vietnam, now the Unification Hall of Vietnam, I wandered down the basement where all the war actions were directed. In one hidden corner of the war room was a sign behind a glass door. The sign reads:
Classified: secret

Number of Allied Forces in South Vietnam
June 29, 1968

|               |         |
|---------------|---------|
| United States | 541,933 |
| Army          | 363,601 |
| Navy          | 33,664  |
| Marines       | 83,990  |
| Coast Guard   | 401     |
| Australia     | 7,379   |
| Taiwan        | 31      |
| S. Korea      | 50,355  |
| New Zealand   | 523     |
| Philippines   | 1,825   |
| Spain         | 12      |
| Thailand      | 2,423   |
| Total         | 604,481 |

The sign did not catch much attention. In fact I was the only one looking at it, probably because it was in Vietnamese and the Western tourists were not able to comprehend the writing. I took a picture of it while thinking of my friend Phil back in the United States. With the number of Coast Guards of 443, my change to locate a currency control card is actually less than none, provided the cards were actually issued. Sorry to disappoint you there, Phil. The question is: Did the Taiwanese numbered at only 31 have any kind of coupons, MPC, etc? How about the Spanish who were totaled 12? Does any one have information on this issue?

I saw the South Vietnam Flag that was flying on April 30, 1975 (I was in the Philippines en route to Guam USA that morning). The flag was folded and displayed in a glass case. I sure wanted so badly to touch the flag that millions of us were fighting and dying for... it was sad. It should be noted here that the last President of South Vietnam is still addressed as "the President" in every speech at the former Independence Hall. For example his office is known as "the office where the President worked." It sure sounds like Thieu is still in power and South Vietnam is still an independent country. Just a touch of my own emotion, I suppose.

One item I acquired during the 2002 trip was a wartime era draft deferment card issued to a South Vietnam citizen. The card was stamped for signature and authority "Nguyen Van Thieu." At the time President Thieu was not yet the president. He was the general in charge of the arm forces or something close. The card was not signed by Thieu himself but by his assistance "for." it would be nice to have Thieu's original signature. Well, next time I hope.

Does any one want the card more than I do? I have no plan to sell it, but if one of the gramsters wants it

I will consider parting.

Editorial

Reports are starting to come in from the MPCBBQI. Sounds like it was a mess (which is good for a barbeque!). Expect a detailed rerport tomorrow.

As for my own trip, the journey to the Strongsville show was very successful. I had a very nice time visiting with Leo May, Daryl Speilbring, Dick Houde and some others. I just missed Keith Bauman who was reported to have something for me so I am disappointed about that.

The highlight of the event was picking up a few new MPC replacement serial numbers. Then I decided that I should buy some of the replacements. In the case of the two best ones that I bought, there is a hidden point to the story, I am just not sure what it is.

I first saw these two notes about a year ago. They did not seem that interesting to me, but when I saw them yesterday, I figured that they should go home to Festville which they did.

Dear Gram,

If you want to see how and where engravers hide identifying letters or names, when they get away with it, see: IBNS Journal Vol 26, No. 2, 1987, p. 44.

In addition, see the large engravings issued on souvenir cards, Liberty, Justice, etc. Those engraved by G.F.C. Smillie have his name in small letters. These engravings were used as panels for government bonds.

Gene

Dear Editor:

An interesting web site for military acronyms is <http://www.fas.org/news/reference/lexicon/acronym.htm>

Warner

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I have been here two weeks and just realized that I have not seen a single military token or chit in any condition! This is a bad sign for the supply to the new collectors! But I have found a few other things. One is a set of US Navy mess silverware. Is anyone interested in one or more pieces? And I have found a few RVN and French military items. If anyone is interested in them, I will go into more details about them.

The MPC are few and far between and the grades are fine and below. But I will keep looking for them and give you an inventory at a later date. The oil painting of the Series 692 $10 was bought by Fred Schwan, but the painter is working on other notes in that series. Is anyone else interested in one of them? That is my SITREP (Situation Report) for today from ole Saigon.

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.
They should be the same price.

Barbeque successful

By Sam Feeback

I departed my place 10 miles north of Lawton Okla , at 0530, 08-24-02 in route to Duncan Okla to transfer to Doug Bells vehicle so we could travel to Dallas to the BBQ meeting :-). I arrived at Doug's at 0700 after stopping in Lawton for a brief breakfast and upon arrival at Doug's, borrowed some thread and tied my glasses back together as they had fallen apart on the way too Duncan. This was a drive of approximately 35 miles or so. When I arrived at Doug's I luckily found the screw to my glasses and while Doug drove, put them back together. We made good time and I navigated while Doug drove and we pulled into Dallas at the Sheraton Hotel at around 10:00-10:30 or so . We made a pretty good team as we drove right to the Hotel without any mistakes whatsoever, almost exactly like we knew what we were doing . A short time after walking in We saw Harold Kroll, Al Glasser, David Seelye and his girl friend . This was a very good show and i soon found myself looking at Dealers wares , whom I knew from their advertising in Coin World. I looked around the different tables until approx 12:30 when I realized Doug had gone out for the BBQ and sodas. At approximately 1300 Doug arrived and we helped him bring in the food and drink. Everyone had plenty of delicious BBQ and trimmings and after a time to eat and enjoy it, we received our pay thru Doug and Harold. Everyone enjoyed this a lot and quite a bit of trading went on immediately thereafter. Afterwards each person present , stood and told a little about themselves . This was a small informal group but seemed to be very relaxed and I think everyone had a good time. Not to start any tales about anyone :-). But Harold requisitioned one of Doug's Challenge Coins and then had the nerve to challenge everyone else in the room. After he looked at everyone's coin, we found out he had left his own coin outside in his vehicle, at least that was his story, I don't know if anyone ever actually saw this mysterious coin or not. And somehow Harold conveniently forgot to return the borrowed coin to Doug :-) Lyn Knight was also presented with a pay envelope that he seemed to delight in opening very slowly as everyone was gathered around to see what he received. . The people who were present at the meeting were : Doug Bell, Bruce Potter, Harold Kroll, John Cheney , David Seelye, and his gril friend , Russ Walsh, Joel Shafer, Al Glaser, Lyn Knight, and I. I would like to take this Opportunity in the Gram to Thank Doug Bell , Fred Schwan and Harold ( Coin Taker ) for helping to make this such a good time and for doing such a good job. Thank You very much, I really enjoyed this a lot and appreciate the opportunity to meet new people and form new friendships. I was able to obtain my last note while at this show , so now have finally completed my basic set :-). . And no way am I about to try to start a position set of anything :-).

Doug and I departed about 1735 and after a short drive north , we fueled up and I drove back while Doug examined his recently acquired treasures, He is really making tremendous progress in his drive to put together a complete position set of fractionals and 1.00 notes. We made good time out of Dallas and back to Duncan arriving there just short of 3 hours later. Again I want to Thank Doug, Fred, and Harold for making this fun time occur and look forward to getting to see everyone again.

News from the front!!!!...

MPC Bar-B-Q Fest and BIG TIME get together(this is TEXAS afterall!)

Well, it actually came off. It was traumatic for a down home country boy from Texas like myself trying to find the Festers! It all began with David Steelye's note on his MPC sales table...we're gone NEXCT DOOR to the MPC Fest. Well this humble Texas boy went NEXT DOOR and no one was there!!! Next the staff went looking too. Lo and behold in the lobby in front of, and almost, NEXT TO the grand ballroom were a number of people examining wads of currency and discussing in low tones. I wandered (a local Texas term for cowboys) over to the table with the most folks (another local Texas term) at it and asked...Say cowpokes, do you know where the MPC Fest, Bar-B-Q, and general get down is? They said this is it! ying, I'll show you mine if you show me yours...I thought about it for a moment, as any good Texas boy would, before answering, ah, yes, MPC!!!!

We adjourned from the wide-open spaces of the lobby to the room NEXT DOOR! (This reminds me very little of the way we get a round with directions here in Texas, like you turn at the fork in the road where the old Johnson place used to be, or you can't get there from here!!) I think that's the type directions Harold was getting to the hotel, did he ever make it there?

A fer piece (another Texas term for the uninitiated) later we ate real Tony Roma BAR-B-Q. Now this of coarse raised the inevitable which BAR-B-Q place is best arguments, well, discussions. I heard tell (another Texas term) Dickey's, Bartley's, The Feed Store, Red Hot and Blue, and Tony Roma's. A couple of these got votes for consistency across their stores in the USA and the others for the best BAR-B-Q.

Well, then the business (isn't this what we were here for) of MPC came up in passing. We had a little PAYMASTER action where some Dallas Fest money was distributed. Then there was a mad scramble for certain numbered Fest dollars. We talked about MPC and the Auction some. We did a little looking at each others collections.

A program was presented by the "Other Schwan" where there were collecting remberances of a now deceased collector. A great presentation. We then adjourned, but not without some promotion of the Port Clinton Ohio NEXT FEST!!

Well my overly verbose fingers have worn out on this review of the Dallas MPC Fest.

I bid you a fond farewell (or as we say in Texas-Don't let the door hit you in the ___ on the way out!)

Take Care till the wild bunch meets again!!

Editorial

Wow, it sure sounds like most of us missed a great even in Dallas. From the reviews, my guess is that Doug will hold it again next year. I will certainly do my best to be there!

I should have thought before the Q that Amon Carter, Jr., possibly the most prominent Dallas numismatist ever, was a keen MPC collector. He had a great regular issue collection, replacements and lots more.

Neil Shafer has written about Amon at various times for the BNR. Neil, how about digging out those articles, polishing them a little (smile), and sending them to your Gram!

Just in through the either, Doug Bell's Report on QI. It will appear in the Tue Gram. Other reports are also wanted!

Mail Call

Fred Schwan suggested that I post these two item for sale on the MPCgram for all of the current subscribers. One MPC checklist and 10 UMC, see attached photo and enlarge to 100% on you computer when you receive this e-mail. Your cost is $5.00 postpaid, for one set one book and ten UMC. Limit of one package per request. Quantities are limited for mail you request and funds ASAP to:

j.a.parker.anc@juno.com
John Parker
P.O. Box 20173
Atlanta, GA 30325

Note to Bob Unger-The 661 $5 is rather common and I have about 60 in UNC many with consecutive serial numbers. I will check to see how my serial numbers relate to you but it is not unusual to find small and sometimes large hoards available. I just purchased 28 notes in each denomination .05-1.00 in what I believe are GEM from Series 692.

Bill McNease

Dear Editor Fred,

I missed you at Strongsville but "Secret Agent Spy Sue" said she saw you fly into the show just as we were leaving the hotel. I left all the MPC and military items for you to purchase so I guess I do not have anything for you! ! !

Collector's Score at Dallas-Feedback Completes

By Doug Bell

The Dallas show was great with at least 5 dealers who brought LOTS of mpc. Sam Feedback completed his basic set with a 541 $5 that he obtained from David Seelye. I saw a 541 $5 there that the sn# ended in 05 and matched the denomination. I don't know anyone doing this matching as of yet. That particular note is a tough note to find.

I was able to acquire about 80 notes for my master set. Completing the 641 series from 5 cent through 10$ and putting me within 85 notes of having 2/3 of all fractionals and $1 notes--3307 to date.

Had a great time and am looking forward to next year.

Biling's In Box

By Joe Boling

Monday I received from Australia, from long-time SB-contributor Patrick Varne, photocopies of some neat stuff he has acquired from the estate of a former German soldier who kicked around France, Germany, the eastern Front, and then the Afrika Korps before being captured by the French, eventually to be handed over to the Americans. He was imprisoned at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, until 1946. Seven years after repatriation, he emigrated to Australia.

There is a chit from Edgewood in the materials that Pat sent copies of. It is deep red with black lettering (so dark red that the photocopy is almost illegible, but Pat wrote out the legends next to the black blob): P. W. CANTEEN/Edgewood Arsenal, Md./No. 3693/NOT GOOD IF DETACHED. There is a box on the right end with 10/CENTS. The whole chit measures 57x24mm, with the box taking the rightmost 18mm. Ski, is this a new report? Edgewood is not in Campbell or SB. (All measurements premised on the photocopies being at 100%.)

Patrick has a ton of stuff from this fellow. Other items he sent copies of include a Thanksgiving dinner menu (1944) from the EM division of the Chemical School at Edgewood; the guy's Wehrmacht paybook; a trusty pass ("to and from work without a guard"); a visitor's map of Edgewood; photographs; a color photocopy of a diploma attesting to the prisoner's graduation from a course in American history with a grade of B (crossed 48-star flags in living color); and a very interesting small (78x38) second pass. This piece is titled "AIR RAID PASS." It says "Permit bearer to enter the theatre within one /1/ week after the Air Raid." Signed "T G Hall/Theatre Officer." (The slashes are in the text in this case, not used to show line breaks in the text.) The whole thing appears to be mimeographed, with Hall's signature in the stencil master. Now, what does that text mean? What earthly connection is there between an air raid (of which there were none in the US) and going to the camp theater?

A note about dark photocopies. I have found that it is very helpful to hold dark copies up to a strong light. The details become quite visible. In the case of the chit mentioned above, all the text is very legible that way, even though sitting on the desk it appears to be a solid mass of black. I recently was examining a photocopy of a raised note. When held to the light, the edges of the counters that had been applied to the note became very obvious; sitting on the desk you could not tell that there was any alteration (remember, this was a photocopy, not the original piece). Hold those dark copies up to a light; you'll see more in them.

Patrick has also (earlier) sent color photocopies of two envelopes (one with US postage, the other with Australian) that traveled between US HQ elements within Australia during the war. Perhaps they will be the topic of a future column.

I ran into Ray Bows at a local show here Saturday (shopping, not selling). He has retired from Massachusetts to Florida, but is traveling in his RV more often than not. You can reach him at namlore@hotmail.com; he logs on in libraries as he travels, so don't expect an instant response. (Seattle libraries are all closed this week, and the week of 16 December, as a cost cutting measure. Staff members aren't just getting a week off--they are losing a week's pay. Yuk.)

Finally, I acquired another position 8 piece this week, the example replacement I had been wanting to acquire, just to have a representative piece of that variety (I also have an evidence note as a representative piece). As it happens, the new replacement it is also a piece I did not have yet, a 692 dime. It's a clean but well-used piece. I had to chuckle at the price on the invoice (from Steamed Editor)--$88.88. I STOLE IT!

Organizer's Report--BBQFest I

By Doug Bell

I feel the Lyn Knight show was a great success. To start off with there were almost as many people as the first mpc fest present. (WOW) For a mini-fest that is great. We had 3 new attendees: Joel Shafer, John Cheney, and David Seelye's friend. It took me 1 hour to acquire our meals from Tony Roma's BBQ which was about 10 minutes away. They had to cook it 20 minutes before they would let me have it, but it was really good. We were allotted the meeting room for 1 hour so we started the bbq as soon as it arrived.

Harold and I served as paymasters and as festers were finishing up the BBQ, we started paying. Lyn Knight was busy hosting the paper money show so he wasn't able to attend our fest, but he did receive a partial pay, and every fester was huddled around him while he slowly revealed his sn# of the notes he had received in his packet--3 stars in sequence. Russ and I sorted the notes and shuffled the notes 3 times before the envelopes were stuffed with pay and training money. Maybe Russ with his analytical mind can explain the chances of that happening.

Editorial

Obviously MPC collectors in general and Festers in particular had a great time in Dallas. With every passing moment, I regret more that I was not there! As they say in sports, wait till next year.

One of the interesting things , especially from my point of view, is the number of BBQ participants who have taken the time to send a report, letter, or comment (no complaints ). The percentage must be the highest ever in numismatics. I can only think of two BBQers who have not sent a report, and I am still hopeful on them (hint, hint). Look for more BBQreports tomorrow.

For the second week in a row, I had trouble receiving Boling's column at my personal mail box fredschwan@yahoo.com. I have received other things and he did not get a bounce message, but the column did not arrive. I am uncertain of the problem. If anyone has an idea, we would like to hear it. Beyond that, it is probably best to send all email for me to the Gram.

Fred

Mail Call

Dear 'Gramsters,

I've been an active collector of numisma since 1959, I got the bug when my best friend's Dad's eyes bugged out when he realized that my family's heirloom coin (all families have at least one...), an old dollar, was an 1889-CC. 'Nuf said.

In all that time I have NEVER known a group as entertaining and informative as the 'Gramsters. No Full Step nickle freaks, no MS-67.2348194539 dementos, no 'cent vs. penny' screamers, no 'Nationals-with-Red-Seal-and-serial-Number-1-with-ink-smears' nutsooids, no one in numismatics seems to have as much fun as the 'Gramsters do.

Now I know that finding something valuable in a $$$ way is good (you should have seen me when I found a 1941 Panama 20-Balboa proof note...)and it is somewhat of a motivator; however, for sheer joy of collecting nothing seems to beat the folks involved with MPC and all its permutations (aside: anybody got an extra set of Afgani pogs??).

PLEASE DON'T EVER LOSE THIS ENTHUSIASM!!!!

Thanks for all the fun!

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Jay,

Your comments are VERY much appreciated, but your timing has never been good. I just checked the company roster from the barbeque and do not see your name.

I think that our eccentricity is not in doubt. Hope to see you at an MPC event soon.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Angelos is the best BBQ in the country!!! It is in Ft Worth and the beer is so cold that ice flakes float on top!!

Nick

Dear Gramsters,

Our new Fixed Price List 32D is now up and available for viewing on our web site. You can go directly to the list at <http://www.rosenblumcoins.com/pricelists/list32d.html>.

This list has no pictures although our picture policy is stated on the front page of the list. There are lots of nice coins, tokens and medals offered and we hope you find something of interest.

We'll be in the office starting Monday morning, but orders will be filled in order received, so if you see something you want, please reserve quickly. We've been told that there has been some problems with our email lately so if your message doesn't get through on one of email addresses, please try the other.
wmrcoins@qadas.com or bill@rosenblumcoins.com.

Thanks,

Bill Rosenblum

Dear Gramsters,

Think someone can come up with a list or chart of all the Fest money, replacements, errors, etc.? All I have is the Fest II series of "regular issue". What's out there?

Opportunity Lost

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Last week, when my last Thurski column was published our editor added—"I was sure that Larry was going to end the E. A. Wright story with his personal encounter with a great collection of the notes. [Larry, see there is another story idea. I will supplement that story (when you tell it) with a story of my own about the Wright notes.]]"

Oh, I remember that incident, alright, but I would just have soon forgot about it to tell you the truth. It's one of those stories that most of us have in our past, that bring back heartaches when we think about them. I've remembered this one numerous times over the years and rationalized, that you just can't collect everything because the pockets just aren't deep enough. But then again, I think back to notes that have been offered to me over the years that I have passed on and think, "Oh you fool." You couldn't touch those for three, five or even ten times that much today.

Anyway, this little incident happened sometime about twenty years ago, so some of the facts have grown a little fuzzy. You will have to excuse my memory, because as I have told some of you, the memory is the second thing that goes and I sure don't remember what that first thing was.

As I recall, we were at a Memphis show, and it had to be one of the first five or six. I still was trying to complete my basic set of MPC but it seemed like every time I ran into Fred, he had something new to tempt me with. This time it was a collection of French colonial notes. Again, the facts are fuzzy, I believe it belonged to Phil DeRosa but it could have been Jerry Voigt's. This was a collection that even the most critical collector would want. It contained many of the most important notes from the French Colonies. There were a number of the rising Phoenix notes as well as most of the E.A. Wright notes that we talked about last week. I drooled all over the collection and Fred put on his best sales pitch. "It can go home with you" and "You can pay for it over time." The natural cautious comeback of course is "Yah, but how much?" Fred's natural answer to that is "Oh, don't worry about that." But I was worried about that, as I knew without looking in a catalog that we were talking about some where in the ballpark of five figures. I was noncommittal when I went to my room and pulled out a catalog. Five figures heck! There were notes from some of the colonies which would cost you close to five figures for just that particular colony. I had a sleepless night as visions of Columbus, the Santa Maria, Karukera, Marianne and the Rising Phoenix replaced the sheep jumping over the fence. I think I thought about it for two days, but in the long run I just had to pass. I might have still been paying on it if I had brought it home. Of course, today that collection would be worth two or three times that figure that I don't believe Fred ever gave me. Years later, I asked if he ever sold it. He said he had, but I never found out where it went.

As a result, I decided to not collect French colonial notes. I passed on them when they were offered by dealers or in auctions. In all honesty though, I must admit that I never saw a huge offering of these notes. There was a nice small offering of the E.A. Wright notes earlier this year, but they changed hands real quickly. I personally concentrated on the German and British notes. I must admit that over the years, I mellowed in the resolve not to collect French colonial notes also. I have a few of these notes, including a Rising Phoenix and nearly all the Morocco notes, but still nothing to compare to that early eighty collection that I was offered.

O.K., Fred, that's my recollection of what happened, lets hear your version.

Editorial

The easiest comment that I can make on Ski's commentary is to answer the question of whose collection it was. It was the Voigt collection of French colonial notes that I offered Larry.

Yes, he certainly made a mistake in not buying the collection. It was a wonderful group. Larry subjected himself to one of those terrible collecting maladies: that sucking chest wound from opportunities lost that never heal." I know about this because my chest is covered with festering soars (few scars, mostly open wounds).

When Larry passed, I took a few pieces from the collection to supplement my own and sold the remainder here and there. Of course it was not very difficult to sell, but because the notes were so wonderful. I made more money selling it the way that I did and got the money faster than financing it as a collection, but I still wish that Larry would have bought it. Besides the fact that it would have been good for Larry financially and mentally to have it, I wish that he did so that I could see it again! That would mean that you could see it too! Oh well, that is the nature of collecting. This way it made many collectors happy too.

Mail Call

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Letter to the Editor #6? was really 7, so this one is 8. FYI. I do not want to confuse you any more than necessary.

I was going to send this as an email to Joe Boling but I thought it might be useful to someone else in Gramster land.

In a recent "Viet Nam News" article, they described a former Cpt Matsunobu Nakahara, now 81, who was on the staff of MG Ikawa in Hanoi just before the surrender of the Japanese in Aug 45. He said that the general convinced him and many other officers to leave and join Ho Chi Minh's forces before the surrender. They all worked and fought with the Viet Minh until 1954, when they were repatriated to Japan. That is, all except the general, who was killed in a battle. A few years ago, three gold coins issued by the DRVN were discovered. When I reported them to Joe, he said they matched Japanese coin weights, and they did not match my known weights for the Vietnamese. I am wondering if one or more of these Japanese officers had anything to do with creating these coins.

Can any of you in Gramster land solve this for me?

Howard

Dear Howard,

This was supposed to keep me unconfused?

Steamed Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Mr Carnes at the US Army Finance Museum can immediately acquire a declassification form and submit it to have the Confidential cancelled on the specimen books. It is not a big deal and the US Army and Government because they are looking for anything and everything that can be declassified.

Howard Daniel

Dear Howard,

Bill Carnes (Finance Corps Museum) told me yesterday that he is going to persue declassification of the booklets. We sure look forward to this. Heck, I look forward to finding one of the booklets in private hands!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I kindly received my pay from the Dallas BBQ fest but I forgot to get BBQ at the gathering. It was a pleasure to get so many wonderful notes but no sooner than I received them were the vultures circling the camp trying to get them from me. I am referring of course to my serial number #1 and #2 star notes without naming any vultures, they ripped off my carcass(boy I not sure about the spelling) and left the bones and a few duplicates in place of my jewels.

I took a selection of WW1 and WW2 posters from my inventory to the show as well as the rest of Ruth Hills POW script and propaganda leaflets which will be sold either in Nov or Feb or through internet auctions going forward. I hope those in attendance enjoyed having something to look at.

We were glad to have all of you that made the journey and hope the show was enjoyable for each of you.

This show is a great little secret as there is nowhere you can go and have so many knowledgeable dealers with time to share without pressure.

I hope next year more will join us.

Lyn Knight

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 715 - Friday 30 Aug

Amon the Great

By Neil Shafer

Well, the comment in a Gram editorial about Amon Carter and the articles I have written about him in BNR stirred me to respond, as he was just a tremendous personality on our field. While I do not possess any of the earlier articles, I can tell you what they covered. Any I do happen to have would date from around 1995 onward as I began to save them on my computer from then to now. A bit of background on my first meeting up with him. It was in 1960 at one of the major conventions, probably held in DC. I was living in that area at the time and had developed a very strong interest in PI numismatics, especially those parts having to do with the United States. This interest included both coins and paper money, and I did a lot of research at the National Archives and the Bureau of Engraving, all of which resulted in a book each on the coins and notes. These were published by Western (Whitman Publishing) in Racine, WI. in 1961 and 1964, respectively.

It developed that Amon had a very strong interest in both of these PI areas as well, so we had a great meeting where we went over a lot of points having to do with the collecting of these items. Our friendship became stronger through the years, and we also did some trading back and forth.

He was also strongly interested in military notes, including MPC. In fact, Amon ended up with my fully uncirculated MPC $5.00 Series 471 that I had obtained from the Jim Wade Collection (along with a lot of other military and related notes) in the late 1960s. The price was a record for any MPC note up to that time- (believe me, it would bring a lot more now!). He also had a huge boxful of AMC that had come out of Europe somehow. With all the contacts he could have had, this should not come as a surprise to any of us.

Actually, though I am sure he had some terrific individual items, I do not really recall anything terribly outstanding about his MPC collection except that it all seemed to be in high grade. But nothing specific stands out in my memory.

Now as to the times I wrote articles about him in the BNR, they started out with a two-part series in September and October of 1988. I called these articles "Carrying the Torch" as they had to do with the time I spent with Johnny Rowe in a locked bank vault in Ft. Worth going through his entire world paper money collection for tax purposes in 1983. Johnny was doing the US material while I was engaged with the fantastic world group. It just carried you through every day, so wonderful was the collection, that you never felt tired or unwilling to do a lot more the next day.

We worked all day, and every evening I wrote a synopsis of what I had seen that day along with anything else of more than passing interest. This diary was the basis for those two articles. The Note of the Month illustrations for them were two outstanding rarities, a Banco Herediano 25 pesos of 1886 from Costa Rica (#S185) and a $1.00 1881 from the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China, issued at Shanghai and payable in "One Clean Mexican Dollar" (#S225). This last was one of Amon's very favorite notes because of its reference to a "clean" Mexican dollar. Both notes are illustrated in Vol. 1 of the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money.

The next time I brought his name into a BNR article was for June, 1992 under the title of "Memphis stirs memories of Amon G. Carter, Jr." This time I discussed a new book called, simply, "Amon." It was mostly about his flamboyant father, but he was also included. I believe one of the stories was concerned with his capture by the Germans during World War II and being a P.O.W. several years, finally being released partly through the influence of his father (I may be wrong on this as I don't have the book at hand, but I think this was part of it).

Call this Part I- I will fo part II right away.

Everyone is doing a GREAT job of sending good stuff to the Gram. Or is every doing a good job of sending great stuff? In either case it is exciting for the hobby and a pleasure for me.

Tomorrow we will have a special list of MPC available from Vietnam. See Howard Daniel's letter below.

This weekend will be a little bit of a test, because I will be out of town on a social (gad) trip. I am not sure what internet access I will have so the Grams may be a little mixed up (is that a change?) Actually, this makes it even more important for you to send a letter, complaint, or whatever so that we can create a Gram on the spur of the moment at a local pub.

Dear Gramsters,

Just a note to the Ebay bidders on the collection of 641, 661, 681 and 692 notes that did not sell. I viewed the notes today and can verify that the entire lot is in UNC. A big however, there is a lot of foxing on most of the notes and they do not generally have a good appearance. The owner of the notes is unreasonable in the asking prices for the lot but I held them in my hands and looked over each and every note.

Any questions on the notes just let me know.

Bill McNease

Dear Editor,

Another quick aside, this on military games notes. Thought you might like to know of these. I did two articles on these in the Sept. and Oct. 1999 BNR, with some replies that appeared in Feb. and April of 2000.

Neil

Dear Steamed Editor,

Gramsters who are IBNS members have one more day to get their bids in on auction 59. This is a 4581-lot sale! There are MANY military pieces in it. (But don't you dare outbid me on the ones I'm looking for.)

Joe

Dear Joe and Gramsters,

Thanks for the tip. Possibly Gramsters who are not IBNS members will consider this a wake up call to join! Contact joeboling@aol.com for more info on IBNS membership.

Steamed Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Here is the list of MPC for sale in Vietnam that I mentioned in my report number five. All of the pieces were found in Viet Nam, and I quickly looked at and graded them. Everyone who knows my grading says it is always too low, so please take that into consideration. As I have time, I will look at it again to look for any imperfections.

His asking price for all of the above MPC is $2000 to the first offer, but there is a little negotiating room if there is no offer at his asking price. The reason he is selling is because the government just gave him some land to replace what was taken from him several years ago and he will be building a house on

it. If he cannot sell it at what he believes it to be worth, he will keep it and continue to add to and improve it.

All of the Series 692 in the MPC Collection are being made into large oil paintings for me to return with to the USA. The four cents pieces will be in one painting and there will be one painting for each of the dollar pieces. Each framed painting is available at $100. each and the $10. is already sold.

Howard

Dear Howard,

The list will be run tomorrow (Saturday) giving everyone an even chance at the group. I will be out of town making it a little bit difficult, but I will try to arrange for the list to go out at noon eastern time. That is NOT a promise.

Collection of MPC offered from Vietnam

As announced yesterday, a collection of MPC found in Vietnam by BNR columnist Howard Daniel is being offered for sale in today's Gram.

Here are details reported by Howard: All of the pieces were found in Viet Nam, and I quickly looked at and graded them. Everyone who knows my grading says it is always too low, so please take that into consideration. As I have time, I will look at it again to look for any imperfections.

His asking price for all of the above MPC is $2000 to the first offer, but there is a little negotiating room if there is no offer at his asking price. The reason he is selling is because the government just gave him some land to replace what was taken from him several years ago and he will be building a house on it. If he cannot sell it at what he believes it to be worth, he will keep it and continue to add to and improve it.

The list of notes appears in the For Sale section below.

Mail Call

Dear Editor-

First, some comments about the Dallas meeting. It was my rookie experience at a Fest event-quite enjoyable. I managed to make a few serial number trades from my pay envelope. Marvin Mericle forwarded information to me regarding his collecting experiences and I relayed this to the group. More on this will follow as we get closer to auction time.

The editor referred to my father's experiences with Amon Carter, Jr. I wanted to add a few words about Amon from my own perspective as a young man. I was still in high school when Amon passed away in 1982, so I did not really conduct any business with him. At the time, it was obvious to me how much respect my father had for Amon. Whenever I saw Amon (he came to our home once, so this was usually at shows), he was a larger than life figure to me. What I did not understand then is that he was also larger than life to his contemporaries. Since his passing, I have become acutely aware of his extraordinary position in the hobby. In my mind, he has garnered the most universal and deepest respect of anyone I have met in the field.

Of course, he had some wonderful bank notes. Lyn Knight Currency Auctions has been fortunate enough to handle a few of these pieces. If someone wants a piece with top pedigree, it would be an Amon note. I do remember Amon emphatically not liking any bank notes that he could not read.

I look forward to reading more comments about Amon.

Joel Shafer

Dear Editor,

Another quick aside, this on military games notes. Thought you might like to know of these. I did two articles on these in the Sept. and Oct. 1999 BNR, with some replies that appeared in Feb. and April of 2000.

Neil

Dear Editor,

I enjoyed the writing by David Kinger on the specimen books. There is one aspect that strikes me as strange. What are items marked "confidential" doing in a museum? I thought the concept behind a museum was to show items to the public, not secure them from the public.

I went back to my June 2000 edition of the banknote reporter. The MPC article indicates that Marv Mericle described specimen booklets and positive impressions of 691 and 701 held in a government archive. Did Mr. Mericle get to see the confidential sets at Fort Jackson? Someting smells fishy.

Al Babb

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Yesterday, I was at Mrs. Phuong's shop near the central market on Le Loi to pickup my purchases. Her prices to me were excellent and I accepted all of the material and paid her. Just before I am prepared to leave, she says MPC. So I have to stop and look at the miserable stuff. There were seven Series 692 $20 pieces in Fine to Very Fine condition, but with staple holes. When I got to the last piece, it had "$140" written on it. The seven pieces belonged together! I do not know what price she has on them, but the serials and print postions are E00740955E 43, E00569667E 22, E03505551E 39, E03815781E 27, E03596073E 50, E03410906E 27 and E01807257E 26. She also had Series 641 5C J00771820J 12 in VF, 10C J04198677J 21 in VF, and a $1 J01790693J 14 in F+. And the US Navy spoons and forks! One side is stamped USN and the other has the anchor. They are silver or silverplate and there are two forks sizes and three spoons sizes. Are there any gobs out there interested in them. I do not know if Marvin Mericle has an email, so one of you please contact him to see if he wants any of them.

That is all for now from ole Saigon.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 718 - Sunday 2 Sep

Greatest Collection to Be Sold

Marcus Turner

Today (Sunday August 25, 2002) was a very sad day in the world of MPC collecting. I ventured approximately 1 hour west of my home just outside of Indianapolis to the extreme western edge of Indiana along I-70: Terre Haute. The Wabash Valley Coin Club held their annual coin show at the Hulman Center (AKA: The house that Larry Bird Built) in downtown Terre Haute. Marv Mericle is heavily involved with the Wabash Valley Coin Club and is a large part of running this show. If I am not mistaken, Marv is the Bourse Chairman for this show. He must have done an outstanding job since all available tables were sold out. Unfortunately, it looks like I arrived a little late. While there was some decent MPC on the floor, Marv managed to buy up all of the great items including a Series 100 A 10 Yen in Uncirculated condition! I guess that is what I get for trying to sleep in on a Sunday morning.

So what a sad day for MPC collectors you ask? This was the last time that the COMPLETE Marv Mericle collection of CHOICE UNCIRCULATED MPC collection would be on public display. This is the same collection that has received numerous exhibiting awards over the past two years. This is the same collection that is featured in the new 4th Edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. It is from this collection that the official ANA Military Payment Certificate Souvenir Cards were made. Without question, this is the most perfect, complete collection of Military Payment Certificates ever assembled. In a sense I had made the trip to pay my final respects before the collection is placed on the auction block next February in Chicago.

It is always exciting to watch the reactions of non-paper money collectors looking at an exhibit of MPC. It can almost be a throw back to the glory days of US coinage with the allegorical figures, but in the bright colors that never materialized in modern day US paper money. As impressive as the exhibit is to the non-MPC collector, it is also ironic that that most that saw that final exhibit probably have little appreciation for the quality, and level of effort required to assemble such a collection.

As much as I do not want to see Marv's collection broken up, it is definitely a wonderful opportunity for us collectors to not only own a piece of MPC history, but to own a piece that will set a higher standard within our own collections.

What is the best collection? What is the best collection ever? Similar, but different questions. Marcus' article is wonderful, but his statement that the Mericle collection is the best MPC collection ever is certainly open to debate. It is exactly like sports and political debates. Who was the greatest quarterback ever? Who was the greatest president ever? Who gets to decide? I love it.

I have been asked by Lyn Knight and Joel Shafer to catalog the Mericle collection. I will certainly state in the catalog that it is the greatest collection of regular issues that has yet been sold at auction. That is fairly easy to establish. The greatest collection ever, should allow lots of discussion here in the Gram. I have some more ideas, but I will save them at the moment in the hope that readers will fill our mail boxes with comments!

Dear MPCGram

Do you have the totals of currency redeemed by the U.S. Department of Defense for each MPC series? I can not find any listing in the Books Military Payment Certificates or World War II Remembered about this subject.

The only reference I have found was an article in World Coins magazine issue of December 1970, page 1506. This refers to MPC Series 641, the "Red Dollars" of Vietnam use. "At the time of the 1968 conversion there were 153 million dollars in MPC in circulation. U.S. authorities said at the time that 11 million dollars worth of MPC were not redeemed, indicating that all or most of this amount was in the hands of black marketers unable to turn it in for new money."

Does any MPCGrammer have a handy listing of issued/redeemed for each Series issue?

Richard A. Ziegler

Dear Richard,

Thanks for writing. If you can consult the national registry of MPC redemption figures, you will find everything you could want.

Sorry, there is no such place. These figures are hard to come by. Interestingly, the only specific number that I have recorded in my master book is also for Series 641 and it is substantially different from the numbers that you quote.

Colonel Jeff Wiley was the chief finance officer in Korea when Series 651 was retired. He has a copy of the final report on redemption and destruction. He has indicated that he will provide it to us. That report should be very interesting, but he has not produced it yet. Very possibly he will hand deliver it at the January FUN show which is where I met him in the first place.

Alternatively, you might wait for a letter to the Gram from David Klinger who will probably find all of the redemption figures by series, by denomination, by country!

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 719- Tuesday 3 Sep

A few odds and ends

By Joe Boling

I was looking at a gramster's collection of chits this week; he has them in four-pocket PVC pages, with, in many cases, photocopies of the booklet covers in the same pockets with the chits. I noticed that he has acetate sleeves inside the PVC pockets, which is a good precaution. However, he has the photocopies inside the acetate sleeves with the chits. This could be a problem.

Black photocopy toner will transfer to other objects (I don't have enough experience with color toner to comment on it). Think of the letters you have received that were printed on laser printers, and the text has transferred to the opposite side of the fold while the letter was in transit. If you are going to store photocopies with your numismatic items, don't keep them in contact.

Now, in the instant case, one might think, OK, I'll keep the chits in the acetate sleeves and put the photocopies outside. Wrong solution; photocopy toner will adhere to PVC even faster than to another piece of paper. Most of you have seen what happens if you put a membership card printed on a laser printer into a PVC billfold pocket; when you take the membership card out, half of the toner will stay in the pocket.

Solution--put both chits and photocopies in separate sleeves, unless they can sit in the same sleeve without overlapping each other. As for using acetate sleeves in PVC pages, it's a precaution, but not a solution. PVC will generate acid fumes that easily seep into the sleeves in the pockets. I think I have related the case of the proof medals that were frosted by the PVC pages they were in, through (or around) the Mylar windows in the 2x2 cardboard flips.

Next item. In going through a collection of Latin American counterfeits this week, I ran across some Mexican circulating checks from Torreon, Coahuila, 1913. These were all drawn by local banks on each other, to be payable in Mexico City. They were needed because the railroad was closed and cash could not be moved up the line from Mexico City; meanwhile, General Francisco Villa (Pancho Villa) was demanding cash with which to pay his troops (thus the connection to the gram).

All of the ones I saw are stamped FALSO, but Pick vol 1 says that even these are actually genuine. I can imagine that the poor quality of the production caused some to be suspected, and perhaps stamped, or the stamps could have been applied once the checks were paid. There are no standard security features; the checks are not printed on safety paper, though they are handsigned (except some low denominations on one of the banks). The paper has a manufacturer's watermark saying OLD HAMPSHIRE BOND, which can run horizontally or vertically. Parts of it were visible in four of eight checks that I examined.

Last item. Recall Fred's dictum that the only bargain is the opportunity to buy. I was browsing through the prices realized from the Lyn Knight 23-24 Aug sale, and came across a non-descript $20 1929 (type I) national bank note. It has ugly edge tears, is trimmed into the frame at the top, and shows much wear (and all this is on the face; I can only guess how wretched the back is). Hardly a desirable note. The catalog grade is VG (don't ask me how they arrived at that, with portions of the note missing). The description says that it is the third small size note reported, with one large size also known. The estimate is $1750-2500. The note sold for $6038. Obviously two collectors recognized an opportunity that might not occur again within their lifetimes.

My various inboxes runneth over. After being away for four days (and away from computers (well, at least from the internet)), I am back in the editor's chair and more than a little overwhelmed with the mass of stuff demanding attention. I am working on it!

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I agree that the "Greatest Collection" is certainly a subjective call. While I will never be a Marv Mericle, I have been able to accumulate a pretty decent collection. I have in CU or better a basic collection (less the 471 $5, 521, 541 and 591 $5 and $10). I have those notes but just not in CU. (I will get them). As far as printings go, I am only missing the 472 2nd .50, 481 2nd $5, $10, 481 4th .25, .50 and 1.00, 521 2nd 5.00, 641 2nd 5.00.

I also have the 691 Series, both printings, and the 701 second printing along with a 691 $20 replacement.

If any one has any of the above that I need then let me know at billsing97@aol.com

Thanks, I am getting close.

Bill McNease

Dear Editor,

What happened to Gram 715 and 716?

Doug Bell

Dear Doug,

Oh no, a bean counter! We have a firm policy on Gram numbering. Numbers that cheat the editorial staff of credit for a Gram are not tolerated and will be corrected. Errors that cheat subscribers of Grams will (be tolerated). Now that we have [apparently] been caught is a little, er, error, we will extend all subscriptions by two issues.

Creation, ye, planning no. Seriously for a moment , if I can. It looks like the missing numbers are the result of our (my) attempt to create Friday through Monday Grams on the Thursday before I left town. This is certainly not my style. Grams are normally created minutes (or moments) before distribution. This suits my personality and the medium that we are exploiting.

Selling My collection

By Marv Mericle

I was pleased to read Marcus Turner's article about my MPC collection. I can say one thing about it. It was a great pleasure collecting and assembling the complete set. Phil once wrote what is a complete set. That is still open for debate. Mine is a complete set of basic notes. They are not all perfect, but I tried to assemble the best I could. I believe that meeting the different people who helped me, and those who shared their time and talent with me is what made this not only complete, but a great amount of history. Not only of the notes, but the people who saved them in the first place.

I will have to remind everyone who may read this that Fred will always be a part of any collection (be it complete or not). He has said many a time, your notes are mine, they are just on loan to you. You may have paid for them, but someday they will be back with me! Trust me, what he said is true. It may not be today, tomorrow, or the next year, but they have or will (or both) pass through his hands.

I think what I have leaned (and still leaning) from MPC collecting has increased my understanding of why people share their hobby with others. With the help of all the other collectors and dealers, I was able to complete my collection in what I considered a short time. Not only do I have a complete set, but I was able to screen collections and dealers stock for serial numbers to complete notes with the last two digits the same within a series.

As some on you may know, my collection was stolen when my house was burglarized. The FBI has able to apprehend the people who did it, and found my MPC collection. It was still complete. Nothing was missing. When the collection was return to me, I decided that I wanted everyone to see it. I have exhibited it at many, many shows. Some of the bigger shows were the ANA, FUN, MEMPHIS, CENTRAL STATES, AND INDIANA STATE. I have also shown it at local club shows.

Even though it is being sold, I am still doing research on the vignettes. There is a no ending field of things to do with your MPC collection. And a never ending way to collect these pretty pieces of paper.

Editorial

Well, yesterday after putting out Gram 719 in which I confessed to the world that Doug Bell caught us cheating on the Gram count, I found that it was more complicated than I thought.

Gram 715 WAS sent. Unfortunately, the subject line for email said Gram 714 even though it was correct on the Gram masthead.

I am not sure about 716. Does anyone have Gram 716? It might have been a similar problem to 714/715.

Later today or tomorrow, we will rebroadcast Gram 715. It will be marked in subject line as a "makeup" Gram or something similar. If we locate or find a Gram 716, we will do the same.

Fred

Mail Call

=====

Dear Esteeeeeemed Editor,

The MPC collection is sold and I have instructed the buyer how to pay Dung. After the payment arrives, I will hand-carry it back and send it via registered mail to him in mid-September when I return to the USA.

The owner will be happy to know that I missed three pieces, so he is getting three more than expected. Dung thanks you and everyone else involved and will use the money with other monies to build his new house.

I have had Dung go around the streets and collect all of the MPC. So far, it is not much in numbers and totals about sixty pieces. And all of the grades are "circulated", but I will make another list and email it to you tomorrow for those Gramsters collecting by number and/or print position.

There is really not much MPC around this trip and I have only seen one really grubby military club token. Things are drying up over here and the total supply can be really estimated in the near future. That is all from over in Ole Saigon for today. I received an email from "Kevinn517@hotmail.com" and it was returned as undeliverable. Please post this letter in the next Gram so he will know to send me another email address. Thanks.
Howard (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,

The Gram sells! Aside to readers. The above is a composite of several letters sent by our wandering reporter.

Editor

Dear Esteemed (Steamed) Editor,

Thursday I received Ski's gram and it was numbered 714; on Friday I got the next gram and it was numbered 714; on Saturday the next gram arrived and it was 717! Should Friday's gram be 715? If so, where is 716?

Is it just me or do my fellow gramsters have the same trouble?

Roger Urce

Dear Overworked Editor,

I hate to see unnecessary expense incurred by any publication that accepts me as a subscriber. You advised Doug Bell all subscriptions would be extended by two issues as he had caught you out with two missing Grams (715 and 716). Last friday's gram was addressed as Gram 714 (as was last Thursday's), but when opened I discovered it was actually 715. Only Gram 716 was missed and accordingly I believe a reduction in everyone's subscription by one issue could be justified now as a result. This may not be a popular suggestion with all gramsters so I would prefer to remain,
Anon.

Japtan Island

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Before my computer got hit by lightning, I had written a couple of columns on the atomic tests and the few pieces of ephemera that were associated with these tests. There was one more series of tests that I wanted to write about, but without the computer, I didn't have my data. So, lets look at that series of notes issued for Japtan Island Recreation Area. If you are not familiar with the notes, there is a picture of one on page 427 of your World War II Remembered. They were issued in values of 5c, 10c, 25c, 50c, and $1. All the designs were the same except for a color change between the values. There was a palm tree with coconuts on the face, and a picture of two nuclear particles bombarding the core of the explosive on the back. The major color of the notes was green with brown, blue, pink, green and black used respectively on the five values.

Japtan Island was the Rest and Recuperation (R & R) Area for the Nuclear Tests conducted on Eniwetok. Since most of the sailors were at sea most of the time during the tests, and there were no R & R towns in the vicinity, Japtan Island filled that void. There was a bar, a swimming beach, and a shipwreck on Japtan Island. Notice I didn't include any girls, maybe a few natives, like Bloody Mary from South Pacific. With no women for entertainment, fights frequently broke out between the various crews and most sailors felt they didn't have a good time unless they went back to their ships with at least a few cuts and bruises on their bodies.

Japtan is a small island in the same chain of islands as Eniwetok Atoll. Both are in the Ralik Chain of the Marshall Islands. After World War II, this area was designated as the site for atomic tests from 1947 to 1962. Since there was a 15-year period there, I tried to determine when the notes were issued.

You will notice that there is a seal on the left side of the face of each note. It says that the notes were printed on board the USS Estes and that the Joint Task Group was 132.3. If this was like the Bikini Tests, the point 3 indicated the Naval Support ships for the operation. The commander for this operation was RADM C.W. Wilkins, CTG (Commander Task Group?) 132.3. His flagship was the USS Curtiss and the test sequence was known as operation IVY. The ship arrived at Eniwetok on 12 October 1952 and participated in several tests thru June of 1953. Included was the first thermonuclear device detonated. The USS Estes was also part of the Task Group during these months. So this appears to be when these notes were printed. The right hand side of the face of the note has a statement that says "Void after completion of operation. Good in trade only". Theoretically, the notes should have been voided around the middle of 1953.

This however doesn't explain the overprint listed in World War II Remembered for the USS Batroko. I have searched for a ship by the name Batroko, but was never able to find one with that name. I did however find the USS Bairoko, which was an escort aircraft carrier. The Bairoko though was involved in the Korean war until August of 1953, therefore could not have been associated with operation IVY. Further research uncovered that USS Estes and Curtiss returned to Eniwetok in early 1954 along with the USS Bairoko as JTG 7.3 for a series of high yield thermonuclear weapon tests known as operation CASTLE. In this case the Estes was the flagship and the firing station for the tests. The Bravo test under CASTLE was to have a predicted yield of 6 megatons but actually yielded 15 megatons. This was the most ever exploded in the atmosphere by the USA and was the worst incident of fallout exposure in the entire series of atmospheric tests. Fallout was scattered over 7000 square miles of ocean and radiation burns were experienced by a number of participants. The USS Bairoko had 16 of her crew that developed small skin lesions.

World War II Remembered lists the USS Batroko (sic) overprint as a simple souvenir. I would like to offer that it may have been a validation stamp to continue use of the notes at Japtan Recreation Area for JTG 7 during operation CASTLE. What do you think?

=====

The implied message from Ski's column above is that he is back on line. At least his computer problems were the direct result of mother nature instead of Microsoft. Nonetheless, losing one's computer these days sure curtails collecting activities not to mention other areas. I wish that I had some sage advice to offer along this line. I do not. I can, however, repeat that terrible computer term: "back up, back up, back up."

Mail Call

Dear Editor

I enjoyed Marv Mericle's comments about his complete collection. I wonder if his was the collection I viewed at the Portland, Oregon ANA convention. I didn't know such "things" existing, not being a paper money collector. But that collection is what gave me the determination to collect these notes I found so attractive. I'd encourage everyone to display their collections, complete or not - as with me, perhaps many will start collecting MPCs simply by appreciating your display.

Geoffrey Bard

Dear Editor,

One point which seems to have been missed in the recent turn of events on where Marv's MPC Collection has been shared with the public and the collecting community is that they have been making their way into Krause's Standard Catalog of World Paper Money Series as the illustration notes for the MPC section in Vols 2 and 3. It was a pleasure to get introduced to Marv, and work with him in getting the notes, a few series at a time, on loan to be photographed. That was a great way to share some very nice items with the hobby, thanks!

George Cuhaj, Iola.

UNSUNG AT SICILY, JULY 10 1943
THE ROLE OF THE S.S.ASCANIA AT THE INVASION OF ITALY

By Tony James

There's got to be a story here!, I am beginning to dread the words as some one shows me another treasure they have acquired or intend to sell or give to me. The trouble is that I am hooked! There is a story and it's great to search, and search, worry the topic to death and follow the trail wherever it leads. Two notes located in London. British Military Authority Great Britain Pick M3 Schwan Boling 303, 2/6, and Great Britain Pick M5 Schwan Boling 305, 10/-. However these had been overprinted with the words Souvenir of the Invasion of Sicily S.S. Ascania.....July 10th 1943 printed in gold along the bottom of the notes. All I saw were big question marks leaping up at me, like an addict I start plotting ways to research Where? What? When? and how?

Sicily 1943

After the defeat of the Axis powers in North Africa in the spring of 1943. The tide of war turned for the Allies in the Mediterranean. The U boat menace had subsided and the bombs began to rain on Germany instead of Britain. The Allies turned to the next stage of the invasion of Europe, The Casablanca Conference of Roosevelt and Churchill and the Combined Chiefs of Staff held from 14th to the 23rd of January 1943 had finally agreed and out lined the course of the war to be followed after the defeat of the Axis powers in Tunisia. On January 19th 1943 Churchill and Roosevelt had agreed that Sicily was to be the point of invasion, and on the 20th Operation Husky was outlined and meticulous detailed planning commenced. The British had won over the Americans to their idea of attacking the soft underbelly of Europe instead of the American's wish to push for a cross Channel invasion from the British Isles.

Operation Mincemeat

A macabre code name for an elaborate and successful plan to hoodwink the German High command that Sicily was only a cover target and that the real objective in the Mediterranean was Sardinia in the west and Greece in the east. The body of an unknown service man dressed as "Major Martin" a Royal Marine officer on Mountbatten's staff was dropped over the side from HMS/M Seraph off the southern coast of Spain in such a position that it would surely drift inshore and come to the notice of the Spanish authorities. Major Martin's brief case contained supposed vital secret documents outlining the Allies plans for the future, among them a personal letter to General Alexander from General Archibald Nye (and actually written by him) To make Major Martin 'real' he was provided with all his personal possessions:- identity card, passes, theatre ticket stubs, keys, money, and personal letters; including two from his fictional fiancée Pam. Operation Mincemeat was a success and German troops were moved away from southern Italy towards Greece and also northwards towards the supposed threat at Sardinia.

Another part of Operation Husky

Okay! so what is the paper money angle on all this?

The first issue of Allied Military Currency printed by the Allies was put into use at the Invasion of Sicily. It had been decided that the invasion and occupation currency would be similar in appearance, facilitating production, used by the invading troops to try to prevent disruption to the local economies. This was to be a uniform basic design, with the overprint of the local currency of the country being liberated. In all there were issues for Italian Lire, French Francs, German Marks, Japanese Yen, Danish Kroner, and Austrian Schillings.

The task of printing the notes was shared among the Allies, although the US performed the bulk of the production due to the practicality of the situation. The Bureau of Printing and Engraving is responsible for the printing of security documents for the US Government, however the volume of AMC required meant that much was contracted out to private firms. Most of the Lire was produced by the Forbes Lithographic Corporation of Chelsea, Massachusetts. These notes can be identified by the printers mark an old English capital "F." The country name, currency and denomination were not added until later.

The AMC for the invasion of Italy, was also code named Operation Husky like the invasion plan itself, was begun on June 10 1943 however the country name and denomination was not begun until July 13 to help maintain secrecy of the area of intended use.

British Military Authority issues

First produced for the invasion of Tripolitania in North Africa in the spring of 1943, the BMA were denominated in Lire with Arabic inscriptions as well as English. Sterling denominated notes were used in the landing on Sicily in July 1943 and later on mainland Italy. The notes were also put into use in Greece in October 1944 at the request of the Greek government when the Allies landed.

The sterling denominations were 6d, 1/-, 2/6, 5/-, 10/- and £1-00, for your information the £1-00 is also known to exist with overprints 'Bulgaria,' 'Greece,' and 'France.'

S.S. Ascania

The inscription on the two notes is fascinating, what was this ship, why should these notes exist. A phone call to the editor of the Merchant Navy Association newsletter who I had previously talked to regarding Australian POW's returning from Japan, gave me the raw facts. The S.S. Ascania was built in 1923 at Newcastle England by the Armstrong Whitworth yard for the White Star Line which merged with Cunard Line in 1934. Launched December 20 1923, fitted out and delivered May 2 1925, and sailed on her maiden voyage May 22 1925 to Cherbourg Queenstown Quebec and Montreal. Fitted with four steam turbines giving a speed of 15 knots and built by the same company, the ship was 14,013 tons, 520 feet long, 65feet 3 inches in breadth, carried 1950 tons of fuel oil, and was registered at Liverpool.

The Ascania was designed for the Canada trade, during the heyday of the liner era, when Canada was attracting migrants, accommodating 4 -500 people in cabin class and 1,000 third class passengers, it did not pretend to rival the luxury of the big express liners like Mauretania and the Queens when they came along. The Ascania was the first of three 'A' class intermediate steamers built in the 1920's, sister ship to the Aurania and Alaunia, she worked the Canada run with some eventful situations until she was requisitioned by the Admiralty and commissioned as an Armed Merchant Cruiser October 16 1939 when she joined the 3rd Battle Squadron at Halifax, Nova Scotia. Like her sister ships, Ascania was armed with 5 ancient 6 inch guns and 2 single 3 inch high angle guns.

The ship stayed with the squadron until October 1941 when she left Scotland with a convoy sailing to the Middle East via Freetown, West Africa, Durban South Africa. At Port Elizabeth she was detached and ordered to Colombo from where she was ordered south through the dangerous waters of the Indian ocean via Freemantle and Melbourne to Auckland New Zealand.

Remaining on this station for some months Ascania patrolled the Pacific around New Zealand and Fiji with HMNZS Monowai during the period of the Japanese advances. An active time for shipping in the South Pacific. August 1942 saw her leaving New Zealand for the UK via the Panama Canal and the East coast of the USA where she joined a convoy to Southampton. Back in Britain she was converted to a Landing Ship Infantry. The purpose of these ships was to carry the bulk of any invasion force to a beach head where they would be transferred to Assault Landing Craft. These were also carried on board the ships for the final run to the beaches. It was during Ascania's service in this role that she took part in the invasions of Sicily, Salerno and in 1944 Anzio. Later in 1944 she became a troop transport and remained in this role until September 1947 when she was returned to Cunard and given a partial reconditioning at Liverpool.

Back to Civilian life

Ascania was the only ship of the 1925 trio to return to the service of Cunard line. She even went back to the Liverpool/ Monteal service until 1955 when she was transferred to Southampton. In October 1956 the announcement came that she was being withdrawn from service, however this was delayed only by two voyages as a troop ship from Southampton to Malta One of these voyages involved the repatriation of the Governor of Gibraltar and over 100 evacuees from the colony, who had spent most of the war in Northern Ireland. December saw her sold to the British Iron and Steel Corporation for scrap, five months later the deed was done, the hulk floated to the last day when the engine room compartment was removed at low tide and the ship was no more.

Sicily Invasion

The Sicily invasion force was possibly the largest of the war. One commentator noted it was larger in scale than the Normandy invasion 11 months later.

Some 2600 ships and landing craft and 150,000 troops took part in the invasion in the first 3 days and a total of 478,000 troops were involved in the Italian campaign of which the Sicily landings was the first act.

The American 7th Army under Patton landed to the west at Licata, Bradley's II Corps at Gela and Scoglitti, and the Canadians were at Pachino which were on the left flank of the British 8th Army under Montgomery who landed along a 60 mile shore line around Cape Passero, through Avola to Syracuse.

The Ascania being British, was part of the Eastern Naval Task Force under Vice Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsey. The troops were either transported in the troop ships or in the larger landing craft, there was a problem anticipated in bridging the gap between the landing craft and the water's edge. With the lack of opposition at the beach heads there were less problems than thought. Probably the elimination of seasickness should have received more priority as no drug to combat this ailment, could be found by the British High Command, however boiled sweets were prepared for issue on the approach voyage and steps taken to eliminate sea sick prone personnel.

Despatch 37786/5569 November 12 1946

Some of the more interesting minor matters that were noted in the Despatch of General Sir H Maitland Wilson C in C The Middle East Forces February 16 1943 to January 8 1944 were the provision of Air-letter forms, and the copies of the Soldiers Guide to Sicily and pamphlets, which were produced locally. Then there was Paragraph 143 of the despatch "The provision of cashier and postal services caused some difficulty. In addition to providing and equipping cashiers to proceed with the force, arrangements had to be made for the provision and distribution of adequate supplies of British Military Administration currency and for the exchange into this currency of the local money in the hands of the embarking troops. In view of the large number of troops and the large sums involved, this entailed a considerable organization"

The landing

Operation Husky depended on the weather as any seaborne invasion must. The rough weather on the night of the 9th of July 1943 apart from causing a good deal of sympathy for the soldiers in the transports and landing craft, also helped to lull the defenders who had been on the alert for weeks, into a belief that no landings would be attempted under such conditions. The first troops went ashore at 2.45 am on July 10 1943 after the airfields and defenses had been subjected to heavy bombing. The 2600 vessels must have looked awe inspiring when the defenders awoke in the morning, sailing in from Gibraltar, Malta, and nearly every North African port from Casablanca to Suez, the fleet of the largest US and British battleships and aircraft carriers down to Assault craft, Motor Torpedo Boats and armed trawlers, was under the command of the Royal Navy's Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham.

So What?

The overprinted BMA notes are obviously the product of some enterprising person or people on board the Ascania. The gold blocking was a stumbling block for me to start with, how would this be done and when, until it was pointed out that the printing is similar to that which would be used for menus and place cards on board passenger liners, a facility that would have been on board the Ascania before the wartime requisition .

The vessel, the invasion, the currency, the politics of the war, and the turning of the tide of supremacy in the Mediterranean in favour of the Allies are brought together by these two small pieces of paper currency which have survived as souvenirs of an event that passes unknown by many people now. Today, old soldiers who traveled under difficult conditions and went ashore under fire, tell tall tales and true, if a little clouded in accuracy, in the clubs and reunions that take place each year. Tangible reminders are rare outside museums except for currency like this, which we are privileged to be the custodians of for a short time.

Deadline! Today is the deadline to register for the POW conference (see calendar below). After today, registration will cost an extra $50. In fact, yesterday was the deadline, but Steve Feller was able to arrange for Gramsters to have one more day. If you send a check today, the lower registration will be accepted. Steve, Ski, and I hope to see you there! Go to www.traces.org for the details.

Mail Call

Dear, dear, dear 'held-in-most-highest-esteam' Editor:
In re MPCGram numbering system:

As long as I get a 'gram everyday I's 'sposed to get one,

S***W THE NUMBERING SYSTEM!!!!

And s***w those who gripe about the numbering system for the most valuable reference we've got!!!!!!
What a picky point to be raising sand about!!!
Hey, labors of love are labors of the heart, not the head. While I've never worn any but a Scout uniform and a band uniform, how many of you military types were EVER in an 'action' that was perfect and went totally by the book??? If even once, it must have been no more complicated than placing a crumpled piece of paper in a trash basket.

Enuf of my rant.

For what you do for the rest of us, we should ALL be grateful. Our gratitude SHOULD include forgiveness for your being human.

An old adage I heard was that every Navaho blanket is woven with a flaw in it on purpose. Why? Well, only God can create with perfection. If Man creates perfection, surely that would be the work of the Devil, so the flaw let's the evil run out of the blanket.

Misnumbering the'Gram is merely letting the evil out so the rest of us will not be infected by it.

'nuff of my rant...On with the joy of MPC'ing!!!!

Print this if ya' wanna, edit it as you wanna, I just had to vent...

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Jay,

Thanks for the vents. If my furnace needs repair I will call on you!

I probably should not admit this, but I like the complaints about missing grams, bad numbering and the like. To me it means that the Gramsters are paying attention and that they care. Furthermore, it helps fill Grams so it is a circular proposition!

Pablo on Series 692 $1

By Tom Koch

After the writing of gram 692; I wanted to do more on one of the vignettes that I particularly liked, the bison on the 692 1.00. This is what I have to share:

William Cox, Associate Archivist at the Smithsonian Institute Archives shared with me:

"National Zoological Park Bison #2926, purchased from Michael Pablo on October 23, 1897, was the model for a rendering by C. R. Knight which appeared on a $10 note that was issued in 1901. I have found no evidence that the animal was actually named Pablo, but it is reasonable to assume that the head keeper may have called the bull by that name to differentiate him from other bison at the zoo.

Michael Pablo was a Montana rancher who became involved in Buffalo conservation during the latter part of the 19th century. Around, 1900, Pablo sold a large herd of bison to the Canadian government which is the basis of the present day bison population in Canada. There is a wildlife refuge named for Pablo in Montana."

Additionally, I received a copy of the specimen card on Bison #2926 from the Smithsonian:

Specific Name: Bison Americanus
Sex: Male
Common Name: American Bison
Catalogue Number: 2926
Date of receipt: Oct. 23, 1897
Received from: M. Pablo, Ronan, Missoula Co. Montana
How Acquired: purchase: ($500)
Died: Oct 3, 1914
Remarks: C. R. Knight's drawing for the ten-dollar bill was made from this animal.

I wanted to find a copy of Knight's drawing so pursued that avenue.

I found a source titled "The Buffalo Book - Full Saga of the American Animal" by David A. Dary, Sage Books, Wallow Press, Ohio University Press. On page 282 of that work:

Although William Hornaday claimed that the stub-horn buffalo he killed in Montana and mounted for the Smithsonian was the model for the "Buffalo-bill," Charles R. Knight, the artist, wrote in 1929:

"This drawing was done at the Zoological Park in Washington and not from the Museum group. The story of that drawing, however, gives a little light on the idea that it might have been done from the mounted group. A certain Mr. Baldwin, an engraver for the Bureau, was trying to make a drawing from the Museum group when I offered to do this for him. Only too gladly he hustled me over to the Bureau and I was commissioned to do the drawing, which I promptly did-from the Zoo specimen" fn7

Foot Note 7 provides much added detail:

"The Bureau (BEP) furnished additional details:

'A wash drawing by Charles R. Knight was the original subject material used in preparing the vignette it for the series 1901 10.00 bill. The note was engraved by G. F. C. Smillie and M. W. Baldwin, who were Bureau employees. However, there is no record of who is credited as being the designer of the note (and) nothing can be found concerning the identity of C. R. Knight' {Letter to author from Micheal L. Plant, October 20, 1971}

Poor Charles Knight. In 1915, Frank Baker, superintendent of the National Zoo, wrote that Knight had done the $10 bill drawing from a buffalo in his zoo, but a quarter of a century later Knight had to clarify the matter again. In 1915 Baker could easily refer to Knight as "the well known illustrator" (Smithsonian Annual Report for 1914, 447), but in 1971 the Bureau of Engraving and Printing did not even know who Knight was. For the record, Charles Robert Knight (1874-1953) was an American Painter, illustrator, sculptor, and author, whose biographical facts can be found in many standard encyclopedias.' "

In the David Dary work there is a photographic picture of our beloved bison; I am still in search of a copy of the previously mentioned "wash drawing" and am obtaining a book via interlibrary loan to hopefully obtain that.

I had previously emailed the BEP wanting to obtain an identifying number for the bison vignette and they responded; "We are not sure by what you mean in regard to an identifying number for the vignette. " (Disappointing to say the least.)

On a closing note: maybe we can, through DNA research, identify a descendant of said bison and invite him (her) to the next MPCfest.

Wow, Gramsters never cease to amaze me! Sure Tom Koch's research above is interesting, well done even. We have come to expect that (from Tom and others). I am struck by the final idea of using modern technology to further our MPC passion. DNA, cool. Bison at the Fest, way out. Tom are you suggesting buffalo burgers? Fred

Series 003 - Number 724 Sunday 9 Sep 2002

New Variety Reported on NAAFI Token

by Philip M. Goldstein confirmed by Larry (I had it all along and didn't know it) Smulczewski

In the past few months, I have been on a crusade to locate the last two NAAFI / BAF tokens needed to complete my set. In addition to those two, I also keep my eyes out for the strike/printing varieties previously discussed by Larry. These tokens have varieties such as Coin & Medallion style printings.

Coin style

means if you were to hold the coin or token at the 3 and 9 o'clock positions, and flip the coin/token, the opposite side would read correctly and right side up.
(I also call this type of printing/strike as horizontal axis.) This is the style of which United States coinage has been produced

Medallion style

means if you were to hold the coin/token at the 12 and 6 o'clock positions and flip, it would read correctly.
(I call this type vertical axis)

If you were to hold a Coin style subject at 12 and 6 o'clock, and flip it, it would read upside down, as would a Medallion style subject held at 3 and 9 o'clock.

Getting on with the story, as I am collecting the NAAFI tokens by printing/strike variety, and normally a non-numismatist wouldn't understand what I am looking for, I usually just purchase the token and ask questions later. This method paid off for me last night, but not in the way I expected.

I received a SB 331 - 1/2 Franc struck/incuse octagonal 1944 NAAFI Token from the UK on Monday from one of my usual sources. This is one of the tougher of the NAAFI tokens to locate. According to WW2 Remembered, there were only 212,570 delivered.

Naturally, upon my reviewing the token at home,
I checked for orientation, which to my disappointment, was like the previous SB 331's I already owned. Upon closer examination however, I noticed differences in the type styles of the struck lettering. The letter
"O" in "ONLY" was round, while on the other tokens I have, the "O" was elongated. There is also a difference in the numeral "2" in 1/2 at the top.

I immediately called Larry, to ask him if he was aware of this variety. He said no, so I offered to send him this one to compare. He said hold on, and retrieved several he had. Sure enough, after looking closely, he discovered he had one (what else is new!) but never noticed the differences, but he has confirmed that there are now two distinct strike varieties for the SB 331 token.

I had taken to calling this variety as older, as the token which I discovered these varieties on,
was generally a bit more worn and aged than my other examples, which were for the most part in like new condition and shiny. Larry informed me his round "O" was like new. Since now I don't really know which came first, I needed a more scientific way of determining.

I have written in my WW2 Remembered book, the varieties as:

SB 331a - Round "0"
SB 331b - Oval "0"

I have also added notations to the appropriate page (p173), "h" for Coin and "v" for Medallion styles, i.e.,

SB 334h or SB 334v

The reason I'm using "h" and "v" is that those letters are far enough down the alphabet, so that any other discovered varieties could utilize the letters "c" "d" "e" and so on without interfering with the progression of the letters in alphabetical order up to the letter "h". (I highly doubt there are 8 different varieties of each token, not including strike / printing orientation, so "h" seems like a good letter).

Another reason: I cannot remember for love or money, on a moments notice, which way a Coin or Medallion orientation is without either looking in my notes, or looking at my tokens. I hope this information is useful to someone else out there, and hope someone can return the favor, as I also need confirmation of the following:

SB 331 (SB 331ah) - Coin style (round "0" - Horizontal axis)
SB 331 (SB 331bh) - Coin style (oval "0" - Horizontal axis)
SB 332 (SB 332v) - Medallion style (Vertical Axis) (SB 332v)

Twice in the past week I found notes in my "dupes" that were not duplicates at all. One was a multiple printing replacement that I was preparing to sell to someone but decided that I had better compare it to the one in my collection and low and behold I did not have one at all. The second case was similar to the first except that I did have one in my collection, but it in fact was not as nice as the one that I was selling. You can be sure that I fixed both situations promptly. However, that is not the real point.

Neil Shafer has said many times that in paper money there are no duplicates. By that he means that every notes is interesting in its own right and often a "duplicate" holds some special promise. Well, said, Neil.

Mail Call

Dear Fred,
On Lyn Knight's (August 23rd) Auction. I bid and got the 641 Series (XF) REPLACEMENT (1st Printing) note. Serial # J00708283 (Position 39)

In your new book (which is great, by the way) you list this note at $1,100.00 - I paid $450.00
Did I get a good deal or what !

But now I wonder why I was the only one bidding on this note? Do you know something I don't. ?

Gary H.

Hi Fred,
No reports from London (which can be deleted from the show schedule by the way)?
WW II Remembered second edition? What is the game plan?

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Gram,

For a comprehensive article about the Pablo the bison on the MPC see:

"Bison or Buffalo, the bill is beautiful" by Gene Hessler in PAPER MONEY No. 145 published in 1990.

Gene Hessler

Dear Gene,
Thanks for pointing out this resource. Do you have an electronic version of the article that we can reprint in the Gram?

Summer Seminar

By Fred Schwan

At the ANA summer seminar in July, Warner Talso and I cooked up the idea to have an advanced class next year in addition to the regular class. I think that most of the idea was Warner's, but together we brainstormed the thing then presented it to Joe Boling and Gail Baker. Both of them liked the idea.

Now is the time to develop the plan. Gail will publish the schedule for the 2003 seminar soon, we can/should develop the idea now.

The basic idea is that the advanced class will be concurrent with the regular class. It will be run something like a graduate class. Students will have tailored activities to be completed during the week. Schwan and Boling (and possibly others too) will guide the advanced students, but not generally teach them.

Because of the low instructor load, it will be possible to have a class with only a few students and I do not think that it will be difficult to recruit those. The low load of course is from the point of view of the ANA administration. From the point of view of Boling and Schwan, the load goes up substantially!

To be a student in the advanced class, a student must have completed the regular class or have permission of the instructors.

The combined groups will participate in some activities such as reenactments (pay, conversion etc). They may join for some class sessions as well.

In my vision one required assignment of the advanced students will be to make a presentation to the basic class on a subject of special interest or expertise. Alternatively, the advanced student could teach a mini seminar or give a seminar wide bull session on some topic. I am going on the schedule to conduct a mini seminar on MPC during the week when the military seminars are not in session. A similar mini seminar might be held during the week of the military seminar.

I would expect each student to write an article (or more than one) for publication in the MPCGram or a print publication. I would also plan to teach each advanced student how to publish the Gram (the mechanics).

What are your thoughts on this? We need to work fast to get the concept together. After that we have months to work on some of the details.

Can it be Monday again? Wow, those weekends sure go fast! This week is one of those cramped ones because it culminates in a show. Yes, Strasburg is upon us. The next few weeks will be really busy in that regard. Please remember, if you attend a show, we want a report!

Dear Editor,

Please include a plug for the following activity that may interest some of the Gram readers. The IBNS Sydney and Melbourne Chapters are holding their annual convention 2/3 November 2002 at Artarmon in Sydney Australia. The main thrust of the convention is educational see IBNS Journal for Joe Boling's report on last year. there is limited trading at the end of each day, last year we had 14 talks over two days Refer adverts on IBNS Website and BNR for some more details All readers have to do is email.

Dear Tony,
Thanks for your recent article and these notices. We sure look forward to reports on these events here in the Gram! Keep beating the drum and you might get some North American gramsters there one of these days.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I like your remarks and those of Niel Shafer about there not being any duplicates in a paper money collection. Someone needs to explain to my wife why I consider all three thousand plus of a particular Vietnamese note as singles for my research. This 5
Dong note was the most common issued in the South (Nam Bo) during the French Indochina War, and my current spreadsheet database shows there were a maximum of 100 million numbers for possible use. This would mean 500 million Dong in the poor farming communities in the "liberated" zones. No wonder there were reports of inflation in these zones, and this was only one of many notes that were issued!
I received an email from "Kevinn517@hotmail.com" and it was returned as undeliverable. Please post this letter in the next Gram so he will know to send me another email address. Thanks.
Howard (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,
Yikes! It never occurred to me that anyone actually read what I write each day. I will have to be more careful in the future.

Editor

Dear Editor,
Concerning Tom Koch's piece (MPCGram #723) on Michael Pablo and the bison, it is worth noting that there is also a town named for him, Pablo, Montana. I have a great vintage panorama photo of this town circa 1915 if anyone is interested in a scan, just send me an e-mail.

Mark Hotz

Dear Mark,
Well, in keeping with the innovativeness (craziness) of MPC collectors. We might as well all look at it. Please send a scan to Doug Bell at doug@papermoneyworld.net. [Doug, please post this and send us the link so that everyone can see it.]

Planchettes again

By Joe Boling

My genuine example of Germany 1948 DM100 (ABNC, SB658a) has at least a few planchettes with silk threads in them. This is the first time I have observed this feature. My original tickler for this column was translucent planchettes. Now I see that the ones that appear translucent are actually (apparently) transparent, or nearly so, but with red threads in them, so that they appear faintly pinkish when buried but show the threads when near the surface. I don't have any of the other ABNC-printed notes of the series (SB655-57). Would someone who owns those please check the planchettes? It is not easy to see the threads, because only a planchette lying on or near the surface of the paper will reveal them. Planchettes that are buried are too far below the surface to show the threads clearly. Also, it may be that not every planchette will have the threads (or enough of them to be seen).

I went through the other German pieces that I have in that series, printed by Tudor (DM2, DM5, and DM20), and all have solid red or blue planchettes. I was able to find examples of surface-lying planchettes that had been dislodged but not knocked clear off the note, so I could carefully flip the planchettes over and see both sides (one side printed, the other not). In each case the planchettes were solid colored paper without any visible inclusions.

Now, get those UV lamps out. There are yellow planchettes in the ABNC note cited above that are invisible to the naked eye. I searched through my Chinese ABNC notes, and found the same yellow planchettes in the ubiquitous P117n, except that in a strictly UNC note, those yellow planchettes lying on the surface ARE visible to the naked eye. Back to Germany--the ABNC notes show no other UV-reactive features, but the Tudor notes have UV-reactive tints (face only) and serials (but not planchettes).

To summarize--my ABNC 1948 DM100 note has yellow planchettes visible only under UV light and reddish planchettes that are actually transparent with red threads (the blue planchettes appear to be solid). What do the rest of you have?

Some days everything seems to go wrong. I have had more than my share of those lately, but hen I get cheered by some contribution to the Gram. We have two good letters about the ANA Seminar advanced class that we will use tomorrow to finalize the discussion on that topic. If you have something to say on that, please get it in soon!

Dear Editor,

I have letters from the Washington Zoo and the Smithsonian that clearly state the bison was named "Pablo."

The designer of the $10 US note with Pablo is Ostrander Smith (1873-1933). He was engaged at the BEP from 1887-1902. (The Engraver's Line, p. 294)

Marcus Baldwin, the engraver of Pablo and Charles R. Knight, the artist, used both the Hornaday specimen in the Smithsonian and the live Pablo who was at the zoo. However, from what I found, the live animal was the true inspiration.

Unless you read the article and related ones, you would not know that the original $10 note had the battleship Massachusetts as the central vignette.

Summer Seminar

By Schwan with help from Talso, Klinger, and Kroll

A few days ago (Gram 725) I brought up the subject of the ANA summer seminar and the proposed advanced class. I received several responses which will be used here instead of the mail section.

First from Warner Talso. "I read with interest your article on the Advance Class at the Summer Seminar. Two immediate thoughts. One, would it be first or second week? There are some logistical differences. Second, let's firm up the plan to present a short class at the Colorado Coin Show and GET IT INCLUDED IN THE ADVERTISING. Pardon me for shouting, but I feel strongly, if we are going to make the effort to support the coin show, the least they could do is publicize it."

It is possible that the military seminar will be moved to the second week. Two participants have made a special request to that effect. Actually, there are quite a few factors involved in such a simple decision. I am not sure, but Gail will be making the final decision on this soon.

Warner's point about promoting events is very appropriate. Far too often in numismatics we do the hard part of creating something, but do not do the small things (like getting the word OUT) well. Just the combination of things that we have revolving around the military seminar make it somewhat complex.

Of course coordination is easier said than done. There is no super power responsible for all of the activities with the ability and power to effect or coordinate all desired activities. Of course such problems are common with volunteer organizations. In our case we have organizations that are not even organizations! Nonetheless, we must try harder to bring I all together.

A small imbedded point to Warner's letter is that the weekend coin show of the Colorado Springs Coin Club is an additional resource. For example, a presentation there could qualify as one of the presentations required of the graduate students. Essentially, that is what Warner did last year. Heck, in some ways Warner was the first graduate student having attended both seminars.

David Klinger wrote: "I have been going to the ANA summer seminars for the last 11 years, and I think you have a very good idea in your proposal for a "graduate" version of the Military Numismatics course. I think the version you and Warner came up with (re: GRAM 725) is just right, as you have stated it. Gail Baker will give you all the help necessary to make it work. And, add me to the list of helpers." I think that most if not all of you know that if you volunteer, that I will take advantage of the resource. Dave do you have any special things in mind. Possibly you could spend some time with the graduate students (I like the ring of that) on advanced internet research! I would like to attend that one.

Harold Kroll wrote that he supports the idea whole heartedly. He proves that in the most powerful way. Harold says that he will attend as a graduate student. He also points out that the military scholarships should be awarded much earlier so that people can make work and travel plans. This last point reinforces Warner's point of the need for coordination.

Well, can we consider this a consensus?

Many of you have noticed, but few mentioned (thank you) that among the many things that I mess up is the date on the Gram. You would think that it is an easy thing to know the date. Well, I am up to my ankles in calendars that I have had stuck to the computer monitor, printer, telephone, window (transparent glass NOT Microsoft product), pencil sharpener, and assorted other places. I just cannot keep on handy.

However, there is not way that I can not get today right (even though I also listed yesterday as Sep 11, gad). This being one of those days burned into memory forever, it should allow me to use it as a mark to at least get the next few days right.

Dear Gram,

Hey what type of UV light is needed to see these features? I have a UV lamp for stamps to show Phosphor tagged stamps and it doesn't appear to do anything with MPC or AMC. Larry Gibbs Esteemed Editor, This title reminds me of dipping freshly killed chickens in boiling water to loosen the feathers before plucking them as a kid.

Cheers,
Colin

Hello Gramsters!

Not doing all the research quite yet. I can tell you that the U.S. "Buffalo Nickel" 1913-38 model for the "Buffalo Nickel" is named "Black Diamond" (his head is mounted on a wall, with actual pictures). The interesting story and pictures can be founds on page 23. The Complete Guide to Buffalo Nickel, by David Lange (2000 ed.). This Buffalo , I thought was the same one??? Stamp - coin - and MPC??? Can any one to enlighten us further?? Otherwise I will dig into it.

Guy Araby!

Dear Guy,

I am shocked, but I am not sure what shocks me more: 1) that anyone could possibly write an entire numismatic book on as narrow and obscure subject as buffalo nickels, 2) that an MPC guy would have such a book, or 3) that having such a book that he would admit to it. Ah, now I get it. The book was just in case you need it for MPC research. MPC is everywhere!

ANA Summer Seminar Military Courses

By Gail Baker, ANA Director of Education

The Military Numismatics class held for the last two years at the ANA Summer Seminar has been one of our most successful classes thanks to the enthusiasm and innovative teaching methods of the instructors, Joe Boling and Fred Schwan. Students learn through a variety of student-center activities including reenactments of military pay with "Fest" money, money conversion, supply sales, etc. It was so much fun that I made myself a nuisance visiting the class so I could keep up on the happenings and make sure I got my souvenirs (and hugs). Fred and Joe are real gems and have made themselves an indispensable part of Seminar. I'm pleased to consider them valuable teachers -- but more importantly, my friends.

Some of the comments from the students in this year's class include: "Not only did I learn a lot, I had a lot of fun." "The depth and range of their knowledge" (what I liked best about the instructors) "I enjoyed both the presentation of the very unusual material and the manner in which both instructors presented that material" "I learned a lot. Great stories from the instructors." "I learned much more than I expected about military numismatics. Also, the material displayed was amazing. Many one of a kind items." "The instructors were incredibly knowledgeable about the subject matter. Easy to understand what was explained. Plenty of presentation material. Open to questioning." "The enthusiasm of the instructors was infectious and got everyone excited and keen on the adventures of collecting. The instructors were more than willing to share information that is otherwise unavailable. Extremely clever teaching methods." "This is one of the best classes I have ever taken and I am not at all surprised by the rave reviews from the prior seminars." (This person has attended Seminar every year for the past 9 years!)

For the 2003 Seminar class we have decided to expand the offerings to include a "graduate seminar" style advanced class on Military Numismatics which will run concurrently with the basic class. The classes will be held in adjacent rooms with the basic room large enough for the students to come together for certain sessions and activities. Joe and Fred will teach the basic class and guide the advanced students through their individual projects. Guest instructors and students will be encouraged to share their areas of expertise with the classes.

The tentative course catalog for 2003 is partially on the ANA web site (www.money.org) and is updated as information becomes available. A deposit of $100 will hold your spot in either of the two Military Numismatics classes.

My thanks to Joe, Fred and all of the great students that have taken the Military Numismatics class for making an indelible impression on me -- and on Seminar. Next summer, I want to meet all of you reading this issue of the Gram!

Editorial

Ski has a nice article in preparation for Thurski, but he has it with him in an automobile somewhere in Pennsylvania enroute to Strasburg. We planned to capture that column for publication late tonight after I arrived there. When Colorado Springs VIP Gail Baker's article above came in, it was obvious that there was a better solution. We are very pleased to present this item by our seminar leader even if it reads a bit much like an advertisement for Joe and me. However, we can count on Howard and PK to keep any egos in check.

Expect Ski's column tomorrow and probably a preliminary report on Strasburg.

You guys and gals are the greatest. I mentioned a few weeks ago how well submissions were coming in and that was true. The in box was getting a little empty and I was starting to worry, especially because I was going on the road and need more help in that circumstance. Anyway, lots of good stuff has started coming in again. That is wonderful for the obvious reason that it will help fill Gram, but I like it even more for another reason. I hate whining about not receiving material. I much prefer doling out praise and thereby reinforcing the appropriate behavior.

The Gram is by of and for you. Only your submissions keep it going. Thank you so much for you continued support of the Gram and we look forward (especially in the next two weeks) to your article, letter, question, complaint.

Fred

Dear Editor,

Just a short note of interest...a lady was seeking info. on a batch of foreign notes she had acquired from her father. She was referenced to me by an associate. The notes were mainly WWII era notes....all fairly common. However....she also had several ORIGINAL photos that her dad shot during the war (Europe). Apparently, he was with an Engineering Btn. and built several temporary bridges (pontoon?) use to span rivers where the normal bridges had been destroyed. Several pictures were interesting (bridges and a crashed German Stuka)...however....there was one that I thought was special. It showed several officers examining a "temp." bridge and lo and behold one officer was easily identified. Yep....Old Blood n' Guts himself....Gen. Patton!! She recogized who was in the picture and she is planning on making copies to sell.....She also has "other" photos she promised to let me look at.....Is this of interest to anyone?

PK6

Dear Editor,

Please tell Philip and Larry that I have both SB332h and v in my collection. I also have SB346 (with the "stops" in the circular scroll around the winged NAAFI badge) that has a skewed back. If the front, w/badge, is vertical and the token is rotated around the vertical axis the written subscription on the back has an orientation from 09.00 (top) to 03.00 (bottom).

I have some spare tokens SB332v/4h/4v/7-w/stops, and I am looking for SB346 without the "stops". Also the tea token and Sudan (I can dream).

Contact me at "amcpapermoneyman@aol.com".

Regards, Andrew M. Clark.

Dear (?) Editor,

PK6 has just enlightened me with his short letter to the editor that Fred Schwan is the editor of this fine newsletter. And I thought I was writing to a real editor! I have to come up with another adjective for the editor, and we need to lower the subscription rate so he does not make so much money from working a couple of minutes a day. What a racket! This is my last morning (9/11) in ole Saigon for this trip and am leaving tonight for Narita, where I will stay one day and night and try to find one or more coin and stamp stores in that city. Then I fly out on Friday the 13th for the U.S. Am I a glutton for risk? Yes, I am crazy too. There have been some disappointments here in finding only a few items on my want list, but I have found quite a bit for other folks. I am also bringing that MPC Collection back for a Gramster, so it was not be a bad trip after all. I also wrote and completed three Southeast Asia columns for World Coin News, and each includes some military, so be looking for them in the near future. I will also be writing many small articles and items for other pubs with what I found. That is all for now. I have to get back to my house before the daily morning monsoon soaks me again. I wish I had some clothes that quickly dried like the old jungle fatigues!

481 $5 Fourth Printing Authenticated

by Larry Smulczenski

Dick Freyser attended the Strasburg paper money show. One purpose was to have the MPC Series 481 $5 apparently from the fourth printing authenticated.

Fred and I spent a long time examining the piece. We told Dick that we were trying our best to prove that it is not a fourth printing. We concluded that it is a genuine note. It is from position 34 WITH serifs. The serial number does compute when compared to the position number. UV examination proved correct.

Our conclusion is that it is indeed from the fourth printing. Documents indicate that it should not exist. What gives? Hopefully we will find the answer at the BEP next week.

We still have not typed up Ski's column from Thur! I had a chance to get this gram out so took it. In spite of an overall slow day here at Strasburg, the MPC guys were busy! We will have more on that as the show progresses.

Mail Call

=====

Dear Editor,

BACK IN THE GOOD OLE USA

I made it back alive to the good ole USA, and it is the good ole USA!

All thanks to the many citizens of this country who handled many of the collectibles we buy/sell, research and/or write about.

When I checked in at Tan Son Nhat International Airport Wednesday evening (their time), they took one look at the 4x1x2 foot box holding the MPC Series 692 oil paintings and said I could not check it on my ticket. I already had two large bags to check and two legally-sized carry-ons. So I said I will pay. The grim look on the clerk's face changed to a smile and my American Express card was quickly processed for a US$117.00 charge. U.S. dollars work everywhere! I arrived at Narita International Airport and went through a very slow Japanese immigrations and down to the baggage area. My stuff never showed up so I walked over the the baggage counter. The lady took my receipts and returned with my stuff. I went to a customs and the officer asks me why I was in Japan. I replied with something about having to stay overnight to connect with my flight. He hands me back my ticket and says my flight leaves in about four hours. I looked at the tickets and it was true. Somewhere during our booking process, my wife said I had a layover and I had a hotel reservation in Narita to prove it. My wife did have a layover when she return a couple of weeks ago, but I did not. The moral of this part of the story is ALWAYS read your own tickets and do not believe what anyone(to include your mate) says about them with confirming it yourself. I could not back peddle, so I was soon in the Arrivals area and started a two-hour process of getting back into the Departures area.

Narita was not built to Western standards, to say the least. There is nothing clear about where you are supposed to go, so everyone is milling around until they finally spot their airline and check-in counter area.

I found the long security check-in line to the ANA First/Business Class International counter and very few of the Japanese in front of me were prepared for it. They had everything wrapped in tape and/or string, and security was opening almost everything. My stuff was wrapped in newspapers with rubber bands and the check was swift when the man saw what I had done for him.

The right side of the area was for First Class passengers and there was no one being processed. My left side was for Business Class and there were 25 people in line! I asked one of the First Class "Guides" if she could take some of the many people in front of me to her side and process them at the empty counters. "Oh no sir, they must stand in their line." Typical Japanese logic.

They also took my baggage cart away from me after going through security so I had to tug, push and pull my bags through the line and to the counter. The answer to my question about keeping my cart was "Oh no sir, our procedure prohibits carts in the passenger check-in areas." Typical Japanese logic.

Once at the counter, I was quickly checked in and directed to immigrations security with 500 people in line, and I am not kidding!

There was another security check of our carry-on that was just thoroughly done about 50 feet away at from check-in security. Typical Japanese logic.

Then all 500 of us were shoved into a small room with four immigrations officers and it took us over an hour to get through it.

All of us were soaked with sweat and feeling really happy about the ivory tower executives who designed Narita's processing.

I went up to the ANA Business Class Lounge and enjoyed some juice and a snack before looking for the Internet connection. When I found it, I asked the lady for the local MSN telephone number so I could dial it for my connection. She said they did not have any Internet telephone numbers. I asked if she had a Narita/Tokyo telephone book where she could look up MSN for me. Her response was that no local telephone books were allowed in the lounge for the free local calling privilege. Typical Japanese logic.

I left the lounge and was walking in the duty-free area when I spotted a sign with Yahoo on it. I followed the arrow and found a room full of laptops and a small counter with two young Japanese at it. I asked them how much I had to pay for using their computers and the connection, and they said with an American accented English, "Sir, this is a free service by Yahoo." Untypical Japanese logic.

I cancelled my hotel reservation with one email, chewed out my wife for telling me I had to stay overnight here with a second email, and answered the other emails in my back home in-box. I was starting to feel closer to home.

When I arrived at Dulles International Airport in Northern Virginia Thursday morning (their time), we made a long walk to Immigrations, but there were many officers and signs showing they were looking for more Immigrations and Customs people to hire. Many of the officers had short grey hair, so if any of you need a job, look into it. Then into the baggage area and my stuff was quickly there. I placed the 4x1x2 box of MPC painting on top of everything and went into a short line of passengers having their customs card being reviewed.

When I arrived, the old short grey-haired Customs officer asked me what was in the box. I told him that he was not going to believe it contained five paintings of military payment certificates (MPC). His reply came with a large smile and the response "The last time I used scrip was in Japan." I pulled one of my cards out my pocket and gave it to him and said "Please contact me if you have any of it and/or want to correspond with others about your scrip days." John was in Japan when he used "scrip" and we started talking. The passengers were starting to pile up behind me and mumbling. Another Customs officers came up to him and asked "John, should I open another line?" and John said "yes." We talked for another couple of minutes and he told me "Welcome back" and said forget my duty. Typical American veteran's logic!

It is good to be back home in the good ole USA.
Please give me a few days to unpack before you start complaining about me not mailing things to you. I am thinking about driving all of the paintings to Port Clinton for distribution by your editor in mid-October, because I will not be in-country for the MPC Fest, but back in Southeast Asia. Or will one of you guys come to me and take them away.
Howard A. Daniel III

Scholarship Offensive Starts

by Marcus Turner

The drive to fund scholarships for the 2003 American Numismatic Association Summer Seminar is moving into high gear. The news of the second/graduate course is an important boost to the program. We should be able to use this to make the 2003-2003 scholarship drive the best ever.

Basically without any official effort, the fund has received donations from the following individuals.

2003 Scholarship Donors

Ed Hoffman
RA Medina
Dick Freyser
Larry Smulczewski
David Seelye
Howard Daniel
Steve Feller

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

With the cooperation of the Gram staff (grin) a notice about the scholarship fund will appear in very issue of the Gram until next year's seminar.

I had a great time at the Strasburg paper money show. At this moment, Ski and I are enroute to Washington where we hope/expect to be able to do some MPC research. Of course you will hear all about that, but for a few days it will be difficult to get the Gram out. Thank you for your indulgence.

Mail Call

=====

Dear Editor:

I'd like to believe that I have my finger on the pulse of the paper money market. Not only the actual nuances in price fluctuations--which, to many, defines "market"--but, more importantly on the peripheral activities--which, in fact, are truly central to the hobby. Consequently, I'm at least marginally aware of most clubs' activities, newsletters, awards, etc.

Nowhere else, in the realm of paper money collecting, does such an enthusiastic, in depth, scholarly, and jovial "activity" exist as the MPCGram. No wonder you reap such benefits from military numismatics!

I'll be the first to admit that much of the information in the Grams is above my head. Still, I enjoy clawing through the anecdotal observations, jabs in good jest, and downright scientific deductions which appear on my monitor daily.

The only problem I can envision: if enough (nonmilitary) collectors becomes privy to the Gram, you'll open up a whole new world to them through education. After a few get hooked, you might find even greater competition for your cherished notes! Speaking of which: the $10 series 472 (position 23; serial number C11377242C) with the huge faulty alignment error on the back, that I had at Memphis, will soon assume residence in an advanced collection. The face is more-or-less perfectly centered. While the back shift is severe enough to eliminate the parallel lines forming the design frame and leave an enormous unprinted top margin. Due to the severity of the misalignment, one would expect that a part of an adjacent note would be visible...unless this is printed from the top of the sheet. Enjoy your Gram...you're in an enviable position!

Regards,

Frederick J. Bart

Dear Fred,
Thank you very much for your nice comments. We are happy to have you as a subscriber. We look forward to more information on the error you describe. Editor

Dear Dick [Freyser],
Congratulations on such a wonderful find! I am dumbfounded at how many items have been found in the last year or two that were not supposed to exist: The 481 4th printing $5 by Dick, the 2nd printing 472 50 cent by Harold, the anomaly on the 541 quarter by Doug. These items were simply not supposed to exist, either by virtue of the manufacturing process or by contradiction of official documentation. The new discoveries keep continuing to surface. Keep up the great work!

Strasburg Show Report

By Dick Freyser

Just wanted to say I enjoyed the few hours I spent last Friday at the Strasburg Currency & Stock & Bond Show in Lancaster, PA. It was not an event I had planned on attending. But after receiving an email from Fred and Larry pointing out that it was not far from my home (about 3 hours). They asked if I could bring my 481 $5.00 note that appeared to be from a forth printing. I was eager to have them both examine my note to add to my confidence that it was indeed authentic. They both examined it for hours and could not come up with anything to indicate it was not authentic. They both, as I understand it, will pursue this further while at the BEP this week.

In the few hours I was there, there were several festers who showed up. Perhaps if Fred had known in advance we could have had a mini-fest. I know of at least 8 festers in attendance and perhaps more showed up.

All the appropriate MPC coin challenges were made and I'm happy to report, that at least while I was there, they was no one that had to purchase refreshments for any others (everyone came up with a FEST coin).

I had brought my military gasoline coupon collection with me and although I had no intention of parting with any of my coupons, both Fred and Larry each relieved me of one coupon to add to their coupon collections. I'll be receiving something in return from each of them to add to my collections. Thank you Fred and Larry (They both can be quite persuading). All in all I had a great time, even if only for a few hours, and I'm delighted that the MPC Guru(s) had basically confirmed my note to be authentic.

Thurski on Monday

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I am writing this sitting in a motel room in Williamsport, I Pennsylvania where I am spending the night and awaiting the arrival of Dave Seelye who I am bumming a from as we go to the Strasburg Paper Money Show. My wife took the car to go visit her sister in New Jersey, while I enjoy myself at the show and then spend the next week in Washington. We plan to meet up in Annapolis at friends house, the latter part of next week.

Last month I detailed my plans to review The Banknote Reporter of 25 years ago. The front page of the September 1977 issue reported the results of the 86th ANA convention held in Atlanta. On page one is a picture of gramster Elmer Smith, who won the third place award in the U.S. Paper Money category for his exhibit, "Historic Collection of U.S. Military Payment Certificates." The exhibit was described as the finest MPC collection in the world. (Didn't we just through this a couple of weeks ago?) Two award winners that were not pictured, but who captured awards were Gram columnist Joe Boling who won first place in World Paper Money category with his exhibit entitled "Building a National Currency-Japan 1868-1899." Second place went to Gram editor Fred Schwan for his exhibit entitled "Military Currency of Occupied Germany."

Fred's column 'Military Vignettes' describes a visit with Gramster-dealer Ed Hoffman at his home in Reno, Nevada. At that time Ed had just retired from the Navy in the previous year after serving 20 years. During his tour in Viet Nam Ed became interested in MPC and club tokens. He supplied many collectors with these items while in Nam and later began dealing in these items (I remember buying a number of MPC coupons from Ed many years ago—still have these items by the way [of course—editor]).

Fred relates an interesting money story about a young captain stationed in France, I don't remember this little talk so I'll relay it.

"Between 1946 and 1951 there were plenty of U.S. troops in Germany, but few in France. Soldiers going on leave to France were advised to take travelers checks or French francs, but many forgot this detail and arrived in France with only MPC.

If they arrived during the day, there was a branch of the American Express at the train station and a conversion could be made. However, if the soldier arrived at night, he/she was in a real spot as MPC were not accepted in commerce in Paris.

Well, it seems that when the Frankfurt – Paris Express arrived at night, there was always a certain captain who would ask arriving soldiers if they had enough francs. If they did not, he was always ready to help out.

He would accept MPC and give francs in exchange at the official rate of 350 francs per dollar. The captain managed to hold his job in France for longer than usual and this went on for years.

One day he had a visit from the CID (criminal investigation division). He was read his rights and the investigators were about to charge him with a crime and possibly arrest him.

The CID agent stated that they had evidence that he was dealing in black market francs. He informed them that they were wrong and explained that he bought his francs in Luxembourg where the money market was not controlled. He then sold the francs to soldiers in France at the official rate. This resale did net a profit of about 50 francs per dollar. Try as they might, the CID could not find any army regulation or law that had been violated.

After consultation with the chief agent, the captain was told that while he had been clever and could not held for any crime, that the CID would notify the Internal Revenue Service of his activities. At this the captain broke out in a big grin and produced copies of his income returns for the past three years and pointed out the entry for miscellaneous income for "rendering service to U.S. Personnel arriving without negotiable funds in Paris." The agents were completely stumped. It is nice to see the little guy win one once in a while!

Searching for Fest Info

By Al Glaser

Two years ago, I was introduced Military Payment Certificates. I had been collecting coins, US large size notes, and fractional currency off and on during the past 25 years. My recent interest in military currencies has grown based on the knowledge and support of a number of MPC collectors and dealers that have crossed my path in the last couple of years. Back in 2001, I received an invitation to travel to the "frozen tundra of Port Clinton, Ohio" in February to attend a 3 day gathering of MPC collectors called the "Fest." On the one hand, it sounded like a great way to meet some the people face to face that I had only had email contact with. On the other hand, I thought, you have to be out of your mind! Spending 3 days in a town which probably thinks the meaning of "night life" is having a pulse while asleep, I wondered what could possibly fill all that time?

Well, I must say It was a wonderful experience. Many of the attendees, for the enjoyment of all us, offered their own time and at their own expense, created souvenirs, displays, reenactments of conversion day, we had a mini bourse, it was great fun. I have attended a few other MPC Fest events since and see many of the same people working to make it a success. I appreciate all they have done to make these events enjoyable and informative. This brings me to the reason for this letter. I am working on putting a "Less-than" comprehensive catalog of Military Fest Certificates together. Since Fest I in Feb. 2000, there have been 12 different varieties of MFC, 4 training issues, MFC Coupons, chits, etc. Within these issues are counterfeits, uniface notes, double denominations, inverted backs, replacements, voided notes, specimens...you get the idea. I am asking all gramsters that have attended any of the Fest events where you were presented MFC, to list what issue it is along with the serial number and position number of every note in your possession. If you are in possession of an error of any kind please note that on your list. It is my plan to update this list on a constant basis, so as new issues are released, numbers will need to be recorded. The catalog will have scans of all of the series, as well as a listing of all varieties within a particular series. For those of you with Fest I notes, please make note of the number of cancellations on the back of the note. I need this information as soon as possible. Please send your lists via email to thetrader.2@cox.net your input will be greatly appreciated.

Thanking everyone in advance.

=====

The schedule for our columnists is getting all out of whack. I am preparing this on Monday night before we (Ski and I) go to the BEP on Tuesday for MPC research. We are excited of course. We hope to solve the riddle of the apparent fourth printing Series 481 $5 note recently discovered and discussed here. I thought that good research and journalism (??) called for a theory BEFORE we go look for the answer.

First, let me say that Ski and I researched this rather thoroughly over the past few years. We really thought that we had it all and had it right. Of course now we are in doubt.

The theory that I have developed is that a fourth printing of $5 certificates might have been ordered after the initial order (for fourth printing notes), but before the shipping of the other denominations of the fourth printing. This would account for the documents being separated. If all of this happened, it is altogether possible that the documents are lost forever. Furthermore, if $5 notes were ordered late for the fourth printing, it is equally possible that $10 denominations were also ordered.

I hope that we can solve the riddles at the BEP, but I am far from certain.

Finally, a short note on Al's story above. Believe it or not, a book is in preparation on MPC and MPC Fest Souvenirs. Harold Kroll, David Seelye and some others have been working on it. Looks like there is another worker for that project. I hope that David and Harold will comment on this soon.

Dear Gram,

Some more ideas. The Graduate Course needs to be advertised as a participatory one. Fred has already outlined some expectations. Obviously the ANA Library is the most significant resource. However, there are other needs. To accomplish and record research I envision bringing a lap top computer. I have heard that, in ancient times, people transcribed information on to paper with something called a "pencil". Hard to image. I consider that a myth that ranks along side the Easter Bunny.

Perhaps I could even surf the net if Joe will give up some evening time on the telephone line :-) I know the ANA HQ has a scanner. Do they have computers in the library? We know the Colorado College has computer rooms.

My point is that resources are part of the package - both those available at the Seminar and what Graduate Students should consider bringing.

Further, if I am going to borrow a laptop from the Labs, why not borrow a computer projector. Do you see a role for a computer projector at the Seminar or it that going to far?

Warner

More odds and ends

By Joe Boling

Following up on my column of last week, in which I reported that the pink planchettes in the ABNC 1948 DM notes were actually translucent with pink threads, I received a report that the blue ones are too. On my note, there are no blue planchettes sitting on the surface, but the ones that are in the paper do look somewhat mottled against the light. That could be consistent with having threads like the pink ones. It appears that ABNC came up with some unusual planchettes for this issue. Anyone else have one of those notes with planchettes sitting on the surface?

This week an article from Bloomberg News appeared in the Seattle Times, headlined "Patriot Bonds' sales up since name change." It reports that sales of bonds are up 36% since the name change. Of course, the fact that they are currently paying appreciably more than CDs may have something to do with that.

Ski's got a good angle, reviewing 25-year-old BNRs. But one of the stories he cited in gram 731 is a classic that deserves to be retold--the one about the officer meeting troops on the train platform in Paris with offers to exchange MPC for francs. But what was he buying francs with in Luxembourg? As I recall, it was MPC--that is, the currency traders in Luxembourg were willing to take MPC and still offer a better-than-French market rate on francs. I wonder why he was not charged with illegal disposition of MPC? Was he buying francs at a US embassy or consulate? Anyplace else would seem to be illegal.

I noted the exchange rate--350 francs to the dollar. Somebody sure liked that range--it was 350 or 360 Moroccan francs to the dollar, and 360 yen to the dollar. Last weekend I attended an Air Force OSI Agent reunion with my mother (my dad was an OSI agent from 1947-1967, and had been CIC and OSS before that). While there, I queried others who had been in Morocco with us about the "floose run." You may recall my mentioning that odd practice in an earlier column. I have been unable to learn any more about it, so here it is for all you gramsters: if you don't know the answers, quiz your friends who were in Morocco in the '50s and let's see if we can get to the bottom of this. The drill was: the exchange rate for dollars against Moroccan francs was higher in Tangier than in French Morocco. Every month the personnel who lived off base, who had to pay rent in francs, turned in MPC to the base finance officer, who flew to Tangier to buy Moroccan francs, which were then brought back and paid out to the Air Force personnel. The questions: what was the source in Tangier? A US consulate, another US office, or a commercial bank? What kind of instrument was taken to Tangier: MPC, greenbacks, or a Treasury check?

Last item--among other items to be covered in the advanced course in military numismatics at the ANA summer seminar, I intend to spend a couple of hours going through the Japanese emissions in detail, and teaching attribution of Japanese bonds.

Editorial

Ski and I had a great time today. Unfortunately, we did not solve the riddle of the MPC Series 481/4 $5. In spite of my (our) optimism, and lots of effort, we could not find a single bit of evidence to support the existence of this printing. Of course, we have seen the best evidence of all--an example in a collection. We still have a few ideas of way to solve the puzzle, but it may take some time.

Wednesday presents some opportunity for more research, but not directly related to Series 481. On the other hand, it is altogether likely that the solution will come from an unexpected source at an unanticipated time.

Dear Ed.

I note the strong recommendation in MPCgram 732 for the counterfeits and propaganda of war page, which Roland Rollins originally advised gramsters about in gram 726. However, when I try to access the link http://currency\_den.tripod.com/War\_Counterfeits/war.html all I get is an "Invalid URL" message with the suggestion some aspect of the URL is incorrect, and then listing a number of possible problems with the link. Does anyone else have a similar problem or, even better, an alternate access route to the web page? Gramme A.

My Trip to Carson City

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

On Friday, 6 Sep, I took the day off and headed up to Carson City, Nevada, for the annual coin show. Along the scenic route that nestles up against the eastern edge of the Sierras, I stopped at the Manzanar Relocation Center National Monument, just north of Lone Pine, California.

The birth of Manzanar began with President Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 9066 in 1942, sending anyone with one-sixteenth Japanese ancestry to an interment camp. Manzanar housed individuals from the Southern and Central California area. Housing over 10,000 people at its peak, the camp stayed open until 1945. At that time, the government released the evacuees, and disassembled all the buildings. In the 1960s, the National Park Service (NPS) took over the area.

Arriving at 0900, I took advantage of the walking tour put on by the NPS. Getting out of my car, I met up with four other people and Ranger Kim Linse at the sentry posts marking the entrance. Manzanar is the best preserved of the ten relocation centers, meaning a person can still see some of the cinder blocks used as foundations for the barracks. Additionally, the high school auditorium remains, as the local county bought it in 1945 for a road maintenance storage facility. The NPS recently bought back the building, and is currently restoring it back to the 1942 configuration. Unfortunately, this involves substantial asbestos removal. According to Ranger Linse, it actually would be cheaper to tear down the structure and build it from scratch, but that violates NPS policy of preservation.

For the tour, the group walked through one of the generic housing blocks. Each block had 14 living structures, eight on the left side, and six on the right. In turn, each structure had 4 rooms, each housing 8 people, for a total of around 450 evacuees per block. Also, the right side had the mess hall for the block, taking up the final two spaces. In some of the blocks, water ponds laid intact next to the mess halls. These ponds represented some of the improvements the Japanese Americans built to turn this Spartan camp into a home, as the camp originally consisted of only the barracks and dirt; no grass, shrubbery, or trees. Lastly, in the center of the block, the men's and women's latrines stood along with a laundry facility; now just flat cement foundations.

At one point in the tour, Ranger Linse commented about the various jobs in the Center, and the wages paid to the workers. I asked where they spent the money as the map she had only seem to consist of living quarters, schools, a hospital, and some warehouses, but no exchange or commissary. She replied that the Center had a general store and canteen where the evacuees could spend their cash or scrip. At this point, my ears perked up, and I asked about the scrip. She replied that the administration had issued scrip to the workers, but she had not seen it. Not wanting to steer the conversation into an area only interesting to me, I wrote down some notes and continued on with the tour.

As 1100 rolled around, Ranger Linse left the group to greet the next group of visitors at the entrance. I continued walking around the area, looking at the remains of the water pond in front of the hospital as well as steps leading up into the one of the hospital's wings. From there, I walked past the morgue and main laundry area before heading back to the entrance. There, I talked to Ranger Linse some more about the scrip. According to her, Harlan Unrau, a historian for the NPS, mentioned the scrip in a study he wrote in the 1990s. However, Ranger Linse did not know of any examples. She also said the Eastern California Museum in Independence, California, just north of Manzanar and along my route to Carson City, probably had a copy of Mr. Unrau's report. So, after getting her contact information, I drove up to the museum.

The museum, on the west side of the small town, represented three different portions of Owens Valley: its geological background, the Native American heritage, and the Manzanar Relocation Center. After entering the museum, I walked through the current exhibit; a set of photographs taken at Manzanar showing the daily life of the people that resided there. I then talked to one of the curators about Mr. Unrau's report. She took me to the library, and quickly located a copy for me. Using the table of contents, the study did not have an index, I skimmed through various sections with no luck. But then, I found a section on the enterprise system managed at Manzanar, which included the following sentence:

"In addition, no wages were paid to any of the evacuee workers until the first payroll allowance arrived on June 19 in the form of printed script (sic) to be used or cashed at the canteen / store."

After finding this confirmation of scrip used at Manzanar, I finished my drive up to Carson City. On Saturday, 7 Sep, I went to the coin show held at the Nevada State Museum, which is housed in the old Carson City Mint. Upon arriving at the show, I did a quick walk past the 30 or so dealers' tables, scanning their cases for MPC. I finally stopped at one table where two dealers had mostly paper money. Looking down, I saw a couple of stacks of MPC and asked to look at them. As the dealer pulled them out of his case, I noticed his nametag, Ed Hoffman. Having heard the name for years, I finally had the honor to meet the man. After going through the various stacks, I went away buying a high number piece, a lot of AMC Yen, and a Choice Unc Series 481 $1, 1st printing, for my MPC set. After spending most of my budget, I walked through the show again, and bought some round metallic objects with a buffalo on them for my children's nickel set. I then got into my car and headed south towards home.

As I drove down the road, I realized that I didn't check the source for Mr. Unrau's information. So, after a couple hours of driving, I stopped again at the Eastern California Museum. Going back to the report, I checked the footnote for the section, and found it came from the final report for Manzanar. Looking through the library, I couldn't find a copy, but did find a file cabinet drawer labeled Manzanar. Going through the drawer, I finally found a file containing portions of the final report. In it, I found the following section dealing with early days in the camp and worker wages:

"The lack-of-pay rumor started first as a whisper but later grew to a rumble, and rightly disturbed the new administration. As no immediate solution seemed possible on pay checks, the Project Director on his own responsibility made an agreement with the Canteen to honor script (sic) to the extent of five dollars per person, the script (sic) to be redeemed later when these persons received their first pay checks. With this agreement, the management immediately had five-dollar script (sic) coupons printed in the local printing establishment and "paid" all workers the five dollars on account. This relieved the tension, got some money in circulation, and for a time put the new management back in the confidence of the people."

With this, I not only knew that the Center used scrip but also that it came in $5 denominations. I'm now working on some leads to find an example of Manzanar scrip. Also, I have since found out that other Relocation Centers used scrip as well. As I discover more information, I'll send a report into the Gram.

Here is how I started my editorial for Wed, "Ski and I had a great time today." Well, the same applies for Wednesday. We had another great day. We did learn some things, but we did not figure out the answer on the MPC Series 481 $5 fourth printing.

Ski has written his Thurski column and I have it here, but once again it will be postponed until tomorrow.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Trip Report--Strasburg/Washington

by Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

The last week has passed very quickly. Attending the Strasburg Paper Show was again a great joy even if the attendance was less than what was hoped for, but it was good to see many Gramsters and get to exchange stories with Festers Leo May, Rod and Wes Hardy, Dick Frayser, David Seelye, and possibly someone whom I have forgotten. There were no really spectacular finds at the show (that I know of) although we came across two different bond certificates issued by the state of New York to procure funds for World War II Veterans' bonuses. These documents are similar to the Michigan certificates pictured in World War II Remembered. This is an area of great potential research for someone. One of the highlights of the show was the opportunity to see the recently discovered 4th printing $5 Series 481 note. We examined and studied this prize for a long time and could not find any reason to believe it to be anything but genuine. We vowed to review archive records in Washington to find out the origin of this perplexing note.

Unfortunately as Fred reported, our searches proved fruitless. Everything we reviewed substantiated the earlier reports that there were no $5 (or $10) certificates printed during the 4th printing of Series 481. No mention of a 5th printing or a possible add-on to the 4th printing order. Where has the note come from? I'll be darned if I know. It is one of the mysteries of MPC that we just cannot answer. We will have to keep it in the unsolved pile and hope that someday the data will surface that will give use some answers.

A major find that we did make while researching the above question, is that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing produced the gasoline coupons used by NATO forces in Italy, at least during the middle 1970s. You can find an example of one of these coupons on page 175 of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. These coupons were authorized under the status of forces agreements between the United States and other NATO countries. This agreement released the US forces stationed in the respective countries from paying the local taxes on a limited quantity of petroleum products. Hence the issue of these coupons, which are purchased on base but used on the economy. Additional amounts of gasoline or oil needed had to be purchased at the local price (including the tax).

The coupons printed in 5, 10, and 20 liter quantities were bound in 50, 100, and 200 liter booklets. The coupons were issued in series P for personal use and series G for official (government) use. I was amazed at the number of varieties that were printed to include three grades of gasoline, three grades of oil, two grades of kerosene, and even coupons for motor scooters.

To me the amazing part of this is that the Bureau would undertake such a small, yet complex job such as this. To match all these different coupons (i.e. grades of gasoline, and quantities with booklet covers had to be a very labor intensive process. Top that off with the fact that in one case the total produced was only 450 booklets! This could be why the Bureau only produced this job for a few years and the coupons from the other countries like Germany, Netherlands, and the United Kingdom were produced locally on the civilian market.

Another Bureau product that I was not aware of was the revenue stamps for the Philippines. Some of these were used on the Cagayan emergency issues. We just happened to notice these because a BEP worker was entering sheets of these revenues into a computer listing. We had to sidetrack our investigation for a little while to look at these.

So although we did not answer the question we went to solve, the day was still very profitable and as usual we learned a number of things.

Editorial

I would like to comment a little bit on the topic of gasoline coupons for US forces in Europe. In short, I think that they are neat. I think that they belong in an MPC collection because they were part of the currency control system that started in 1945. One of the little noticed aspect of the coupons is that they were good in trade. That is, the soldier actually paid for the product with the coupon. It was NOT a ration item that also required a separate payment.

Another thing that attract me to them is that they (the coupons) include security measures. Now we know that some of the Italian coupons were printed by the BEP! Larry saved me a little tidbit of information to relay here. The BEP coupons have the BEP imprint!

All of this is interesting stuff and an area of emerging research. Someone could have a lot of fun researching this area.

Finally, I must point out that some disagree with my enthusiasm over these items. Marv Mericle in particular has challenged me on this matter and we have discussed it many times. I would love to hear your opinion or even have Marv state his position here.

Dear Gram,

Checks for the scholarship fund should be made payable to the "Military Numismatists Scholarship."

Any thoughts about what to do with the new advanced course? Should we offer a scholarship for that class at all? Should we set a goal as 3 basic scholarships to 1 advanced? Obviously this will be driven by the applicant pool, but we should do something to make our intentions known to everyone.

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

BAFSV "update"

by A Clark

TFA van Elmpt's book on BAFSVs (1994) makes one reference to the 2nd Series £1 BAFSV (S/B 427b, PM22b). On page 71 he says that the £1 voucher was NOT printed on watermarked paper. The latest edition of "Pick", volume 2 recognizes the existence of the voucher, but places no value on any of the grades.

The voucher does exist, but how many were printed and what is the serial band within which the printing occurred? Before I address this issue I have some background information.

In 1991 the MoD auctioned the entire remaining stock of BAFSVs as one lot of more than 17 million vouchers secured in 352 boxes; a total weight of 14 tons. The boxes were secured to the standard one would expect of bank notes. The lot was purchased by a consortium of dealers, one of whom decided that here was an opportunity to put together a set of vouchers with suited (common) serial numbers from the first 1,000 and last 1,000 of notes in each cypher run. 352 boxes, a few broken tools and a lot of patience later they were rewarded with a 1,000 groups of 12 vouchers with serial number 000*** and 11 vouchers with serial number 999***. These groups of 23 vouchers were initially priced with a very high premium, and some were actually sold. More recently they remainder have come on the market at a much more reasonable price and group 707 now resides in my collection.

The 2nd Series £1 BAFSV has ten cyphers running from AA/1 to AA/10. AA/10 000707 (S/B 427a, PM22a) is in my group. AA/10 999707 is NOT in my group. Either the dealer was not as determined as he thought he was or the voucher was not in the lot when sold. The MoD appear to have issued the vouchers sequentially so a reasonable assumption is that the print run for the 2nd Series £1 BAFSV stopped before AA/10 999000.

I have seen AA/10 146890 and it is printed on paper containing a security thread.

I have AA/10 780199 and AA/10 872569, both printed on watermarked paper (S/B 427b, PM22b).

All AA/10 vouchers that I have seen, and I have seen more than those listed here, have graded Unc.

Has any MPCGram reader seen the thread version with a serial number higher than 146890? Has any MPCGram reader seen watermark version with a serial number below 780199 or above 872569? If so, what are the numbers?

The grapevine informs me that TFA van Elmpt is preparing a second edition of his book so he may already have these answers; but then again he may not.

What value should a collector place on this voucher?

I know of only two UK dealers who have included them in their lists and the price swung from too cheap (in my opinion) to "wow, I'm rich."

I suggest that many of these vouchers escaped into the trade/collector market before their existence was detected. Next time you see AA/10 take a close look. If it is on watermarked paper and priced as threaded version contain your excitement until after you have bought (received, and examined) it.

I'll collate responses and update MPCGram readers as information comes in. Information to amcpapermoneyman@aol.com

GENERKE NUMISMATIC AUCTIONS UPDATE

Martin Gengerke writes: "A new print edition of my

"American

Numismatic Auctions" is a bit too time consuming for me at this point. However, I'll have available within two weeks a CD with all my current data. It will contain three listings:

Over 15,000 Auction Catalogues (by firm)
Over 7,000 Consignors (alphabetical)
Over 1,800 Auction Firms

Each CD will have all three listings in three IBM-compatible formats:

A database (readable by dBase, FoxPro, Paradox, etc.)
A spreadsheet (readable by Excel, 1-2-3, etc.)
A text file (readable by most any word processor)
These will be DATA ONLY - no program or search engine, etc.

The price will be U.S. $49 postpaid within the U.S. (postage additional to foreign addresses)

Since I'm missing many catalogues from the past few years, as a special offer, any buyer who contributes information on any missing catalogues dated prior to 9/1/02 will receive a FREE update in six months. Orders should go to:

Martin Gengerke
Bowling Green Station
P.O. Box 1410
New York, NY 10274-1410

I can be contacted at (718) 458-2016 (eves.) or at gengerke@aol.com."

Editorial

I hope that the rumor mill quoted above is correct about Theo van Elmpt preparing a second edition of his BAFSV book. Theo is a Gramster (although we have not heard from him in awhile). Hopefully, Theo will solicit suggestions from Gramsters and also share some of the discoveries here as he prepares any new edition. We consider such research one of the most powerful features of the Gram.

Hello Larry Gibbs and all gramsters!

In response to your UV light questions. A standard black works great!! (actually much better, produces much more light than the hand held version for stamps!) Turn off all surrounding lights! As they counteract the objective. Then turn on the black light (Lighthouse /Leuchtturm, makes a portable version for stamps and related items REF:L80!!!!, a German named product now made in China! for about $25+/-) Pull out your MPC!! Start with the XF and better notes. Series #651 all denominations are SENSITIVE to UV light!! Yes ALL! They are the most dramatic. The "other" series remain a dull lavender/white, but exhibit a wonderful way to "see" the beauty of the "hidden colors". Most of the #692 5 and 10 cent notes are sensitive too! And many of the #641 fractionals! These note (paper) look "electric/ neon white!"

All the serial numbers are RED under the light, instead of black. EXCEPTIONS!! I found that the "SECOND printing only" of series #481 STAY BLACK! AND THE SECOND PRINTINGS of #691/#701 stay Black also!! the only exceptions!! Other notes I have found have varying degrees of white paper. Both Long and Short wave light have a similar effect. But a good old Black light works best! There are many paper varieties still to be discovered. I found a series #461 $10 with full UV sensitivity!! I believe it to be rare. My research has only been conducted on several hundred CU notes. I am not sure how a circulated notes will hold up! Also the second printings of series #691/#701 are distinguished by a UV treated serial numbers (BUT STAY BLACK) and also exhibit a completely different appearance all together than the first printing, which the first printing serial numbers are RED under UV!!

This series, 691 first and second printing, have a dramatic difference altogether when compared under Black light!! very beautiful!! . There are many more sensitive papers in the 600 series! One day I will record all I have located!!

Guy Araby!

Just a Few Items

by Joe Boling

I didn't get any responses to my plea for information about the monthly MPC to Moroccan francs conversion, but I learned today that there is going to be a reunion of the Moroccan Reunion Association (the servicemen assigned there, not the kids who were in school there) in the Puget Sound region next year. I will try to attend and grill the folks there about this topic.

I recently acquired an example of the WWII OPA ration book #1. I have had many examples of books 3 and 4 over the years, mostly with at least a few of the paper "ration stamps" still bound into them (or sometimes laid in, having been detached but not used). Both of those (#3 and #4) are booklets with a stapled binding. This book #1 is completely different. It is a folded sheet of paper, with the ration stamps printed on the edges and needing to be cut away with scissors for use. Is this the standard form for book #1, or do I have some sort of supplemental book, replacement, or whatever? (Yes, I know--look it up in the Ration Token Society's massive tome on the WWII ration system. It's easier to ask you guys, and I'm very short of time this month.)

There may not be any column from me for two weeks. I depart for the London IBNS meeting next Monday at the crack of dawn, and don't return until the following Monday very late. I stay at the Victory Services Club in London, which has no accommodation for internet access (no phones in the rooms, let alone phones with modular jacks, and no phones in the common areas). (I was in a Reno hotel this summer for an Itazuke reunion--the phones were hard-wired to the walls. Management did not want guests holed up in their rooms playing with the internet--they wanted them downstairs dumping $$$ into their games. Not me.)

Sorry this submission is so spare--I need to get a nap before heading to Puyallup to take out the PNNA exhibit (installed there for seventeen days every fall).

Say it ain't so, Joe! We will double, quadruple your expense account for submissions from London! Of course, as most Gramsters must realize, increasing any Gram budget by a fact is a low risk (and low cost) venture. Fortuitously, there is a large Internet Café quite near the show venue. Not only do we hope for a report to fill the void that Joe could create on Tuesday, we want to have some reports from London. I attended the IBNS event for the past two years and expect to go back next year, but cannot make it this year. Joe, if you cannot send some reports, recruit someone there who can! Heck, please recruit some regular correspondents from that part of the world.

Dear Gram,

I have come across two notes from series 641 $5.00 & $10.00 with some graffiti on the face, it appears to be someone's initials. They are fairly legible, and seem to be LR 21 the other initials look like GJS and 21 OCT 68.

My question is, are these legit, or some sort of scam to make these common notes a little less common?

I have looked in the book, but have found nothing on these.

So what gives? Any info on these?

Thanks.

Jack Hunter

Dear Gram,

An inexpensive UV light specifically made to detect fluorescent ink on paper money is available at: www.mpja.com and only costs $3.95. Just click on "UV light" and select "Mini UV Pocket Light." It's called a "money detector." I'm sure there are many better ones - but none cheaper, that I know of. There is a minimum order of $15.00 on this site, so you may want to do what I did- order 5 and share them with friends - still less than $20.00 total. They fit in your shirt pocket, so you can take them to shows, etc.

Ski the Weatherman

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I'm finally back home after spending almost three weeks on the road. The old story about it being fun to go on a trip but nice to get back home was not necessarily true this time. Tropical Storm Hanna had visited our area while we were away and littered the yard with pine needles, pine cones, and tree limbs. The wife and I spent two days raking and bagging the debris from the yard and had just sat back to relax when we began to feel the effects of Hurricane Isidore. Izzy had crossed the Yucatan and we all thought he would wear himself out heading west over sparsely populated Mexico. Instead, he took a right turn and headed north. For the past two days we have been sitting indoors watching the rain pelt down. Isidore right now is not a powerful storm, but it is very large. It appears to be heading for Louisiana but the entire central Gulf Coast from Texas to Florida is feeling the effects--lots of rain, pounding surf, tornado warnings and power outages.

Speaking of storms, I saw lots of powerful tropical storms pass through the Philippines during my last tour of duty in the Air Force at Clark Field. This ties in nicely with a great chit book I recently received from good friend R.A. Medina of San Antonio. The booklet is from the Enlisted Men's Club at Subic Bay Naval Station. Subic Bay, of course was the navy base just across a mountain range and directly west of Clark Field.

Subic Bay itself is a body of water about eight miles long and three and a half wide protruding inland out of the South China Sea. It was one of the best deep water ports in this part of the world. Spain had actually begun building a port at Subic Bay in 1885 with the erection of buildings, sea walls, and roads. This work was in its early stages when war broke out between Spain and the U.S. The U.S. Naval Authority selected Subic Bay to be a major repair and supply facility in 1901. By 1907, Subic Bay was operating as a far east center for ship repair operations and replenishments.

The facilities were completely destroyed during World War II, but quickly rebuilt after liberation in 1944. The major workload was the decommissioning and laying up of ships for disposal along with the preparation of ships transferred to foreign governments. The advent of the Korean and Viet Nam Wars, tasked Subic with providing upkeep and maintenance of ships and supplies of food, fuel and ammunition to sustain the fleet in the Western Pacific. Subic and adjoining Olongapo City became a premier Rest and Recuperation Center in the Far East.

When Iraq invaded Kuwait in January 1991, Subic Bay played a prominent part in the Desert Shield and Desert Storm operations. It became the staging ground for one of the biggest U.S. military operations since the Viet Nam War. However on 15 June 1991, Mount Pinatubo erupted and spewed tons of volcanic ash and sand on Subic and Clark. The eruption was followed by Typhoon "Diding" whose torrential rains saturated the ash and sand, creating dangerous roof loads on buildings and many other major problems. The damage was so severe that 20,000 dependents of Subic Bay and Clark were evacuated from the area and returned to the U.S. Since the Philippine Senate had voted not to renew the leases on these bases, Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Base were closed. On November 24, 1992, the last Navy ship, the helicopter carrier USS Belleau Woods, left Subic, ending 94 years of American military presence in the Philippines.

The chit booklet that I mentioned above from the Subic Bay Enlisted Men's Club was printed in the Philippines and is quite novel, although somewhat crude. The back cover shows that it was produced by Del Rosario Press of Olongapo. The booklet is valued at $2.00, but a note on the front cover indicates that the value of the cover itself is 10 cents. I had never seen that approach used before. To cover that 10 cents there is a blank tab equal to two chits on the five cent chit strip. Unfortunately, only a couple five cent chits remain in the book. There is a small hand drawn vignette in the lower left corner of the front cover featuring a native farmer plowing a field behind a carabao (water buffalo). The back cover is similar with a young girl riding on the back of a carabao past a couple of nipa huts and near a body of water. Another item of interest is that the booklet serial number is printed on the cover in the same green ink as the rest of the cover. The same serial number appears on the chits, but is stamped on using a black ink. The chits appear to all be printed with red ink. There is a small vignette of a nipa hut in the lower left corner of the chits. The chit book can be seen at www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurski92602.htm <<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurski92602.htm>>

The Gram hit the daily double this week courtesy of Krause Publications. Both Numismatic News and Bank Note Reporter had stories about the military money seminars AND the MPC Gram! Not only was it a pleasure to see these notices, it can not help but be good for the hobby.

Now that I think about it, it was the trifecta from Iola. After reading those two nice items, we received a call from Mary R of Krause Pubs. She stated that KP/BNR would like to have a special MPC issue in 2003. You can be sure that I told her that I thought it was a good (great) idea. You will recall that we had an unofficial MPC issue last year. This will be so much better. It is tentative at the moment, but I think that it will happen. We will report more details when we have them.

Dear Gram,

Dave,

Do you have the Mini UV Pocket Light in hand, and does it work well? Some of the ones we ordered for the summer seminar in 2002 did not activate the features on currency (nor did they activate the features on stamps - they just plain weren't very good). I'll be happy to buy five if they do the job we need.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA
summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100%
of your donation goes to scholarships.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach
by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Asian Trip Report--Part I

By Mike Cummings

Just writing to let you know how this trip to Korea and Japan is going.

As far as MPC/AMC, not a whole lot to report other than there is hardly anything available. I had to stop in Japan on this trip first for two days and then go to Korea for two days. I am now back in Japan for a few days before heading home.

NOTE KOREAN MPC Coupons: In Korea not even one piece available this time. I did pick up a few just released 2003 Korean Catalogs and they have now pictured (correctly I think) all of the KMPC (which is what I call them). All notes in color except the very rare ones. No prices of course.

One of my main goals for this trip was to buy some "B" 1000 Yens (even one piece if possible) but there are none available. This note is so scarce that probably only one or two surface in a year's time. And those are usually D-D or E-E letters. Whoever got Joe's collection was very lucky indeed.

On the brighter side I did manage to sell (2) two 651 Fifty Cents notes yesterday to a dealer who bought my complete personal collection more than 20 years ago. It is still intact, and of course I am trying to buy it back RIGHT NOW!. The centerpiece of this collection is a very nice AU/UNC 541 $5.00. It also contains other high grade key notes, Series 521 $5.00 and $10.00 notes in CH UNC to name two.

By the way the above mentioned 651 Fifty-Cents Notes are the last that I have from that hoard of 111 pieces which were auctioned a couple months back by CAA. I bought several pieces from a dealer who bought them from that auction. The only one I have now is the one currently running on eBay for $325.00 BUY IT NOW) and I might add it is a bargain! No this is not a plug, just trying to make the point that soon all these notes (all 111 of them will be gone)! Will more surface? Who knows, but my guess is there are far fewer of these than the un-released Series 691 and 701 series notes which are in waiting to be put on the market in the future. And who listed these notes (651 50's) in the Green Sheet at only $100.00? Seems cheap for notes that are trading at $3-400.00. By the way the two I sold in Japan went for $320.00 each.

Also, the Japanese dealer who bought the two 651 50-Cent notes also wants an entire set of the 651 fractionals in UNC. I am paying in the $1800-2000 range if there is one out there. I notice there is a complete set including the $5/10 notes for $2500.00 right now on eBay.

Re the new 4th Edition MPC book by Schwan: Gave a couple away this trip and they were extremely happy to receive it. My hunch is some day Fred is gonna be FAMOUS all over the world!

Editorial

Boy the time sure sneaks by. We have missed more grams in the past week than any similar period in a very long time. There is no good reason for this. There certainly is plenty of news out there and lots of views too. I am busy, but no more than normal and I think that I am getting younger each day so I am uncertain of the problem except possibly my perspective! I hope that you are having a nice weekend, and I hope to do better with the publishing schedule next week.

Hello Gramsters!!! Show report Long Beach Calif.
Sept. 26-29!!!!!! Well I bought a GEM CU #591 $5 and 23 other decent notes! In Gem/Choice CU including replacements! Ran out of money!!!!!! Wasn't expecting a "Key" at all?? Wow!!!!!! What a show!!!!!! First a pick of a great collection!
West coast rules!!!!!!(this week!) ((P.S. don't ask NFS!)) ... Too bad "David" (didn't set up!!!!!!
ha ha !

Guy!

In reply to Jack Hunter:

I have come highly suspect of those 641 $5 and $10 notes with the LR 21 GJS 21OCT68 writing, and these notes are being offered as "Verified Count Notes"

These notes all seem to have come out and appear on the market within the last year or so, and there appears to be a steady supply. The fact that the date is written military style, does entice one to believe it indeed a member of the military that did the count.

These notes are claimed to be Verified Count
Notes, which I would take that to mean as a bundle/stack/group was counted, it was verified by someone, either an MBF Teller or a Finance Corps representative at the least. In which case, there is no amount written on the notes concerning the number of notes counted: 50, 100 or another number which would reflect the total number of notes counted for that batch, bundle or what have you. But in all cases just that we have seen, only: "LR 21" in black ball point, and "GJS 21OCT68" red ball point has been seen.

Another factor that makes me wonder: the date used is a conversion date: 21OCT68 was when Series 641 was withdrawn, and 661 issued. That would be correct for a conversion day, but I stop and wonder how many notes had to be turned in for conversion. Does that mean they had the time to count and verify how many hundreds of these notes immediately after conversion?
It would be ok for a small unit to convert and count on same day, but don't think they would have had such time for a large base, which is where they would bring large amounts of converted MPC to be counted.

Anything is possible, but I wonder if it all could have been done on the same day of conversion, since we have not seen any of these notes with any other day written on them.

In my opinion, I would not go and affix any substantial premium ($5-$10 over and above the value of note in offered grade) to any of these Verified Count notes, until substantial proof surfaces validating the authenticity of the writing.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA
summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100%
of your donation goes to scholarships.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach
by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.

That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

ANA WWII Exhibit to Open in December

From Larry Lee (via phone to the editor)

The American Numismatic Association Museum in Colorado Springs will have an exhibit on World War II numismatics later this year as previously announced in the Gram. The opening date has been moved from November 11 to December 7th.

Curator Lee is developing many interesting things for the exhibit. He also stated that many aspects of selection and development of the multifaceted exhibit will be opened for participation by Gramsters. In addition to the static exhibits he anticipates that the education and other departments of the ANA will be involved.

Gramsters will be invited to attend the opening and possibly other special events during the course of the exhibit.

Expect much more information on this subject in the next few weeks.

The last time that I wrote for you, I whined about being busy etc and not getting the Gram out. Then I did it again. I had a Sunday Gram ready on Saturday and felt rather smug about it. Then the computer gods struck me down for my smugness. The lead story by Phil Goldstein was gobbled up along with a few other features by my computer. I think that I have been able to recover everything except Phil's submission. Phil had trashed his copy after I acknowledged receipt so I am fully at fault, but I have one avenue left. Wish me luck.

Mail Call

Hi Gramsters,

Jeremy and I have a Long Beach report as well. Two MPC discovery replacement notes: #661 10c #00058491 and #541 $10 #00726682. Sorry for the low key report, almost no !!s at all.

Mel

Dear Mel,

Thanks (a bunch) for the replacement reports. I was going to say that the 541 $10 was an important report, but that is an understatement. Both reports were important. All reports are important!

Please send those reports in.

Editor

Dear Gram,

I wanted to tell you how much I enjoy the MPC daily newsletter that I receive thanks to you. Even tho I do not collect the items that people comment about, I still enjoy reading about a completely foreign field of numismatics.

Two things -- Is there any way you can locate Lance Campbell? Its like he fell off the face of the earth. If you know anything please let me know. It is very important to me.

Thank you in advance and best regards,

Charlton Meyer

Dear Charlton,

I am trying to locate Lance as well. His email address receives the Gram, but I am not sure that he ever reads it. [Lance, are you there? We want to communicate with you!]

Thank you for your nice comments about the Gram, but I must pick a point. The Gram is not about a completely foreign field of numismatics. We would love to publish some articles about concentration camp notes. Please send some or recruit some writers!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I just obtained an auction catalog of Herbert I. Melnick Nov 19-20, 1982. It had 79 lots of MPCs. You probably remember but I am sure that many of the other collectors do not know.

By the way what happened to my corrections of your book?

George Fitzgerald

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Serial Number 2 MPC on Ebay

A military payment certificate with serial number 2 is on sale on ebay. The sale closes today at about 4:20 pm eastern. The certificate is a Series 651 $5. Most interestingly, it is a pleasant very fine or so indicating circulation wear although this part is far from certain.

The note was put on ebay without special notice made of the 00000002 serial number indicating that the seller may not have even noticed, and almost certainly did not know the significance of the number. The seller latter added a notation about this fact probably after having been contacted by a potential buyer. No matter, word of the note spread like wildfire. As of this writing the auction has over 230 "hits."

www.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=1383795194&rd=1

Only a few "single digit" MPC are reported in collections. Three number ones are reported, one issued, one specimen and one unissued (Series 691). Additionally a number 2 and 3 replacement are reported in collections.

See additional discussion in the editorial below and watch for a full report tomorrow. Also, please send your commentary for inclusion in tomorrow's Gram.

A Useful Book

By Joe Boling

Some months ago someone wrote to the gram about a new book titled "The United States Post Office in World War II," an old-time USPS title recently republished with modern commentaries by the Collectors Club of Chicago. Lawrence Sherman edited the new printing. I already had one sitting on my floor waiting to be examined; I had seen a notice of it in Linn's Stamp News and had ordered it immediately.

The original title was "A Wartime History of the Post Office Department." Since I am due to depart for London within the hour, I am going to quote selected chapter titles so you can see what's in it. The book is 503 pages on enamel paper, same dimensions as MPC and WWII Remembered. Some of the photographic illustrations are a but fuzzy because of the second generation reproduction; the line art is fine (and many of the illustrated covers are, for practical purposes, line art).

Mobilization: military and postal. Inauguration of mail service to overseas forces. Adaptation to new tasks and conditions (includes bond sales). Broadening of emergency postal facilities and organization (includes Greenland, numbering of APOs, and special money order privilege for troops). Censorship of mails. Getting under way in the early days of the war (includes material on bond and savings stamp sales). The conservation program. "Scorched Earth" plans against invasion (destruction of postal property in event of imminent capture). War relocation centers for evacuees. "Free" mail. V-Mail service. Air raid preparations. Cooperation with the OPA. War ballots. POW mail (includes US and enemy prisoners). Beneficial postal service for our allies. Resumption of postal service to liberated countries. Postal service for the armed forces. Locator systems. Measures to minimize depredations of servicemen's mail. Mail service for American merchant marine. Distribution of overseas mail (APOs). Fleet post offices. Money order business at overseas installations. And more.

The book costs $49.50 postpaid from Collectors Club of Chicago, ATTN: Book sales, 1029 N Dearborn St, Chicago IL 60610. Worth twice the price.

Editorial

=====

Most of you know that I do not like discussions about "what is it worth?" I do not. I much prefer: why was it issued, who issued, when was it issued, why the design that it has, was it accepted by the local population, was there a black market in the issue, are replacements known? Heck I even prefer: are any low numbers known?

However, if most or all of those are covered I do not mind so much the "what is it worth?"

At the moment of this writing, the WIIW question looms large because of the pending auction of the serial number two MPC. It is more than an academic question for me because I want add it to my collection. Indeed, I fell that it BELONGS in my collection!

David Seelye called a few minutes ago with the WIIW question. We chatted and he gave an opinion. I guess I do not feel at liberty to share his opinion, and I am afraid to give mine.

At this moment the note is sitting on something like $2400 which is in itself a staggering amount and there are almost three hours to go and it is after all only the last few seconds that matter.

I considered waiting until after the close to mention the item at all, but then decided that this issue can go out before although most of you will not read it until after. In this way, I can talk about it again tomorrow thereby getting two for one.

All of this still avoids WIIW. Before David called I had placed a bid with a sniping service. The bid that I placed was for more than I think that it is worth, but I placed it anyway!

I guess there is one more point that I should make before the close. At the price that this note is going to bring, it is altogether likely that some more low numbers will become available either on ebay or elsewhere. Money very often "brings em out."

Hello gramsters!

Just picked up "Joe Bissel's new grading book and video (which isn't cheap) but worth it's weight in GOLD!! 5 stars!!!!!! This is the best information one could have to arm themselves against "processed notes etc." flat out teaches a "novice" and an "expert" something new!! Or forgotten about! My "congrats" to Joe Bissell's New Book and Video!! Also a very nice person to deal with!! Title: " The Standard Guide for Grading Paper Money 2002 ed." I'm impressed ((not pressed! ha! ha!))!!!! see HCL List!!

Dear Gram,

I'd like to try MPC Gram as mentioned in the most recent issue of Bank Note Reporter. My interest is in US MPC. Thanks.

Jeff Poyer

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

After working with you and Doug on a possible Vietnam War special ops medal I found on my recent trip to Viet Nam, it came to my small Army dog brain that it would be nice to have a "Vietnam War Remembered" reference. I know I have a lot of "stuff" stashed away that I have come across over the years, and I know several collectors of Vietnam War "stuff" too. I also believe a very respectable reference can be put together by you and many Gramsters, and it would very likely have many public sales, besides to collectors. What do you think? What do some of the Gramsters think about it?

Howard A. Daniel III (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com)

Dear Howard,

Sounds like a remarkably good idea from a small Army dog brain. Ray Bows book (now out of print) is along that concept, but it is long out of print. I also like the idea of using the „Remembered title as a trademark, but I do not understand the leap in logic from Howard to me (with Gramsters) doing the work. Howard, you are the clear guy to do this, and, yes, Gramsters would certainly help.

In fact you get serious about doing it by writing a bunch of articles for the Gram than can then be revised, updated, and compiled to make the book! Can we have it by the Fest? Well, how bout Six Fest?

Serial Number 2 MPC on Ebay

By Shipbright (seller of #2 note, forwarded by David Seelye)

I knew that it was valuable from talking to local collectors and had a feeling that it would be worth a couple of thousand or more. I purchased the bill in 1980 from my neighbor back east who brought it back from Vietnam [sic] in 1968 after his tour in the Navy. The low serial number caught my eye and I knew it would be valuable someday. From what I understand the bills are so rare because the military personnel were required to turn in all their MPCs to be converted to US dollars and consequently there were not many in circulation. There was also a story about a prostitute in Vietnam [sic] who had acquired quite a collection of these bills from her military patrons. Can you tell me more about the history of these bills?

A Bidder's Story

By Mike Cummings

I just walked into the office(a looong day)...could not believe what that note brought!

It was funny, while in Herb's office this morning I was bidding on it (I had already left an esnipe bid for $500--haha!)

Anyway, I kept bidding and Seelye jumped in, I bid, he bid, then I bid, etc., etc. When it got to $1850.00 I told Herb, hell, I better figure out what this note is really worth. Herb said, oh just buy it! So I decided that $1850 was probably all it was worth! Then before I left the airport, bammm! it went up to like $2350 with Harold the high bidder! I could not believe it.

It is funny, but before I departed I started to leave another esnipe bid for like $4500!

Anyway that seller out in San Diego (with like 58 feedback) must be extremely happy and thinking, duh, I better get into this MPC stuff some more.....

Now a question WHAT'S IT WORTH? If it was 00000001, would it be worth anymore?

Editorial

Not since the liberation of MPC Series 691 and 701 has one subject dominated the conversation--and the Gram--as much as this number two note.

It was interesting (and exciting too). It brings up research, collecting, business, and practical questions. There is still time for you to weigh in with your comments/feelings. More letters will be run tomorrow, then we will try to move on to some other things.

Dear Editor,

I read the President's column on page 314 of this latest issue of PAPER MONEY. Your course about MILITARY CURRENCY sounded interesting and I might be interested in starting such a collection. Where can I find out more about this?

Who could sell me a starter collection?

Any comments or advice. US currency is getting too expensive these days to add rare pieces.

Thanks for any thoughts or advice.

Hello Laurence,

Thank you for writing and welcome! I have put your name on the subscription list for MPCGram. If you have not started receiving this by Thur, please write again.

If I may be so bold, I suggest that there are two books that you need to start with: World War II Remembered and Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates ($65 and $50 respectively, $4 shipping (per ORDER)).

Starting from scratch, it might be a good idea to buy a starter set. I suspect that you mean of MPC as opposed to the many other possibilities, but that is why I suggest the books first. After that, check out the advertising in those books and in your daily Gram.

It is ironic that you are coming to military money out of frustration over prices in "US" paper money at a particular time when we are talking alot about a high price here in the Gram. That is NOT a normal situation!

Finally, I cannot help but note that you came our way because of the kind words written by Frank Clark in Paper Money. Frank attended the ANA summer seminar on a scholarship created by Gramsters. Your letter is proof that the system works!

Write again if I can be of assistance.

Fred

Hi,

Link did not work. Try this one:

<http://cgi6.ebay.com/aw-cgi/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewBids&item=1383795194>

Neat note!!!!
Congrats to dave nick

Dear Gram,

Woouoooooooo!!!!!!I'm I glad the note wasn't CU (what I collect) and had to "battle" for that lil' sleeper!! (the Series 651 $5 A00000002A) ebay #1383795194 $3777! And make sure to "UV CHECK the serial numbers, "ALL" for alterations! Should be all "dark" red under black light! AND this issue is unique in being "highly sensitive" to UV light (I.E. "PAPER" = HI-BRITE!) The brightest series under UV examination. Poor Fred!! $25 bucks away!!!! David the "sniper!" along with all the other fanatics!! Oh no!! What a show!!!! Makes collecting MPC so FUN!!!!!!

Guy!

Dear Gram,

I do not know if this is good news or bad news, but I know a sure fire way to increase attendance at MPC Fest!

Gramsters (and Festers/future Festers) must discontinue eating restaurant French fries (and similar items) and potato chips (and similar items). While this has always been a good idea, it is now an imperative.

Here is a link for more information.

<http://www.cnn.com/2002/HEALTH/conditions/09/29/fries.cancer.ap/index.html>

I have reviewed the literature and while there is a slight chance that future research will change this assessment, it simply is not worth the risk. Stop now!

C. Tolek, MD
Fest Surgeon

PS I am working on that plan that you asked about for physical exams, stress tests, and digital exams for the Fest.

Dear Gram,
Say, what is that 651 $5.00 Note on eBay with SN A00000002A worth?
Seeyle just ran it up to $1825.00. I was gonna buy it but I think that price is plenty, right?

Gering, NE 69341
(308)635-7900
oth@prairieweb.com

TERMS: Make checks payable to Gibbs Enterprizes.
Personal checks are OK but allow 14 days for them to clear. Add $1.00 for postage and $1.10 for insurance for orders over $15.00 up to $50.00. Add $2.20 for orders up to $100.00 and $3.20 for orders up to $200.00. Nebraska residents add appropriate state and local sales tax. All items are one of a kind and subject to prior sale.

We are always looking for MPC and AMC. Let us know what you have For sale or trade. Want lists are welcome. No obligation to buy if we have it, but we will let you know if we get it. Ten day return privilege on all items, but we would appreciate a reason for the return so we know what was wrong.
Thanks!

Have it above, sorry for the screwy format on the terms. P.S. I keep trying to get listed in your Hot Contacts list without success. Thanks, Larry

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number:
C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing
(table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5
Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D(end) D14784000D
Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,
Ending serial number is incorrect
Correct number is F1112000
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings.
That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1)
printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the
"list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.
They should be the same price.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Series 003 - Number 743      Thursday      Oct 3, 2002

An Event for Philippine Numismatists

Ray Czahor cjcpi@comcast.net

1. Plan ahead to attend the PHILIPPINE COLLECTOR'S FORUM (PCF as it will be known) next summer. This is the preliminary information we have at this time. We have already coordinated with the American Numismatic Association for their approval, and we have tentatively scheduled Friday afternoon, 1 August 2003 for a gathering of Philippine collectors. This will be during the largest ANA convention of the year which will be held in Baltimore, Maryland. (I had already planned to have a table at the convention and display some of my personal Philippine collection.) The purpose of the PCF gathering is educational and to give us a chance to get to meet one another and see and learn about new aspects of Philippine Numismatics. To that end I have already contacted and have agreement from famous numismatist and author, Neil Shafer, and collector John Grost who co-authored the "Numismatic Aspects of Leprosy", to speak at the PCF. John Wilson, ANA President will be there to welcome Philippine collectors to the PCF. I also expect we will have "show and tell" by individual collectors as well as door prizes and other surprises. Fellow Philippine Numismatist, Ken Seymore (seymorekf@hotmail.com) is helping plan and coordinate the PCF. Since we are in the early stages of planning this event, we would appreciate input from any of you. We are also looking for other speakers. Please contact Ken or myself if you have ideas. I believe it will be a great time for all!

2. Philippine Mailbid IV. I am currently receiving consignments for the upcoming sale. I expect to mail out the listing about the 2nd week of November with a close date of 1st or 2nd week of January. There will be a large number of hi-grade and scarce coins and paper money in the sale. Also, it will feature a large selection of scarce Emergency and Guerilla Currency. If you are interested in consigning, please ship your items to me by the 12th of October. I charge 15% of the selling price. If the item doesn't sell, no charge. In Mailbid III, I received over $95,000 worth of bids with over $45,000 of actual awards from 125 bidders. Good Philippine material is in high demand.

When I send out the Mailbid IV list in November, I will provide more details on the PCF. Look forward to hearing from you.

Editorial

After a few weeks of "slow news," I cannot keep up with the pace. We have many topics that have been crying for comment, but that have been replaced by "hard" news. Please do not misunderstand. That is good news!

Last week Ski's column was postponed and dominated by weather concerns. This week seems to be much worse! Hopefully, he will be able to give us a column Friday.

Meanwhile, tomorrow I will be off to Iowa for the POW conference. It looks like Larry will be hurricane casualty for that event, but two other Gramsters will be filling in. Marv Mericle and Flemming Hansen are going to join Steve Feller and me there. You can be sure that we will create a lot of news there (hopefully without getting arrested).

Fred

Dear Gram,

I have a question. Why were the Belgian bread coupons not included in WORLD WAR II REMEMBERED.

G. W Slade

Dear Sir,

Thank you very much for your question. The basic answer is that we did not cover ration items in Remembered. A comprehensive book of just US ration items might be as large as the current book. In fact, there is such a book. Someone will shout that we did cover SOME ration items and that is true. There are a few items that we thought warranted special attention. This was basically because of some traditional interest, evidence that the item might have actually circulated, or because for some other reason it had the "feel" of money. Finally, in at least one case we thought that the ration items sort of made up for our lack of information on other issues for the area! None of these are very satisfactory answers, but...

Editor

Hi Fred

I bought a note from Leo May last week in Cincinnati at the Sharonville. I and had a great time talking to him we talked about your place and I told him I stopped by in 1992 and how impressed I was with you room and he said you call it the hole, BLACK HOLE I think, and you can't even get in it any more but I don't find that, that far fetched I have a room like that my self.

Thanks

John

Dear John,

Occasionally I call it a black hole, but mostly it is Festers who call it the black hole. More specifically they call I the PCBH or Port Clinton black hole. It has been said that MPC goes in but does not come out.

We certainly hope that you will come back to PC for Fest 4. We have one other Fester from Cinci, possibly you can catch a ride!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Do you think David has another job other than just buying everything interesting! Good for him!

Jack L.

Dear Jack,

It is a good job if you can get it!

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA
summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100%
of your donation goes to scholarships.

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 744      Tuesday      Oct 8, 2002

Report from London

by Joe Boling

In the week before the IBNS London paper money fair there are two auctions and two society meetings, at all of which gram-related material may be traded or shown. I had received the Bonham's catalog by mail before leaving Seattle, and had determined that there was nothing in it for me this year (save for one Tokyo Olympic medal that I could not identify from the skimpy description in the catalog). (Phillips Son and Neale merged with Bonham's within the past year and their name disappeared.) Just as well, because I forgot the catalog at home and thought that the sale was Thursday for notes, Friday for coins and medals. When I visited Colin Narbeth's shop on Wednesday and was told that Simon was at the auction, I assumed he was looking at lots. Nope--the sale was that afternoon. When I got to Bonham's to look at the medal Thursday morning, the coin and medal sale was already underway. So I went on to Spink's, to look at lots there for their Friday sale (which I did manage to remember the right day for).

As last year, the sale was dominated by Bradbury Wilkinson proofs and internal specimens. This material is useful for learning how many of a given note were printed, because BWCo had a practice of showing the starting and ending serial numbers of a print run on the specimens that were prepared for their archives. If I had had more time, I would have gone through the catalog carefully and recorded all that at for SB-listed notes; however, I only asked to see lots that caught my attention for one reason or another, usually NOT because they had interesting data showing on them.

I attended only the morning session, and not all of that, but here are some results of interest to gramsters (prices reported are hammer prices IN STERLING; add 15% juice, plus 17.5% VAT on the juice (total 17.625%--blechh), and if I indicate "+VAT," that means that the lot was consigned by someone outside the EEC, and VAT is also due on the whole of the hammer price, making the total odds and ends due 32.625% of hammer, unless the piece is exported back outside the EEC, in which case the extra VAT is refundable, and above a certain level the VAT on the premium is also refundable--make you want to patronize auctions closer to home?).

Denmark, Allied military command, specimen 25 ore, 1,5,100 kroner: 1000 pounds (on an estimate of 250-300).

Faeroes Nov 1940 1,5 kroner, both specimens (SB 853-54), 320 pounds +VAT

I bought a lot of skit notes in the form of a Bank of England white notes. The most interesting is titled Swank of England, and inscribed "I say to the bearer that Uncle Sam will pay fifty rounds for every drink he does not receive while in Jolly Old England. James Moonshine, Chief Secretary." I took it to be a fantasy for US troops/airmen. Now, which war? In which war was alcohol banned from installations? Both? The vignette is of Britannia standing with trident and shield, over a ribbon inscribed Operae Pretium Est.
I am told that means "Ready to work." Anyone read it differently?

The other two pieces in the lot are a watch warranty made to look like a white note, and a hand-drawn 50 pound note of 1816 signed Al Forfun, endorsed on the back Wm Wade Porteous/Oct 1941. Anyone know him?
Additional endorsements are Fairy Bumkin, F. Orgery, I Laughs, and Al. Forfun. Sketched. for play. That lot cost me 240 pounds--ouch.

The other piece I bought in that sale is a Demerary and Essequibo (later British Guiana) note of 1830 denominated One Joe/22 guilders. It's for my biographical collection (cost 140 pounds).

Gramless. Yes, I have left you Gramless since Thursday. I have been on the road to the POW conference. I had every intention of filing reports from that event, but it just was not to be as I was kept busy just about every minute. You will read much more about that in the days ahead (possibly even hours ahead as I will try to put out a Gram tonight when I get home (this is being prepared in a truck stop 20 cents per min! Yikes!))

Mail Call

Dear Gram,
In response to GW Slade question regarding Belgium bread ration coupons I would like to offer the following.
Many European countries, including Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Great Britain and others, issued ration coupons for various items. So did Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and many others. This is an area of study that still is being discovered and expanded today.
If Mr. Slade has reference to the Belgium Bread Chits that a gramster is selling, I believe them to not be issued by any government, but indeed they are a chit to get a piece of bread with a meal perhaps on a ship (S.M.Vooriut). Many European restaurants would charge you by the number of rolls or slices of bread you took along with dinner and this might be a way of getting some bread for a chit.
While the main focus of the Society of Ration Token Collectors is United States rationing, there are several member, including our Editor, who collect and write articles in our quarterly publication on foreign rationing.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA
summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100%
of your donation goes to scholarships.

They should be the same price.

More BEP Information

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

During our recent visit to Washington, D.C. , Fred and I uncovered a number of interesting items as we looked for information on the series 481 $5 note that appears to be from a fourth printing. As I previously reported all documents indicate that there were only three printings of the $5 and $10 notes while the 5c, 10c, 25c, 50c and $1 notes all had a fourth printing. We had both previously inspected the subject note carefully and feel that it is a genuine note and definitely fits the criteria of the fourth printing. Right now it has to be placed among those unsolved mysteries of MPC. Someday additional information may appear that will answer this question, just as other questions have been answered in the recent past.

One of the neat pieces of information that we did find however had to do with the Special Army Currency of 1948 for Germany. Most of you are familiar with the code names of Operation Husky, Tom Cat, Wild Dog, Ordain and Toy Horse, if you have read your World War II Remembered. These were the classified code names (long since declassified) for the production of Allied Military Lire, Francs, Marks, Schillings, and Yen respectively. But how about Doorknob and Birddog? Fred claims to remember seeing them before, but I sure don't. Anyway, I saw reference to these two code names in correspondence between the Bureau and other agencies. Nowhere was there a document or a definitive statement that says, "Doorknob is the code name for....." After reading through the correspondence, it however became pretty obvious that Operation Doorknob was the codename for the four notes engraved by the American Bank Note Company (the 10, 20, 50, and 100 deutsche mark, series of 1948 notes) while Operation Birddog, was Tudor Press's contribution of the lithographed DM2 and DM5 notes as well as the DM20 and DM50 without series 1948 printed on them.

This Special Army Currency series of 1948 has a lot more questions that need to be answered just like our unanswered questions of MPC. Some of the ones I've looked for answers on but have not been satisfied with what I've come up with are:

Why are there no replacements for the notes printed by the American Bank Note Company? Did they renumber an identically serial numbered note when they needed a replacement?

Why was there both a stamped circled B and a perforated B for notes used in Berlin and why do some notes appear with both?

Why did both ABNC and Tudor both print different DM20 and DM50 valued notes for this series? Were the two Tudor notes supposed to be used in the 1949 series since they did not have Series 1948 printed on them? Was this plan abandoned since they did not have Bank Deutscher Lunder printed in the design?

Marcus Turner, Harold Kroll and I visited the Bank Deutscher Lunder in Frankfurt on our trip to the Maastricht paper money show over two years ago, hoping to find answers to questions similar to those posed above, but were amazed that our host could not provide any answers. In his defense, the curator had quit within the last couple of months, so our timing was not good. There is a lot of work that still needs to be done on this series.

Fred and I did find some printing totals for the four Tudor notes as we rummaged through the mounds of paperwork at the Bureau. This was exciting to me as I found that there was a second printing of the DM2 note, while the other three only had a single printing.

|               |                          |
|---------------|--------------------------|
| DM2 1st print | A00000001A to A73360000A |
| 2nd print     | A73360001A to A23360000B |

|                     |                          |
|---------------------|--------------------------|
| M5 one print only   | B00000001A to B28800000B |
| DM20 one print only | C00000001A to C56800000A |
| DM50 one print only | D00000001A to D42000000A |

This information is not in your WWII Remembered, so you may want to write it in. If anyone discovers any difference between that first and second printing of the DM2, I sure would like to hear about it.

Editorial

=====

Today is the last day that we will run the long list of MPC for sale by Larry Gibbs. If you have not looked at it before today, shame on you, but DO look.

We have been way behind in maximizing the usefulness of the exchange system. A large part of that fault lies here at HQ, but part of it can be shared with every seller who has not sent lists of items for sale, and every potential buyer who does not look EVERY DAY to see if there is something for sale.

Even though the quantity and frequency of new listings has not been what we would like, some very good things have been and continue to be sold in the exchange section.

On another matter. No it is not Thursday. Larry's column was late for the last two or three weeks because of travel and technical problems. We hope to make up for it this week by publishing it early! Furthermore, since it was available, publishing it today will help me out by filling up this Gram and giving me some more time to prepare the first report on the POW conference.

Dear Esteemed Editor,
Ray Czahor's "Event for Philippine Numismatists" (in Gram 743) at the Baltimore ANA in 2003 is something I am also supporting.

At the Baltimore ANA Convention, I am moderating the NI (Numismatics International) and IBNS (International Bank Note Society) meetings. Both meetings will need a speaker (who is volunteering?) and I want them to talk about Philippine coins/medals in the NI meeting and Philippine paper in the IBNS meeting, but there will also be my standard member show and tell, and I will request the members to bring a Philippine item(s) to show and tell, if they have anything in their collections.

I have also volunteered to be part of the ANA Numismatic Theater and will talk and show Philippine material at my time. Is there anyone else who can do this? At this time, I am still in the early stages of adding the NBS (Numismatic Bibliomania Society) to my ANA list.

If this happens, I will be requesting its members to bring one or more significant references to the NBS meeting at this convention. Another item I am planning is to have the Krause Publications, Inc. Standard Catalogs of World Coins (KM) and World Paper Money (Pick) pages for the Philippines displayed somewhere (and at all meetings) and everyone can bring pieces/information to show an update is needed and have the pieces photographed for the illustrations. I will also be requesting everyone I know who has Philippine material in their collection to create an exhibit for the ANA.

For many Gramsters, this can be the MPC that was used there, but also many WWII pieces and related material. And all dealers with pieces should bring everything they have and prominently display it at their tables. The Philippines is a significant numismatic area this is largely overlooked by Americans and Ray's Philippines Collectors Forum at this convention is an excellent idea.

Please do not assume everyone interested in this area knows about this event. Please contact them now and alert them to it. If you have more ideas to support this event, contact Ray (cjcpi@comcast.net) and/or me (Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com) about your ideas and volunteering to speak, exhibit, etc.

Dear Gram,

I just received the inexpensive mini UV light I mentioned in a previous letter. While they can detect fluorescent ink, as advertised, they are not very good overall. The band width is too broad, so the visible spectrum light which the bulb gives off tends to wash out the UV effectiveness. So, I withdraw my recommendation for this product. You know the old saying: "you get what you pay for."

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list
serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach
by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

London Show Report

by Marcus Turner

Today marks the end of the 2002 London show. Although the show is very small, it has no shortage of big name dealers or great finds. Judging by the high temperature on the bourse floor the show was well attended.

Only two MPC Festers were in attendance at this show: Ian Marshall and Tom Warburton. Unfortunately my time at the show was short and did not have the opportunity to visit at any length with either person. Other notable persons/gramsters in attendance were: Joel Shafer, Mel & Jeremy Steinberg, Ian Gradon, John Pettit, Jos Esijermans, Rachel Feller, Joe Boling, Lee Gordon. I am sure I have missed several.

Possibly some of the better World War II era pieces at this show were in the inventories of Australian dealer John Pettit and English dealer Ian Gradon. Out of Ian Gradon's inventory I managed to pick up three Baltic Textile Points (Punktes). I was absolutely shocked to find these notes in London. All three were Estonia pieces and two had expiration dates of 1944 (the third an expiration date of 1943). I have only ever seen one 1944 note which resides in Larry Smulczewski's collection. Obviously I am going home satisfied with my London finds.

Another nice World War II era group of notes was found in the inventory of Italian dealer Frank Spinelli. While I was intrigued with his selection, it became apparent that my knowledge of Italian notes is seriously lacking. I am probably leaving London without some nice pieces from his inventory that I probably should have bought.

MPC was quite scarce at this show, however I did manage to find a bundle of 56 Series 681 $1 notes that were in VG to F condition. After checking the group for replacements and special serial numbers, there were no great finds in that grouping. I also dug up two more $1 groups of 611 and notes but again with no great discoveries.

Joel Shafer was also in attendance. I had the privilege of looking over some of the offerings that will be included in the upcoming Lyn Knight Auction in St. Louis. Among the notable items are a wide selection of French WWII "Phoneix" notes of various areas and titles.

On the literary front, Pam West has published a new edition of the Dougelby book on English Papermoney and it made it's debut at this show. Of course I did purchase a copy and intend on looking it over on the flight home.

Overall it has been a wonderful trip. The show was good not to mention that London is a wonderful place to spend a few days. This year I talked my wife into going with me so we were able to spend more time sightseeing this time around. Hopefully I can get her to write a few lines about her experience at the show, as it was the first paper money show she has ever attended.

We leave for home tomorrow and will be in touch upon our return.

Editorial

Somehow I did not see Marcus' fine London report in the inbox. I was on the road too on this side of the Atlantic and just goofed it up! It is a shame that I did not get it into the Gram on Monday (or even Tuesday). Just another failing of your ol editor.

Guess I will put off the POW conference report for another day.

Mail Call

Dear Steamy, Clammy, Muscleless Editor,

Just where DO you get a UV light like the one you have?? Not the weak-butted weasel ones the esteemed gramster notes in the Gram of October 9, 2002. HELP!!!

Broiled Physician

Dear Editor,

Two things.

1. The review of THE book will likely be in the next issue of COIN WORLD.

2. My annual book review for COINage's Coin Collector's Yearbook will include a review of THE book.

3. (I know, I said 2 things, but) Still enjoy the Gram. Keep up the good work.

Hope all goes well.

Bill

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA
summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100%
of your donation goes to scholarships.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach
by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

My thoughts on "Carlson's Copies"

by Philip M. Goldstein

After reading Carlson Chambliss' response "Letter Surprises" (in the Sept 2002 Bank Note Reporter), to Marcus Turner's article, I felt compelled to respond to Carlson's letter. This letter hopefully will surprise him as well: I also feel very strongly, that his "good looking but easily distinguishable replicas" will affect the MPC market, and his reasoning behind his "response" is hogwash.

Buyer A purchases Carlson's Copies. Buyer A may already have a few readily available notes. Let's say, a 541 $5 in any grade appears on a Internet auction, mail bid list or dealers list. Buyer A most likely hesitates bidding/buying, and feels "why bid and spend money on a real note, as I already own a good looking but easily distinguishable replica. I don't really need it that bad right now." We all know what drives the market, is needs and wants (a/k/a demand). Granted, this collector is making a mistake in the long run, but not in his/her eyes at that moment. And we know WE ALL have made mistakes not buying something right away when the opportunity presented itself for dumb reasons. We're not talking an investment grade note here for an investment minded buyer/collector. Just a circ note, that is tough, and affordable, but still a note, that due to the rarity, should fetch good money just the same.

So, Buyer A ultimately does not bid. Which in effect, keeps the bidding lower. Buyer A then on future opportunities, reflects: "I lived this long without that note, I can live a longer without it." After which, if you multiply that thinking by the other people who purchase Carlson's Copies, you have compounded the problem many fold, and THAT WILL affect the MPC market. I am by no means saying everyone who purchases a set of Carlson's Copies won't bid, but those of them who feel spending $24.95 on set of replicas are taking the easy way out, and will be hesitant of spending money, and thereby more inclined to keep their wallets closed.

The closest analogy I can think of to this dilemma, is the Shelby Cobra 429. This car is rare, and used to sell for more than $100,000 for an original. But when the after market replicas appeared on the market about 12-15 years back, those of the car enthusiasts who were hot for a Shelby Cobra, purchased the replica for $30,000, which dropped the market on the originals. If you look, you can buy originals now for under $50,000. I feel the same will happen to certain MPC notes over time, because of replicas.

Now, I personally don't mind copies of a really rare note, if said note is truly unobtainable on the open market. A copy of a 1, 2 or even 3 only known example note is acceptable. But for Carlson to make copies of notes regularly available in uncirculated grades, and that are $50 or under, makes no sense, and will affect the market the same way as above only to a lesser extent. Buyer B, wants an uncirculated Series 641 .10 cent. Buyer B, never really gets around to purchasing one, because... you guessed it, he/she has a "good looking but easily distinguishable replica." The reasons may vary, but effect is the same... Less bidding and purchasing. Carlson says the copies were made for educational purposes? He's right -- we are all (the MPC market) going to get an education soon enough.

Now I have another sore point with Carlson's letter in the BNR. He says "only a few advanced collectors can afford top grade examples of the major rarities such as $5 notes of 471 and 541..."

Uncirculated rarities make the advanced collector? I'm sorry, I must not be an advanced collector, because I never owned a unc 541 $5 or 661 $10 and probably never will, and not because of money. I own only such rare items as a Series 641 .10 Progressive Proof Set, a Series 641 Specimen Set, a Specimen Book of both AMC Italy notes and AMC Germany Mark notes, among a few other neat & desirable items. But I guess I'm not an advanced collector. I guess Doug Bell is not one either. He has only undertaken (in my opinion) the most difficult task known to date, and of readily known notes: assembling a complete Position Number Set, of all 13 issued series. When Doug is finishes, I'm sure he will have more invested in his Position Number Set, than what a Series 541 $5 AND a Series 661 $10 are both worth in unc. But I guess he is not an advanced collector. Nor is June Nusbaum - she owns many replacements, some less than unc notes. Her name is at the top of every list when it comes to replacement collecting, but I guess she isn't an advanced collector, as Carlson sees it.

So what makes an advanced collector? Money spent? Not in my book. It's the person who finds new and unusual ways to collect a subject, which are off the beaten path. Finds new and unusual ways to locate and purchase these items. Like me, when Multiple Printings first were announced. Then Harold Kroll who took over the Multiple Printings AND his High Serial Number quest. Doug with his Position Number Set, Larry Smulczenski with Serial Number 39, Fred with Errors, the list is endless.

There are many ways of being an advanced collector, but spending vast amounts of money to own the best note is not the ticket. Granted, that person will have made an investment, and which will result in a collection worth a substantial amount of money. But having an all unc collection, although costly, is not a new feat or unheard of.

Also to underscore this, is the fact that many dealers now accept over time payments on high-end notes, so even a limited budget collector can afford the real higher priced notes.

Taking this topic to a completely acceptable stretch, would be a buyer of Carlson's Copies, might feel they are not "serious" or dedicated enough to consider attending the Fest's. This thinking would thereby cause a situation preventing them (and us) from learning more about MPC, expanding their knowledge and broadening their horizons. I know I felt a little hesitant about attending Fest 1, and for the very reason that I was a beginner, with average circ notes. What contributions could I make? But what if I really had not attended? Or how about any of you (who did attend) but chose not to? Hindsight is 20/20.

Carlson's statement: "Thus the serial numbers on the replicas match those on my own (very tightly held) original notes. In today's market the value of these notes would probably be somewhat in excess of $50,000, but a full set of replicas would only cost about 0.004 percent of this amount." Yup, the replicas would only be worth 0.004 percent (approximately) of the real notes too.

If anyone were to make replicas of complete sets of US Morgan Dollars, replicas of all issues of US fractional currency, or how about replicas of every national banknote known to mankind... How well would THEY be received, and what would THEY do to their respective markets?

Thanks to Phil for helping fill the Mail Call inbox for the next few days!

Phil's commentary bought me yet another day to work on the report of the POW conference--and I need the time. It is amazing how things pile up while away! Mail, snail and electronic, leaky faucets and the lawn to name just a few seem to conspire against me when I am off on important trips.

Of course I have some ideas about Phil's comments above. I will probably share those along with the mail that I anticipate coming in on this topic.

Dear Mark,

Thanks for the info. One question though. Who is the fat guy?

Fred

Dear editor,

The latest data I have received on serial numbers for BAFSVs, 2nd Series £1, wmk, PM22a & b are:

1. Highest PM22a serial number - AA/10 680,591.
2. Lowest PM22b serial number - AA/10 780,118.
3. Highest PM22b serial number - AA/10 872,569.

Assumption: highest serial number is <999,000.

Word from Theo van Elmpt, via a British dealer, is that he suspects the break point for the change to watermarked paper was at AA/10 750,000. The above date would appear to support that supposition; but does anyone know any different?

Can any MPCGram readers help me build my collection of Malay JIM. I'm one of those nuts who is collecting this series by block letters and intial serial numbers. I was born in Singapore just after the end of WWII and have dim memories of being lifted off Loyang beach by RN MGBs during the Maria Hertog riots.

Hence my interest in this area and time.

Condition is not an issue if I do not possess the note. I can exchange for notes in my surplus collection or pay in US$ or Sterling. I have all $10 "smokeless note" block letters but am looking for OSS and other forgeries.

Regards, Andrew M. Clark.

Hi Gramsters,

UV lights can usually be found at hardware stores. Even in a small town such as Iola until our hardware store went out of business recently.

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I bought my UV light from Anything Anywhere (Bob Reis), and have bought more as gifts to collectors and dealers in Southeast Asia. It has made two overseas trips in the bottom of my black bag and still works. We all seem to be satisfied with it but I would be interested in knowing about anything equal or better in "traveling" size. Go to www.anythinganywhere.com/list203-1.htm and it is listed in his favorite supplies area as "BLACKLIGHT, small, handheld unit, and CHEAP. While they last: 17.50." For those of you who purchase it, please write a letter to the editor about its usefulness. He also has many WWII and other military pieces for sale.

Howard A. Daniel III

You can add me to the MPC Fest list. I will pay sometime.....maybe.

Bill McNease

Dear Gram,
The Gram is good and I enjoy receiving it and studying the books, but you guys are too technical for me.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 003 - Number 748      Sunday      Oct 13, 2002

My two cents worth on the Carlson Chambliss replicas:

By David Klinger

I bought three sets of the replicas, and was given another set and used them in a different way than I have seen described so far in the Gram. I assembled the sets in photo albums, with brief descriptions of each series, and an overall summary of the MPC program. I then donated them to various military museums to be used as "reference sets" to show to museum visitors. Two of these museums had NO examples of MPC on display, so they were glad to have this reference set, since it is unlikely that they would ever have a "real" set.

I have heard many interesting and positive remarks about these sets from museum visitors: "Hey, these are the ones I used in Japan in 1951." "My son sent me one of these from Vietnam." "I never dreamed that there were so many different types of these!" etc. In any case I like the replicas, and I don't think they will have any significant negative impact on the MPC market.

I would make a related challenge to Gramsters: The ANA museum does not have even a basic set of MPC in their holdings. This is a museum collection which should have a "complete set" of real MPC, and which they will only realize through donations. Gramsters would be the best source for these donations!

The recent sale of the serial number two note on ebay made me think about auctions in general and electronic auctions in particular. I have always felt that ebay (and others) should allow bidding to continue after the closing time if there had been a bid in the last 1-2 minutes. It seemed (and seems) to me that this is more like a real auction.

I spoke with a representative from ebay about this at an ANA convention (do not remember what year). He insisted that ebay had exhaustively studied this matter and that they believe that the current way is the best for all concerned. All includes the seller of course.

I did not agree with him at the time, but more or less accepted his opinion. After all, what else could I do and it was interesting to learn that they had studied the matter.

I believe that things have changed. It seems to me that ALL SERIOUS bidding on ebay is now done with a sniping service. This means that much of the fun and drama has been taken out of sales. Everything serious happens in the last few seconds and there is nothing to watch.

Heritage online auctions have implemented my suggestion (they figured it out on their own) with a twist. Heritage allows bidding to continue after the closing time until there has been no bids for a few minutes (I do not recall how many minutes). The twist is that after the initial close, only bidders who had bid BEFORE the close may continue to bid. I think that this is a VERY GOOD idea.

Can you imagine how long David (and I) might have been bidding on that 2?! Even for the nonbidders it would have been great fun to watch which is good for everyone.

Dear Gramsters,

In response to Phil's letter
I thought it was a very good point of view and I am sure there are some collectors out there that will follow this view. I do personally know of several collectors that have gone the other way. After receiving a set of the copies there collecting of originals increased with determination and excitement. Only time will tell.

Hello Gramsters and Broiled Physician!

In reference to your UV light questions! In Gram #
736 I broke down in detail how to use these "lights" .
To refresh those who didn't read it or forgot....
First! It is BEST to do this examination at "night" or in a room "without and outside light interference"!!
Because the "other lights/ incandescent/ sunlight" cancel the effects out!! Most important! Also I tried all the lights! And have them all! Last night I "tagged" all my "HI-BRITE" paper varieties!! For instance! ALL series #651 are on "Hi-Brite" paper! and many of the "600" series! Like "FIRST PRINTING" FRACTIONALS #641 also the 5 and 10 centers of series
#692!!! I found one 10 cent 692 that is "NOT" on
"HI-BRITE" paper!! etc. SO what light..... A standard "BIG" 17 inch one I bought in a "CD/ record" shop (self contained)! or perhaps where ever "party" lights are sold! My light was about $20+! And WORKS JUST GREAT!!! So stay away from the "pocket" versions as they are not "strong" enough to get the "full effect" Just use a "big" blacklight!! Hold your notes close to the light 6-14 inches away and enjoy, this allows hands free movement!!! It's worth the effort!

Guy Araby!

More on the Carlson Chambliss replicas

By Kenneth J. Berger

I bought one of Chambliss' MPC reproduction sets. I only collect one dollar notes & coins and for many years have had a complete set of one dollar MPCs in UNC. I had & still have no desire to purchase other denominations, yet I thought it would be nice to have a complete reproduction set.

I own many reproductions/copies in my collection (1776 Continental Dollars (in various metals), 1794 Silver Dollar, 1796 Silver Dollar, 1804 Silver Dollar, Gobrecht Dollar, 1894 Morgan Dollar, etc., etc.). Does this mean I do not desire original copies? Of course not! In fact, I have originals of a number of these copies. But by having reproductions/copies, I accomplish a number of things: 1) it lends a sense of "completeness" to my collection until I can get the original, 2) I have an example of a coin/note in UNC/CU condition which 99.44% (to borrow a phrase from the old Ivory Soap commercial) of collectors will never own in such a condition. In fact, the majority of collectors will never even own the coin or note in ANY condition, 3) when exhibiting I am able to show both the obverse/reverse (front/back) of the coin/note. Without reproductions/copies, I would have to have two examples of every coin/note exhibited to accomplish this task. Someday I hope to have original copies of these coins/notes in any condition but in the meantime the reproductions fit the bill.

Phil goes on to discuss the Shelby Cobra. When I was single, I too was very much involved in antique sport cars, although not Cobras (they were out of my price range). I owned MGs. I had a 1952 MG-TD among others. Now I could have bought a nice replicar (as such cars are called) of an MG-TD (there are many different ones available). Had I done so, I would have had a car that was brand new, used modern parts, had more safety features, and could be used as an everyday driver. But did I buy a replicar --- no! I bought an original, which lacked modern safety features, had to be constantly maintained, and could definitely not be used as an everyday driver. Many people can not tell the difference between a replicar & an original MG-TD. But I could & so could other MG enthusiasts, and that is what counts! I knew I owned an original, other MG lovers knew I owned an original, so who cares what the masses thought. The same is true for coins/notes. You will know if it is original and so will fellow collectors. Who cares about the masses. Perhaps this would be a good opportunity to enlighten the masses as to the differences between originals and reproductions/copies.

Finally, Phil bemoans the fact that these reproductions may depress the market. Perhaps it is true, perhaps it is not. But are lower prices such a bad thing? Won't lower prices bring more collectors into the fold? And won't more collectors result in more research being done? And won't more collectors result in more discoveries being made and knowledge being obtained? And this is a bad thing? I don't get it. Many collectors will pick an area of interest based upon the possibility of their completing the collection within their lifetime. Higher prices limit the possible areas of collecting. For example, I started collecting California fractional gold and felt I had a reasonable chance of putting together a fairly nice type set. But in the 1980s, the prices of Calif. gold went sky high, especially on the rarer pieces and I realized that unless I won the lottery I would never be able to finish my collection. So I stopped collecting them & turned my interests elsewhere. We all want to see our collections go up in value. But remember, as value increases the number of collectors who can afford these coins/notes decreases and this hurts the hobby.

So, I see nothing wrong with the MPC reproductions. In fact, maybe as I look at my set I might be convinced that I too need a complete original set of MPCs. As of right now, this hasn't happened and I am still happy with my UNC set of one dollar MPCs. But who knows what will happen in the future. After all, the colors are pretty, a complete original set would be nice to have, I'd feel more like an MPC collector, I'd have a sense of accomplishment, I'd . . . Hmm? Maybe it's not such a bad idea.

You might be interested to know the financial structure of your MPCGram. The columnists (and other writers) share the subscription revenue and the Gram takes the advertising revenue. On an annual basis this makes exactly zero for everyone. The total gross/net total total total all-time income (not profit) by the Gram is zero dollars (euro, yen etc).

Most of you knew this, but I mention it as I am in trouble with some advertisers. A few dealers have been rather insistent that their contact information be included in the Hot Contact List below. The bottom line is that the HCL is paid advertising. HCL listings are a small bonus given to advertisers who support BNR Press publications by advertising therein. The notice here in the Gram is fairly (if not perfectly) clear on this matter. This is also one reason that we resist the suggestion to drop the HCL daily and include it only weekly. These folks have supported the MPC book (and others) so we want to support them. Also we know that this feature does fill a useful purpose. You may not use it often, but you know that the information is there when you need it.

I invite your comments on this matter.

Dear Gram,

I enjoyed the pictures of the Summer Seminar. It reminds me that there is supposed to be an MPC display opening at the ANA museum this fall. I also remember you discussing it with the museum curator. But I have heard nothing since. What's happening - if anything?

Warner

Warner,

The ANA exhibition of the WWII numismatics is currently scheduled to open Dec 7th. There has been a little bit about this in the Gram, but your point is still well taken. I am putting the opening in the calendar below.

Larry Lee, the museum curator, and his staff are hard at work on this event. Larry reads the Gram every day, if you have any suggestions, I am sure that he will be happy to hear them.

One important thing from the Gram side of the house is to decide if we want to try to make a special effort to get gramsters to attend the opening and have a special social even of our own. Possibly we can do this but not at the opening? We really need to discuss this. Warner, what are your thoughts?

Editor

Dear Gram,

What a Great idea!!!! to give to military museums. A heck of a lot better than some artificial pictures. Also, could be used for "chumming" to get the real ones from viewers. Some people I know just gave the funny money to their kids to destroy and with all the vets dying now, somebody may see them and say" Hey I saw some of those in dad's miscellany." So a little publicity may draw more out.

Carlson has done a great service and should get a lot of credit. Using Marcus' reasoning, we should not have even have pictures of the real ones they are not real!!!

Nick

Dear Gram,
My take on the Chambliss replicas, copies or whatever the current buzz words to describe the produced pieces. First and foremost he made these for the basic reason in general use in America, to MAKE MONEY!!!! It is what keeps America rolling. And he has succeeded even before the first set was sold. What happens in the subsequent years, we the buyers, sellers of MPC, along with the general public will determine.

The copies are a chance for you to make a personal decision. The American way again. Take some responsibility for your actions. I don't need some lawyer to file a class action suit. Buy or not buy. Support or not. You choose. I do not buy any of the issues. It's my choice.

There was some good to come out of this, from my point of view. I was able to acquire the series 481 25 cent note that has been produced in quantity. As it turns out, it is a very rare note. For the growing number of multiprint MPC collectors it is the only (to date) GEM UNC 4th printing.

David E. Seelye

PS. Fred, the $3777.77 was my last bid

Dear David,

Yes, that was your last bid and my last bid is a matter of public record. However, I certainly would have gone the little bit more to beat you. Then you might have done the same. Furhermore, it is not likely that we would have snipped our final bids if we had had the opportunity for "extended bidding."

Target Practice

By Joe Boling

Well, I've been back from London a week, and am just getting around to reading the grams that were posted during the week I was gone and in the week since I returned. So tonight will probably be mostly comments on those grams.

I see that nobody said what the #2 note actually sold for. Why not? Do you think we all have time to play with eBay? Would it be so hard for someone to quote the final price, instead of talking about what bids they left with an e-snipe service (what kind of collecting is this, and what kind of commission do THEY charge), or that Fred was only $25 back, or that (apparently) Seelye bought the note? (It was $3777.77, for those of you who, like me, haven't taken the time to go find it.) (And what does the narcissistic ME by coinman's and mpccoin's bids stand for?)

Try Subway Stamp and Coin in New York for UV lamps. Be sure to specify that you want the long-wave light for paper money, not the short-wave light for US stamps. Fred keeps ignoring my inputs on this distinction. I don't know what kind of lamps they have at present (portable or plug-in).

The one I use is a Scanmaster MD-188 with the 360-nanometer bulb. It uses 110v power; I bought it from World Wide Notaphilic Service, PO Box 5427, Vallejo, CA 94591. Phone 707-644-3146. The proprietor is Josef Klaus. I have had mine for five years; I have no idea whether Klaus still stocks them. It was $35 in 1997.

The portable UV lights offered by Bob Reis (Anything Anywhere, referenced by Howard Daniel in gram 747 as BLACKLIGHT, small, handheld unit, and CHEAP. While they last: 17.50) were all sold this summer. The lamps he received when he restocked are unacceptable. They activate the UV inks VERY dimly, to the extent that in ordinary room light you cannot see the glow. I ordered four or six units from him (don't recall now) for ANA; only two were the $17.50 variety, which worked well. The others were more expensive, and I returned them because of their shortcomings.

About the WWII exhibit at ANA, Steamed Editor writes "One important thing from the Gram [sic - why is this capitalized?] side of the house is to decide if we want to try to make a special effort to get gramsters to attend the opening and have a special social event of our own. Possibly we can do this but not at the opening?" Why on earth would we want to do something that did not include the opening? If we're not going to be there for the opening, I'm sure not going to bother showing up three days later. Editor, what were you thinking here? Surely something other than what you wrote.

Back on the subject of the #2 series 651 $5 note that sold on eBay. The Fred/David exchange in gram 749 seems to say that each of them put his last bid in through a sniping service, and that neither was a reaction to the other. Since they were placed one second apart, and were within $26 of each other at the $3750 level, and the second place bid was more than $1200 above the third place bid, placed ten hours earlier, we can make a strong inference that this really is what the note is worth. Two independent knowledgeable bidders thought that a bid at this level would win the lot (and were willing to pay it). Now, I have a question about the sniping service(s). Did they use the same one? Did the service look at the two bids it had received for the same lot and send them out sequentially so as to force the final price to the highest bid level? Some bid executors at live sales (working on commission for collectors, not the auction houses themselves) who have competing bids from different customers will withhold the lower bid, allowing the higher bidder to win the lot at a level below than would have been forced if two bidders had been working on the floor (I wonder what position the anti-trust mavens take on that as a form of collusive bidding?). Or do we have a case of one sniping service cutting things just ever so much finer than the other? If the bids had been executed in reverse order, would we have seen the lower bid? One of you eBay aficionados, explain how the bids would have been displayed if David's bid came in after Harold's, was shown as an advance over Harold's but not to the full level of the bid, then Fred's came in, forcing David's to advance closer to his maximum. Would all three iterations of David/Fred/David be shown in the bid history, or just the two levels of David's bid (such as the several places in the earlier bids on this item, where the same bidder has successive bids)?

I'm glad it was not a position #8 note (but then, it could not have had a low serial number--any reader who does not understand why, inquire).

It was pointed out to me by Wilder Quinn that the financial details divulged yesterday are a distinct advantage to the Gram. He said that unless we have cooked the books to reduce income, the current level of Gram earnings will greatly reduce or eliminate the likelihood of executive fraud. That will keep the Gram from being a target of SEC investigations and allow the Gram to continue distributing vital information.

Joe seems to have been in a real bad state of mind, but his column is not soporific (it never is), AND it gives me some more things to comment on.

I doubt if many readers (other than Joe and I) would be interested in a discussion on capitalization, but here goes. It seems clear to me that MPCGram is a proper noun. Using the word Gram to mean MPCGram makes it a proper noun in my view. Of course, if MPCGram is a proper noun as the title of a publication (which it is), then it should be in italics. There are two problems with that. First, many publications (at least some) choose to omit the italics when they use their own title. The bigger problem is that in general the italics do not get sent or received over the ether so we do not try to put them in. Now that I think about it, we probably should so that they will be in place if we use the text elsewhere.

On the matter of the museum. It was my thought that we Gramsters (same derived proper noun discussion as above) might want to have a special event for ourselves. This would be especially true if we could get 10 or so collectors. If that were the case we could be VIP visitors and probably have some special events just for us. At the opening we will be participants in a larger event. It may or may not be a good idea. Sorry that you thought that it was crazy, Joe.

Dear Gram,
Question: how many replica MPC notes were printed?
David

Dear David,

Wow what a simple, but good, question. I am sure that someone will tell us.

Editor

Dear Gram,
I have been following in the GRAM, the discussion on the MPC copies that Dr. Chambliss produced and I am very surprised (even disappointed) with some of the opinions being expressed.
First let me say that this is not the first instance of such reproductions of numismatic items. One that comes to mind immediately is a very good set of all Japanese Banknotes, all "laminated" and housed in an attractive album (which by the way Dr. Chambliss, would have been a great way to market yours--- MARKET?----ooh what an ugly word for those numismatic purists---these sets of MPC. The Japanese banknote copies were produced years ago by Bonanza, one of the leading numismatic magazines (and publisher of various numismatic works) at the time in Japan. By the way, a complete set of Japanese notes would, monetarily, make the price of a complete MPC set look like chump change in comparison.

I fail to see how these copies would ever dampen the interest in obtaining and collecting REAL MPC notes. On the contrary I think that it could only help (AND ALREADY HAS) the collecting of MPC notes.

Admittedly, I bought quite a number of these sets from Dr. Chambliss and have both sold them and given them away. I thought they were quite well done. We also made a couple of fantastic displays for a backdrop for our bourse table for display at various shows around the country and I must say, most people are really impressed at this colorful, interesting display. By using copies you can do this easily and not have to worry about security concerns. An entire set of MPC displayed is quite a beautiful sight and arouses a lot of interest.

At the first show displaying this set we sold lots of books on MPC as they become interested in the series. One fellow who I will not name as I am not sure he would want to be singled out in the gram (as he now gets it) first bought the 3rd edition of Schwan, AND a set of the copies. A few days later he called me and wanted to spring for the 4th Edition, another set of the copies (for a friend)and a couple REAL MPC notes.

Link to photo of bourse display:

www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/700-799/images/mpcdisplay3.jpg

I just finished a show in Lakeland this weekend (the same show this collector made the purchase of the first copies at) and he bought several hundred dollars worth of MPC for his collection today.. He told me that he was very near complete now and had been buying from other dealers, one in NY.

Even though I bought these copy sets, I decided not to market them other than at shows and to dealers that wanted to imitate my display for the walls in their shops and offices. I decided not to put them on eBay or in ads, although I see nothing wrong with this.

As far as these sets diminishing the desire to obtain real, genuine notes I cannot agree, as no one would ever be satisfied with collecting copies of these notes in place of the real thing. Part of collecting is "filling that hole" and I doubt any true collector would ever fool himself into believing that a copy of the 541 $5 or 471 $5 "completes" his set.

Mike Cummings

Hello Gramsters! (reference: Phil's Article)

I too have thought about the "replicas" and "Phil's" great extensive article! After pondering for weeks and reviewing Phil's point of view, I have come to the conclusion that I would have felt a "LOT" better if the word "COPY" was also included on the front of the notes also! This would insure both the obvious and subtle effects these pieces will have on the hooby. They would will be less "threatening," which was my "first " impression!

On another matter: I was recording my replacements/printings when I noticed a Monor error: Page 221 887/1r reads "J04000000" instead of "J00400000" (reference: #641 $10 r.)

WWII Money Museum Opening at ANA

By Warner Talso

Regarding the MPC exhibit opening at ANA Headquarters, first, I think it is important that Gramsters/Festers be represented. Show the flag. We want to demonstrate that we are serious about supporting military numismatics in general and MPC in particular.

Next, we need to find out the schedule of events. Larry, what is the status of the exhibit and the proposed plan for the day? This will, to a great extent, determine how we can fit it.

What can we do? We can just attend and be supportive. We can ask to participate in some manner. Make a short speech. Who is the invited speaker? We could make a donation or loan to the exhibit - some peripheral item like a signature stamp or a briefcase. We could have a social event of our own and possible invite selected guests - maybe invite everyone. How many guests are expected? Will the next the summer session be advertised? Marcus, can we have a flyer for next years scholarships ready for hand out? Fred, what about a flyer for FEST IV?

Who can attend? December 7th is a Saturday. I can attend - it is a relatively easy trip for me. I already have my kitchen pass for the weekend.

Building Pedigrees

By Doug Bell

On EBay is a 692 5$ in XF that an interesting story. 2 years ago I meet a veteran named Gene Ryan from Missouri. He attended the MPC fest 2002. He was a finance officer in Vietnam. He is one of the few people whom I have met who actually paid solders in MPC, and collected MPC. He pulled out notes in CU for his collection from the stock that he had used to pay solders.

It is not very often that you can tie an issued note to a pay officer. The notes on ebay is one that gene issued. I know this because the 692 5$ note he had in his collection was one I traded for 2 years with SN# 02832151. The one on EBay is sn# 02832769, 618 #'s difference. This isn't in itself a great find, but, after talking to Gene he told me that the note was issued in 1 of 2 places Nahbe or Binh Thuy Vietnam.

I may add this note also is a matching position number and the denomination. Which in Fred's words this is "Very Sexy" I have made it a primary goal of mine to assemble a set of MPC with this characteristic. At this time I only need 6 notes to complete a 90 note set with matching numbers. The note can also be viewed at www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/700-799/images/6925\$.jpg and the ebay note at this address:

Bravo Warner! I am excited that you have stepped forward to say "count on me." I am also impressed that you got a kitchen pass. That is the only problem that I have remaining to resolve before committing to the opening of the ANA WWII money museum opening. In chatting with the curator yesterday, he said that he will be delighted to have us any way that we want to do it—opening or later.

I think that Warner has the right idea. We should try to get as many as possible to the opening, then if we want another meeting at another time, consider that separately. Larry Lee (the curator) also told me that the exhibition will come done shortly after the summer seminar so now we know the parameters of the thing.

If you have caught your breath from writing about the Chamblis copies, write to us with some thoughts on the exhibition.

Dear Editor,

A reply to Joe B's inquiry about the series 651 $5.00 serial number 2 note on eBay. By looking at the bid history you can see that Harold's bid of $2333.33 was bested by Fred's bid. At this price level the bidding increment is $50.00. So when Fred's bid was posted 13:20:53 his bid was $2383.33. The next second my bid was posted, and eBay raised Fred's bid to Fred's limit $3752.52. My bid of $3777.77 was the final bid and topped Fred's highest bid by $25.25 and I won the note. What you don't see is Fred's bid of $2383.33 due to the timing of the bids.

And I believe that the bidding service only bids to eBay. The service submits the bids at the time you select. We both used the same service.

The winning bid was placed about 10 minutes before the end of the sale. I had a somewhat smaller bid placed a day before. I had an appointment with a car repair service that I thought would not let me bid again before the end of the sale. As it turned out the repair was a figment of a car dealership, I had a second opinion done that said the dealership was trying to rip me off to the tune of $300+. I got home about 4PM and changed my bid about 4:10, after considerable pondering.

David

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

I am going through a stack of auction catalogs and found another one with a date (Oct 26) that has not expired. It is the Mavin International auction in Singapore and it has a bunch of WWII and other military lots. You can contact them and/or see the lots at www.MavinInternational.com.

I have been perusing the latest Public Auction Catalog 16 from Remy Bourne and noticed some author's names in the book section like Basso, Beresiner, Boling, Daniel, Dorling, Kish, Narbeth, Petrov, Schwan (?), and Shafer. It is a strange mix of names but they all seemed to have written something about WWII. If anyone is interested in bidding in this auction, contact Remy at "RemyBourne@Qwest.net" or

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

Remy is a Gramster. Aside to Remy: If you can email the specific WWII listings we will run them in the Gram both as a news item then in the for sale section.

Steamed editor

Hi Gramsters,

Here is my take on the MPC repro's, I agree with Kenneth J. Berger when he writes, "But are lower prices such a bad thing? Won't lower prices bring more collectors into the fold?(Yes) And won't more collectors result in more research being done?(Probably) And won't more collectors result in more discoveries being made and knowledge being obtained?(Very likely) And this is a bad thing?(No) I don't get it.(I do, Phil is worried about his investment, which is OK, but more collectors will ensure that his investment will have a possible buyer when he decides to part with it. Will Phil ever sell his collection? NEVER HE'S TAKING IT WITH HIM! Right Phil!) Many collectors will pick an area of interest based upon the possibility of their completing the collection within their lifetime.(That describes me) Higher prices limit the possible areas of collecting.(How true) We all want to see our collections go up in value.(Not everyone, I would be happy to see it maintain at least my original investment.) But remember, as value increases the number of collectors who can afford these coins/notes decreases and this hurts the hobby."(VERY VERY TRUE!)

I believe the more people get to see and hear about these beautiful (for the most part) works of pocket art, carried by our military in far off lands, the better it is for us all. If the MPC repro's help in this endeavor, such as when they are donated to a museum or in some other way exhibited, that's great!

I have not yet bought a repro set, but I probably will and I will still collect the real thing anyway.

Take Care,
Gavin

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA

summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

I Could Have Stayed at a Holiday Inn Express

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

A couple of months ago, I received an offer from good friend Trevor Wilkin of Australia to bid for me on an auction item that I was unfamiliar with. Trevor said he would be at the auction and if I was interested he would act as my agent for the item. The item was a block of four of the three pence square paper token from the Grand Pacific Hotel in Fiji. I knew the item very well, in fact I had two sets of the Grand Pacific Hotel paper tokens in my collection, one set with a stamped signature on the back and a second without. The paper tokens from the Grand Pacific Hotel come in values of one penny, three pence and six pence. These tokens were issued by private businesses in Fiji to combat the shortage of small change during the early part of World War II. A number of hotels and businesses issued these paper tokens with the Grand Pacific Hotel probably being the most common. They can be found occasionally in dealers stocks at a modest price. The other issuers are considerably more difficult to find and command a much higher purchase price.

On 1 October 1942, a notice appeared in the Fiji Royal Gazette concerning the paper tokens stating that now a large supply of the Fiji one penny notes (SB 1371) was available to meet all requirements. The public's attention was drawn to the fact that the paper tokens were not legal tender and they were removed from circulation. The short circulation time, wartime conditions and this withdrawal make these items quite scarce.

As I said previously, I knew the item well, but this was my first encounter with a block of four. I told Trevor that I was interested but since I was unfamiliar with a block of the paper tokens not to make me mortgage the farm if the bidding went too high. Fortunately this was not the case and he was able to purchase it for a reasonable amount.

When the item arrived in my post office box a couple of weeks later, I was surprised to see that it was straight edged on top, bottom, and right side with roulette perforations down the left side. This had to mean that the sheet which contained this block had to be very small as additional tokens could only be on the left side. You can see the item by going to the link at www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurskil01702.htm I then noticed the serial numbers of the four tokens ranged from 2317 thru 2320, but the lowest number, 2317 was on the upper right token. Number 2318 was below it on the lower right token, followed by 2319 on the upper left with 2320 below it in the lower left position. Quite odd, I thought. Most sheets start their numbers in the upper left and then go either below or to the right on the sheet. This was backwards. I went to my copy of World War II Remembered to see what I could find there. I was surprised to find illustrated there a three pence token from the Grand Pacific Hotel with serial number 2325. That was only five numbers away from my block. I had to grab a magnifying glass to check it out closer. This token was straight edged on the top and right side with perfs on the bottom and left. This was an upper right token from a sheet and only eight numbers away from my upper right token of 2317. I jumped to the conclusion that this was the answer. Eight tokens on a sheet of four across by 2 down.

I took my block to Strassburg with me and showed it to some folks. No one there had seen multiples of these little paper tokens. It appeared to be a real nice addition to a collection, but wouldn't it be nicer to have the whole sheet of eight! At a slack period, Leo May asked to see the block. "Pull out the ones I have" he said to me. I believe he had three pieces. We begun working on a formula to determine where each piece would fit on the sheet. It seemed to me if we divided the serial number by eight, the remainder would identify the sheet position, but that didn't appear to work for my block. All of a sudden Leo looked up at me and said." Ski, you have the whole sheet. In fact its not a sheet it's a pane from a booklet. The perforations on the left is where it was torn from a booklet tab." The dawn broke and I had to admit that Leo was correct. Therefore, if you divide the serial number by four, you come up with a remainder of one for the upper right corner, two for the lower right, three for upper left and no remainder for the lower left. It worked for all the examples that I have in my collection, the ones in Leo's stock and three others that I was able to find in collections. This also answers the question about why the tokens were numbered from the left. Convention has a book open from right to left, so the upper right token was torn from the booklet first. This left the sequential serial numbers in the book. When the next token was torn from the book, logically it would be the lower right since it was hanging out there by itself. This would continue to leave the serial numbers in sequential order.

I love it when everything comes together. Has anyone out there seen similar multiples of these paper tokens. Let us hear from you.

ANA OFFICIALLY DISCONTINUES AUTHENTICATION SERVICE

The American Numismatic Association Authentication Bureau (ANAAB) is no longer accepting submissions for authentication. The American Numismatic Association Board of Governors voted at a meeting in New York City to discontinue ANAAB after reviewing a report that suggested the cost of employing a full-time authenticator outweighed the benefits to the membership. All recent submissions have been returned.

"After a careful examination of ANA's authentication services and recognizing the declining demand for them over the years, the Board had to make a fiscal decision," says Lawrence J. Lee, ANA Museum curator who oversaw the ANA Authentication Bureau (ANAAB) during the past year.

"The ANA began authenticating coins 30 years ago as a way to reduce counterfeiting of collector coins. We were very successful in that area. In addition, the ANA has offered classes in counterfeit detection over the years, and scores of people have taken them and are doing well to preserve the integrity of the hobby.

"However, most of the coin-grading firms now are offering authentication services to collectors."

The ANA first offered coin authentication in 1972. Coin grading was added six years later, and both services were offered until July 31, 1990, when the Association sold its grading service to Amos Press Inc., publisher of Coin World. The following October, ANAAB began operations, providing reference attributions, if available, and diagnostic reports of any coin, token, medal or primitive money in any condition determined to be counterfeit. Lee noted that support both for and against retaining the authentication service was strong from the ANA Museum Committee. However, the number of submissions did not generate the necessary revenue. According to the report provided the Board of Governors, the ANA would have to budget between $150,000 and $200,000 a year for two full-time authenticators, at least four authentication and grading seminars, and other services needed to expand ANAAB's role and increase submissions.

"We even looked into the possibility of utilizing volunteers to authenticate material, but decided such a program was not feasible," Lee says. "Even though the ANA has discontinued its authentication service, this does not mean we will not be looking at material from time to time. The ANA remains committed to eliminating counterfeits from the numismatic field, and we will continue to offer Counterfeit Coin Bulletin, published in conjunction with the International Association of Professional Numismatists (IAPN)."

Over the next year, the ANA will be re-evaluating its ability to provide authentication services and may, after further study, reinstate ANAAB or another authentication program. For more information about Counterfeit Coin Bulletin or other services offered by the ANA, contact the American Numismatic Association, 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646; fax 719/634-4085; E-mail ana@money.org; or visit the ANA web site at www.money.org.

The passing of ANAAP is a little bit sad. It had very little to offer our specialty, but still, it was there if needed. I guess as one of the fossils who not only remembers John Pittman twisting arms to raise money to get it started I feel a little sad. Heck, I even gave a little money. (very little). I suspect that this was the right move, it just seems a little sad.

Dear Gram,

It is J J SULLIVAN, not David, that asked the question re: How many replica MPCs were printed?

JJ

Dear JJ,

No one has answered the question yet. Can someone help?

Editor

Dear Gram,

Yes, MPCGram is a proper noun, but it is derived from telegram and cablegram, neither of which is a proper noun, and gram by itself should not be either. And gramsters was NOT capitalized in the same sentence I was quoting.

I apologize for misreading the two sentences I quoted to imply that any gram-related event at the WWII exhibit opening would not be associated with the opening. I see now that he meant we would all go to the opening, then go do something else in addition (without adding unnecessary days, I trust).

Let's get on with the planning for this--it's time to be buying plane tickets.

Joe

Military Fest Certificates

By Al Glaser

As many of you are aware from a prior plea for help, I am in the process of putting together the "Less than Comprehensive Guide to MFC". Obviously, I have gotten in way over my head taking this project on, but I have become fascinated with all of the different series of MFC. Within each series there are many varieties with inverts, uniface, counterfeits, voids, replacements, star varieties, and on and on.

At Fest I our first series of MFC was introduced. These notes were altered MPC notes. The $1 was on a 521 $1 note, $5 on a 541 $5 note, $10 on a 521 $10 note and the $20 on a 681 $20 note. As I began this project I noticed Post Office stamp cancels on the backs of the notes. Some had 1, some had 2, some had 1 but a different date than the other. WHAT DID THIS MEAN! Turns out at Fest I the participants reenacted "Payday" with the Paymaster counting out each mans pay. All of the notes paid out were stamped Feb 25 2000 on the back which validated them. The next day at Fest must have been the poker game. More money was needed so extra notes were validated with Feb 26 2000 as well as notes that were used to buy PX items the day before. So now 3 varieties were created. 1 with Feb 25 2000, 1 with Feb 26 2000, and 1 with both stamps.

Fest II the following year began with the same currency as in Fest I. This created a new variety with the Mar 9 2001 validation stamp. Of course you can see what happened, some of the notes used at Fest I that were turned into the Pay office then reissued at Fest II now have a Feb 25 2000 and a Mar 9 2001 stamp. I have even had 1 report of a 3 stamp note with the Feb 25 & 26 2000 and Mar 9 2001. This series was withdrawn on Mar 12 2001 when the new issue of 011 was issued, but that will be a story for another time. Now the possibility exists for a 4 stamp note, so get your notes out and see what you have. Could be a discovery piece. And since you have them out, why not jot down the serial numbers in an email and send it to thetrader.2@cox.net so I can get an accurate listing of all notes known.

Ski is flying his own computer again. We chatted for awhile yesterday and he told me that I cheated him (and thereby you) by not running a column of his! Fortunately, he had a copy and has sent it so we should get a bonus Thurski this weekend!

As you can see from the lead story, Al Glaser is hard at work researching Fest certificates. I hope that you can find some varieties to tantalize him and we look forward to many more reports from Al.

Dear Gram,
For Fest, Or Four Fest, Or 4 Fest, Or IV Fest, Or IIII Fest, Or 4th Fest, Or 4th Printing Fest, Or....Well, You Know What I'm Getting At...Consider A....."WEST FEST".....It Has A Catchy Sound To It !!
Respect,
Ed Beaman

Dear Ed,
Thanks for all of the good ideas. Yes, I have thought of a West Fest and expect that it will happen one day. In the meantime do you suppose that you can be beamed down for Four Fest (comments expected from Joe on capitalization)?

Editor

Dear editor,
In response to the question of how many copies were made that info was given out freely at the 2002 fest I do remember the cost of printing was $17,000and there was a pile 2 foot high and about 20 ft long but I was fuzzy on that because of everything else going on I didn't want to Miss I seem to recall the number 940,000 notes being discussed. That would be 1000 sets.

Doug

Dear Gram,
iN rESPONSE tO tHE cORRECTNESS oF cAPITALIZATION oF "gRAM" iN tHe aRTICLE.....I read the GGGGGGram for the information and knowledge being shared with/by others (of historic knowledge). I really don't give a rat's a** if it's cAPITALIZED or not. The GGGGram is a great item to be shared by all (at a cost that even I can afford). I think the staff should be congratulated for their time and effort AND not belittled for insignificant discrepancies. I thought the idea of the GGGGram was to open communications between individuals, to share knowledge, and to help educate collectors AND the general public with historic data.
PK6

Dear PK,
We love ALL mail. We have lost a few, and censored a (very) few, but mostly we share them. Actually, the matter of capitalization is of great interest to me. We want to get the terminology–and capitalization–right. Once we learn it, it is just as easy to get it right as wrong, and there is no telling when we are teaching something that we do not intend to.
Joe and I spent a great amount of energy working on capitalization in WWII Remembered so we share a point of view even if we do not agree on this particular point.
Here is an interesting capitalization question. Obviously MPC is capitalized, but what about “military payment certificates?” It is not an easy question.

Editor

Howdy from East Texas!
In 1969-70, I was a college student in Houston. One of our Greater Houston Coin Club members at that time was Virgil Hancock who also happened to be the ANA President then. I had to dig deep into my college kid's nearly always empty pocket to find the $5 I contributed to help create ANAAS (ANA Authentication Service). Virgil was a powerful voice for taking the ethical high road in Numismatics in all its manifestations. His efforts have fallen to the demand of the bean counters...

MPC Analysis and Questions

By Tom Kotch

I recently purchased a mpc collection out of Viet Nam (the one advertised by Howard Daniels in the gram). One of the interesting aspects of this grouping was the 16 evidence notes that were included. I will list the characteristics of the pieces as they can be viewed as a microcosm of the entire evidence note population.

The Void stamp states: Void Not Negotiable Valid as Evidence Only
The Not Negotiable stamp states: Not Negotiable CID Evidence.

My understanding is that the 20.00 and 1.00 evidence pieces are the most common; 5.00 being less common and the 10.00 being the least common and no fractional pieces known. Fred's MPC book states that fractional pieces were not typically stamped by the MPs. What is interesting is that the .10 and 5.00 pieces stamped Not Negotiable (both black stamps) appear to have been stamped by the same stamp. This is evidenced by the 0 in Negotiable having a unique appearance on both.

So do we have a "discovery piece" or one of those enigmas of mpc collecting that will endure for a long time? In any case, these pieces will be available at Fest IV for viewing and discussion.

Editorial

The replacement report by Mel and Jeremy below is interesting on several levels. First, of course, it is important as a research report. Secondly, it is important commercially. It demonstrates that it IS possible to combine commercial interests AND research/news (not directed at anyone in particular). Indeed, this is a model example. Normally, we would not run a notice of something like "Dear Gram, I have a bunch of stuff on ebay." However, if you take the time to point out a research or just interesting aspect of the material, we are not only willing, but pleased to run it!

Obviously, this is important to collectors from a research point of view, but it is also commercially important. We are pleased to announce that the recent report of the Series 541 $10 replacement was sold as a direct result of the announcement in the Gram. Your Gram does sell!

Fred

Mail Call

=====

Dear Gram,

We have another previously unreported MPC replacement to report. This one has an interesting serial number. It is a Series 541 50 cents with serial number F17344536. This may be the highest serial number known for any MPC replacement. The note is UNC, except for some minor handling. We are calling it AU-UNC. We are offering the note on ebay, Item # 1390719721.

Mel and Jeremy Steinberg

Dear Steinbergs,

Thanks VERY much for the report, EVERY single replacement report is important to the survey. (By the way this report is number 2634 in the survey). Please see additional comments in the editorial.

The number is indeed interesting. Your comments here are not exactly correct (this is not the highest number of any MPC replacement, it is not even the highest of Series 541 (with numbers over 21 million)). However, it IS of interest and your description in the ebay listing is even better so everyone should take a look!

Editor

Greetings Grammeister:

What a great marketing tool Mike Cummings and Company have come up with, with the MPC reprints being used for the background of their booth. This no doubt will have a very strong positive effect as collectors are exposed to the wonderful world of collecting MPC.

I purchased a set of the sheets for the sole purpose of having them framed for the office.

On another matter, I'm pleased to see that Fred has maintained the integrity of the Hot Contact List by not allowing persons whom we may have never heard of talk their way onto the listings. Sadly I no longer have the energy to handle books to any great degree and my days on the contact list are numbered. Too bad the idea of advertising in the various books didn't come about perhaps ten years sooner.

While on the subject of the HCL: please change my internet address to read: rbalbaton@aol.com (NO J)RichardDoric C&C

Mr. Doric

Dear Sir,

Thank you for your comments. We have been considering ways for you (and others) to stay on the HCL without advertising in BNR Press book. However, I also would like to point out many dealers who advertise do not carry the books, they just want to reach out to book readers.

Editor

Dear Editor:

Need to report an error in the 4th edition MPC catalog, on page 214, series 541 $10.00 listing. For 857/r1 replacement there is one reported and none listed in the in the summary on page 276. For 857/r2 there is one reported and on page 276 there are 6 reported notes listed.

A new 541 $10.00 replacement has been reported, S/N F00726682, position 41. This makes 7 reported notes for the second printing.

Harold "Mpckid" Kroll

Dear Kid,
That probably makes 7 reported replacements for the second printing replacement AND (possibly) 7 reported replacements for the second printing of the book!

Editor

Dear Editor,
In reference to: 'My thoughts on "Carlson's Copies" by Phil Goldstein' I would like to be on the record with my view. I have read Marcus letter, Professor Chambliss reply and now Phil's article. It is obvious that there is more than one view on the subject. I fully respect Marcus and Phil and there position but I respectfully chose to be of the view that these notes actually enhance the hobby.
I am not as articulate as either of these gentlemen, but I feel I know each of them well enough to know that they will respect my position as I respect theirs.

I bought my first set of these notes from Dr. Chambliss at Fest III. After looking them over, while still at the Fest, I was impressed enough to purchased several more. I sent a few sets to a few of my buddies and relatives who have served in Vietnam and have received nothing but good comment about them.
Now I'm sure there are some who may feel my position is somewhat biased as I now, after purchasing several hundred sets from Dr. Carlson, do advertise these sets on eBay, the numismatic press and other publications. My only response to that possible criticism is I was a purchaser or these sets before I began selling them. Because I liked them, I was convinced other would as well.
Of all those that have purchased them, to date I've not heard of anyone who dislikes them and I have receive questions asking where one can learn more about these notes. I obviously refer them to Fred's fourth edition. Of course I am cognizant that those who do not like them will obviously not be interested in purchasing them. Only time will tell, but I for one, do not believe these copies will have a negative effect, but rather actually enhance the collecting of MPC. I can speak only for myself, but I've not slowed down one bit in adding to my MPC collecting.

MPC Data Base Now Includes Values

By Doug Bell doug@papermoneyworld.net

The MPC database at papermoneyworld.net is now displaying prices for notes entered and totaling up a users total value of the notes. The price list is using prices out of the NEW Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. If a user finds a error I need to know the exact notes that is in question. I have found several of my own notes that I input incorrectly and now with those corrections it looks sweet :) The subroutine at this time must be run manually. So just send a reminder to me when you input notes so I can up date them. At present when I run the price update subroutine it take 1.5 minuets. On a cirrus 233 machine, on my 1700 MHz machine it takes 15 seconds. That is crunching approximately 4500 notes. The sub routine prices replacements as well as muliti printings and categorizes them with grade of note.

Later we will update values, but for now I want to get everything working perfectly.

NOMINATIONS TO BE ACCEPTED

FOR ANA BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Nominations for candidates to the American Numismatic Association's (ANA) Board of Governors will be accepted beginning December 1, 2002. The ANA is a nonprofit, educational organization recognized under the Internal Revenue Service Code as a Section 501(c)(3) tax exempt organization. It is governed by a nine-member Board, which includes a president, vice president and seven governors at large. The ANA's federal charter, granted in perpetuity by the United States Congress, rests control of the Association in the hands of this Board. In 2003 the terms of all nine officers will expire. Those elected will be installed on August 2, 2003, at the ANA's 112th Anniversary Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, and will compose the Board of Governors for the ensuing two years. ANA members with voting privileges can nominate candidates for the ANA Board of Governors. Nominations must be in writing and received by the executive director no earlier than December 1, 2002, and no later than March 31, 2003. Nominees must be members who are entitled to hold office under the ANA Bylaws. Associate and honorary members, member clubs, and members under the age of 18 may not hold office. To be eligible for the office of president or vice president, a member must have served at least one term as governor. To be eligible to serve as a governor, a member must have been in good standing for at least three consecutive years immediately preceding the election. No member can serve on the Board more than 10 years. To be a candidate for office, a member must receive at least five (5) nominations from member clubs in good standing and at least five (5) nominations from individual members in good standing. No member may nominate himself or herself for office. No member may nominate a number of candidates for any office in excess of the number that can be elected to an office. This means each individual member or club is allowed to nominate one person for president, one for vice president and seven for governor. The executive director will contact each qualified nominee, notifying him or her of such nominations and requesting written acceptance or refusal on or before April 7, 2003. No nominee may accept a nomination for more than one elective office. A list of nominees who have received the required number of nominations, and their resultant actions, will be published in The Numismatist beginning with the March 2003 issue. All candidates for the Board of Governors are invited to participate in the ANA Candidate Forum to be held March 21, 2003, during the Association's National Money Show™ in Charlotte, North Carolina. Official nomination forms and guidelines can be obtained by contacting the ANA Executive Offices, 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646; fax 719/634-4085; E-mail rochette@money.org; or by visiting the ANA web site at www.money.org/electioninfo2003.html.

Editorial

Every time that Doug makes an improvement on the MPC data base, I have an opportunity to harp on the subject. This online data base which maintains an interactive list of all MPC reported by collectors will be a great service to collectors. First, it will allow research into questions that we have not even composed yet. Secondly, it can be a good record of your collection and thereby a security measure. I look forward to sending news releases to the print media when we go over half then a full million notes! That will be grand. Go to papermoneyworld.net and enter some notes!

A few comments on the story about ANA nominations. Several current and former board members are Gramsters. It is likely that some Gramsters will want to run in the next election. Certainly we anticipate supporting Gramsters in their campaigns. In that vain, we encourage potential nominees and candidates to write to the Gram. We do not promise to run every political notice, but if such notices are tailored to the special interests of Gramsters, we certainly will run them.

Dear Editor,

I recently made a challenge to Gramsters to help assemble at least a Basic type set of MPC for the ANA museum. What follows is from the ANA, describing the meager collection now in our museum holdings:

David Klinger

"Dear Dave--

It is a noble goal. The ANA has some MPC's, but nowhere near a complete collection. Of the following notes, we have some duplicates, but these are the ones we own:

Series 100 - NONE
Series 461 - 5 cents
Series 471 - None
Series 472 - None
Series 481 - 5 cents, 50 cents, $1
Series 521 - 5, 15, 25, 50 cents
Series 541 - 5, 10, 25 cents
Series 591 - NONE
Series 611 - NONE
Series 641 - 5, 10, 25, 50 cents, $1, $5, $10
Series 651 - NONE
Series 661 - $10
Series 681 - 5, 10, 25, 50 cents, $1
Series 692 - 5, 10, 25, 50 cents, $1

That, my friend, is what the ANA Museum has.

I will be honored to work with you to get the project of completing this collection going!!!

-Chris Connell
ANA Museum Collection Manager"

Doug and The Gram:

Thanks for the answer to the printing amount question.

More Cons on Replicas

By Al Babb

I am also somewhat disturbed by what I have read concerning the MPC "replicas." I believe that the introduction of "replicas" of MPC amounts to little more than the "bastardization" of OUR hobby. Unfortunately the success or failures of Dr. Chambliss' entrepreneurial venture is not likely to depend on whether the MPC collectors support his product or not since serious MPC collectors will have little need for replicas. My un-educated guess is that these items will wind up like the Confederate and Colonial numismatic replicas that are currently sold to tourists at national parks gift shops.

For those of you, who walked away with the impression that Mr. Goldstein's discussion of the problem was a market based argument, think again. In reality the state of the market has little to do with this. The market is what the market is: an opportunity to buy or sell. I felt that Mr. Goldstein's argument was based on the following points: 1) what makes a great collector (numismatist)? 2) What is the thought process of someone with an initial interest in MPC and how does this interest grow into a passion? His points were well thought/stated and do not need to be re-hashed by me. Here are some of my recent thoughts on the debate.

MPC replicas do NOT lend any sense of completeness to a partial MPC collection. A hole is a hole is a hole. It does not matter if you are missing the 1933 $20 gold piece or the Series 481 $5 4th printing piece, the collection is not complete. Having a photo of an ultra-rare item definitely compliments the academic pursuit of the hobby, but a replica used as a place holder lends nothing to an individual collection. Keep in mind that that joy in any area of numismatics is the "thrill of the chase." Sometimes these pursuits can take a lifetime to realize if ever realized at all. Please do not short change yourselves by settling for a double sided, color photocopy of anything.

The second notion I wish to dispel is that MPC collecting is not affordable. In fact it is quite inexpensive when rarity versus price is closely examined. What does a 1916 D Mercury dime currently sell for in uncirculated condition? What does a series 541 $5 uncirculated note sell for? Clearly the 1916 D unc Dime is considerably more expensive than would be the UNC 541 $5, although the 541 $5 is a much more rare piece. My point is that any numismatist would be thrilled to purchase such rare items for a price that is relatively low in comparison to the mainstream US coin or paper money market. Once again, I do not wish to make this a market based debate, but I do want illustrate that real examples of MPC are within a very reasonable reach of the average collector from a economic standpoint, thus being a great selling point in attracting new hobbyists to the realm of MPC.

Someone made the statement that the replicas would be beneficial to museums. I ask what self respecting museum would place replica MPC on display. Certainly I would not expect to see a replica of the Star of Africa on display at the Smithsonian no more than I would expect to see replica MPC on display at the ANA museum. Obviously this a question that would not be for me to answer, however I would be very surprised to see color photocopies of any paper money on display at the ANA (or any other) museum.

Mr. Seelye points out that this issue will all boil down to personal preference. He is absolutely correct. This argument will, however apply to absolutely anything. What kind of car you drive, if you smoke or not, if you are a member of the communist party, if you like pickles on your hamburger, if you want to go camping in Antarctica are all matters of personal preference. To plea personal preference is not very persuasive, is definitely not proactive nor does it make for great reading in the MPCGram (capitalized).

If replicas are so wonderful for promoting collecting, then why do we not see organizations like the ANA making them? Mr. Chambliss answers that question for us. In MOST cases concerning US materials it is illegal. OK, new example: Why does the IBNS not produce replicas of the Panama banknotes? I believe it is a simple matter of ethics. Many organizations produce souvenir cards for special shows or events. I have even seen where some clubs have produced cards as fund raisers. What is the difference? I believe that when the physical characteristics (as opposed to the design) of the note are duplicated, the line has been crossed. I do not see any sort of problem in duplicating the face or back design of a note (even on the same page), but when those two items are brought together back to back and the paper is cut to imitate the note, you have invited trouble.

The good news: Although I do not agree with many of the opinions expressed, I am very pleased to see this level of healthy debate. It is also wonderful to see that so many of the opinions expressed are centered on the will to grow the base of MPC collectors and the hobby in general. It really speaks to the quality of individuals involved in this area of numismatics.

It is a wonderful idea to the person suggesting donating MPC to the ANA museum. Where can I send my donation?

Fred: You said you were going to weigh in on this debate. When will we hear you your opinion?

Editorial

Thanks to Al for a thoughtful commentary. He has called my bluff on stating my opinion on the Chambliss copies.

My basic opinion is that if it is legal, it is not worth getting upset about. Frankly, we could have a discussion about the legality of this project. Carlson did quite a bit of work to establish the legality, but there is still room for discussion. Nevertheless, I will not have that discussion, at least not now.

The point about use in museums is interesting. I suspect that Al is probably correct about the copies not being very desirable for numismatic museums. The ANA Museum is preparing a WWII exhibit as we know. I suspect that the ANA museum might set up a scene of pay operations in the field using props for rifles and other military equipment, but with genuine military money. On the other hand, if a "military" museum had the same or similar exhibit, the organizers there might be satisfied with the replica notes, but would not consider props for the other items.

The souvenir card discussion is interesting. Not too many years ago, a prominent collector was criticized in print by an ANA official (and Gramster) for cutting a note from a souvenir card, framing it, and hanging it in his office. This was an intaglio card produced by the BEP. I was amazed at the criticism. I challenged the official with the argument that if anyone should be subject of criticism, it should have been the BEP which produced the item.

So, Fred, just what is your opinion? In my heart of hearts, I wish that the copies had not been made. However, even having said that, I am not at all certain that the net result will not be positive. Heck, the results HAVE been positive—the subject has helped fill the Gram.

Fred

Howdy, to all 'Gramsters and our Esteemed Editor,

Those of y'all who have known me for [ahem]...a long time... will remember that I am an ole' '60's hippie who didn't give up his long hair 'til 1999. As such, I have had 'experience' with black lights since 1968 or so. Even tho' a fair amount of my brain cells may have gone up in smoke since then, I do remember that there were always vision-related warnings on the boxes that the black lights came in... especially the big'uns.

I first 'discovered' the UV-sensitive inks on notes whilst sitting on my apartment floor with my black light and my foreign note collection when I lived in Houston in 1969. Most of the notes with hidden UV-designs seemed to be American Bank Note products.

But I digress, the point of this missive is to stress that one should NOT look directly at the UV light source. There is a lot of energy being put out in this end of the spectrum. It is this end of the spectrum that our atmosphere filters out; therefore, our eyes are NOT used to UV. I know, I know, the atmosphere filters out the other end of the spectrum, too; however, the atmospheric filtering at the UV end is much more effective than at the Infrared end.

PROLONGED DIRECT EXPOSURE TO UV WILL DAMAGE YOUR VISION!!!!

Please forgive my shouting, I just want folks to be careful.

As ever, have fun and enjoy this endeavor in a healthy manner.

Jay in Garrison, TX

Misc notes about MPC

By Joe Boling

In response to Tom Koch's article about his recent evidence note acquisitions, I have the following piece: series 692 (as I assume Tom's are) $5, stamped with his VOID stamp in black on face and back, with the following graffiti on the lower right back corner: 1800 27-7-72 TEU. Staple holes at right end of face. Note that his are dated 22 July, mine 27-7 (same initials). Maybe the guy erred because of the 7s to follow (27-7-72).

Ski and Leo did not have to go to all that trouble analyzing Ski's sheet of four GPH chits; it was all reported in the IBNS Journal 40:4, wherein I covered the educational programs at the Melbourne fair last year. You will find there that the GPH Fiji chits were issued in booklets four to a page, and that only one page is extant (belonging to Mark Freehill). Has Mark sold his collection, or is his page no longer unique?

I received three more position 8 notes today (and bought another in London three weeks ago). I now have 53 pieces of my basic set. No series is yet complete, and no denomination is yet complete. The series that are closest are 472, 481, and 641, all of which have six of seven notes represented. The denomination that is closest is the $1, with ten of thirteen pieces. Next closest, with nine each are the dimes and (surprise) the $5 (including a nice 541 $5). The denomination that is really hurting is the 50c, with only three pieces represented (there is only one $20, but that's out of three that are needed). The series that is short (of the seven- or eight-note series) is 541, with only two notes. Series 471 and 611 have only three each. A special case is series 651, with only three collectible notes, of which I have none. Does anyone know of any position 8 notes from series 691 or 701? As special interest pieces, I have one replacement note and one evidence note (described above).. Although I own at least two MPC counterfeits (a 471 $10 and a 472 $10, and I think I have a 641 $10 around here also), I have none at position 8. Total invested so far: $4400 (deduct one note and the total drops to $1900--more in line with a recent gram that said this is a working-stiff's hobby).

Short Book Review

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

On Saturday, I received a newly published book entitled Collectors Military Money - British Military Authority (Including Tripolitania) and British Armed Forces. R.J. Marles put together this 56 page book that is a Richards Reference and Price Guide; that is, it's basically a catalog displaying, in color, the various notes and tokens along with providing a price in VF, EF, and Unc in most cases. Each item has a catalog number (RM) with cross references as available to Pick, SB, and van Elmt. The book is divided into four parts:

Part One: British Military Authority 6d, 1/-, 2/6d, 5/-, 10/-, L1 (L = the pound sign) and the Z prefix overprints Part Two: British Military Authority in Tripolitania 1 to 1000 lira
Part Three: NAAFI Tokens, 1/2 and 1 franc, 10 and 20 groschen, 1/4 and 1/2 piastre, 5 and 10 lira, 1/2d and 1d, 1/2 and 1 unit
Part Four: BAFSV First through sixth series Overall, a nice book with the most beneficial part being the color renditions of the notes; the notes are only 70% of actual size for legal purposes.

Editorial

We have had a few nice submissions recently about world affairs and even military matters. In the cases I happened to agree with the positions taken. However, there was nothing relating to numismatics in the articles. We are a newsletter of military numismatics. Occasionally we include material related to numismatics (without the military), but we will not generally run military stories without a military twist.

Hi,

I have the following MPC ready for donation:

series 661 .10, .50, and $1.00
series 481 .10

Where do I send them?

Gavin

Dear Gram,

After reading all of the commentary on the copies, it strikes me that it all boils down to this: Collect/enjoy what you want and allow everyone else to do same.
